WOUNDS A DEPUTY

DULUTH PRISONER MAKES A DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO SECURE LIBERTY.

Puts Two Bullets Into the Officer in Charge of Him but Is Captured After a Lively Chase—Minnesota Veterans Meet—Northern Pacific Planning a Big Land Sale—Rockefeller Buys More Iron Mines—State News in General.

Duluth, March 17.—About 3 o'clock Joseph Goldstein, alias Frank Baker, who had been found guilty of attempted robbery and was in the court room to hear the verdict, suddenly made a dash for liberty. He rushed for the door and was caught and thrown down by Deputy Sheriff Frank L. Magle. Rolling over on the floor Goldstein drew a revolver and shot Magle twice before the eyes of a courtroom full of people.

Magle was shot through the head and hand and the former wound is likely to prove fatal.

Deputy Chalk, who went to Magle's assistance, was also shot at, but lost nothing but a button off his coat. Goldstein had attempted a robbery in the bowery.

Goldstein said during the afternoon that he was not sorry, and he did not care if he was hanged. He said that Magle should have seen that he meant business when he produced the gun, as he had been convicted and meant to get away if he could.

MINNESOTA VETERANS.

Thirty-fifth Annual Encampment Held at St. Paul.

St. Paul, March 15.—The veterans of the Civil war are here in large numbers from all parts of the state to attend the 35th annual encampment of the Minnesota division of the order.

The old soldiers have made their headquarters at the Metropolitan hotel and assembled there at 9 o'clock, marching in a body to the Auditorium, where the opening session of the encampment was held.

Mayor Smith made the address of welcome and was followed by Comptroller J. J. McCardy, chairman of the local committee, and Commander D. S. Ives of St. Peter.

A brief speech was made by General Leo Rassieur of St. Louis, the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., and the discussion of officers' and committees' reports finished up the business of the morning session, after which an informal reception was tendered General Rassieur at the Auditorium.

The afternoon session was devoted to miscellaneous business and in the evening a campfire was held at which General Rassieur was the principal speaker.

St. Paul, March 16.—The annual encampment of the G. A. R. concluded its labors during the day and adjourned. The principal business was the election of officers, which was done without the slightest friction. The following were elected: Department commander, William H. Harries of Caledonia; senior vice commander, Perry Starkweather of Minneapolis, junior vice commander, Isaac L. Mahan of St. Paul.

Rev. J. S. Lock of Long Prairie was elected chaplain.

The members of the council of administration are: H. M. Richardson of Rochester, George A. Whitney of Wadena, August Koerner of Litchfield, J. O. Milne of Duluth and J. S. Wyman of Northfield.

IMMENSE REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Northern Pacific Sells All Its Land West of the Missouri.

St. Paul, March 19.—President Charles S. Mellen of the Northern Pacific is on the way to New York on one of the most important missions in recent years and which is said to involve the sale of all the land now owned by the Northern Pacific west of the Missouri river. The purchase price is given at $40,000,000, and it is understood that this sum will be used to retire preferred stock.

On Sept. 30 last the Northern Pacific owned land in the various states through which it operates west of the Missouri river aggregating 21,562,674 acres, apportioned thus: Dakota 500,000, Montana 13,270,271, Idaho 1,633,272, Washington 6,129,934, Oregon 29,197.

The purchasers of this land are said to be Eastern capitalists who have perfected a syndicate and who will undertake to encourage its settlement and cultivation by Eastern farmers, such as are now heading Westward in the homeseekers' movements each week.

ROCKEFELLER BUYS MINES.

His Company Purchases the Spruce Properties North of Duluth.

Duluth, March 18.—The most recent moves of the Lake Superior, Consolidated Iron Mines (J. D. Rockefeller) do not on the surface indicate any desire to enter the Morgan combination. The company has just completed the purchase of all the stock of the Spruce Mining company, a Kimberley concern, which controls the Spruce and Cloquet mines at Eveleth and a small part of the townsite there. The price paid is supposed to be about $800,000 for the $1,000,000 of stock.

The Kimberley interests, under Captain Roberts' direction, will at once proceed to open a tract close to the Commodore mine at Virginia, where a body of fine ore was shown two years ago.

SHARP CRITICISM.

Lack of Method of Duluth Health Officers Is Scored.

Duluth, March 15.—The report of the investigating committee appointed by the mayor to look into the conduct of the health department is just about what was expected, from the testimony. The health officer has been exonerated from all intent of wrong-doing, but is criticised for lack of method and for some of his proceedings. Fire Commissioner Abrahamson is severely and caustically criticised for his part in the furnishing of supplies to the department, and the implied recommendation is that some one else would fill the place better.

The committee also made a rather sharp and unpleasant comment on the testimony of the health officer and Abrohamsor, which differed diametrically. Alderman Trevillion is also criticised, but not so severely, on account of the sale by him to the city of supplies. The report will be acted on next week.

INDIANS COMPLAIN.

Say Dead-and-Down Contractors Cut Green Timber.

Washington, March 19.—Complaint was received at the interior department from Indians on the Leech lake reservation that green timber is cut by dead-and-down contractors. It was forwarded by Captain Mercer, who added an explanation of his own.

He stated that green timber was cut in two camps, and he immediately shut them up. In other camps only such green timber is cut as is necessary in making roads to camps. Captain Mercer reiterates his intention to hold the purchasers of dead-and-down timber to the strict letter of the contracts.

Secretary Hitchcock has recently told several callers that it is his intention not to approve the sale of timber land on the White Earth reservation until the purchasers show proof that there was not collusion in the bidding.

Relief Corps Election.

St. Paul, March 16.—Mrs. Ada L. May of Stillwater was elected department president of the Woman's Relief Corps on the first ballot. Mrs. May received 148 votes, Mrs. Plymar of Mankato 95 and Mrs. Keller of Minneapolis 34. Mrs. Fanny Richardson of Marshall was unanimously elected senior vice president, and Mrs. Esther Kennedy of St. Paul was elected junior vice by a good sized majority.

Aged Man Burned to Death.

Pine City, Minn., March 18.—Fire destroyed the residence of Colonel Dick Robinson, the oldest resident of the village. He lived alone and perished in the flames. He was a prominent Knight Templar and Workman, about 80 years old. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp.

Minnesotan Interested.

Trenton, N. J., March 19.—The Grinoco Copper company, capital $6,000,000, has been incorporated here to mine and smelt copper and other ores. The incorporators are: Donald Grant, Faribault, Minn.; Laurence P. Boyle, Chicago, and Thomas F. Noonan, Jr., Bayonne, N. J.

NEW REVENUE DISTRICT.

North and South Dakota Delegations Victorious.

Washington, March 14.—President McKinley has issued an order establishing a new internal revenue district comprising the states of North and South Dakota. This is a great victory for the delegations from the Dakotas, as they have been fighting for a new district for several months.

Where the office will be located is a question that will to some extent depend upon the strength of the delegations from the two states. Senators Hansbrough and McCumber will want the naming of the collector and the selection of the location of the office, and Senators Kyle and Gamble will want like honors. It remains to be seen which will be victorious.

WILL GO TO MANILA.

Congressman Hull Will Investigate the Transport Service.

Des Moines, Ia., March 17.—Congressman John A. T. Hull of Des Moines has announced that he will keep out of the fight for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and will sail April 1 for the Philippines. He goes to investigate the United States transport service, about which there has been some trouble in congress, some New York members attempting to have the control of the transport system transferred from the army to the navy.

As chairman of the committee on military affairs, Congressman Hull is against this change. The departure of Captain Hull simplifies the political situation considerably.

Smallpox Scare Among Students.

Des Moines, March 18.—The Des Moines college, the largest Baptist college in Iowa, has closed down on account of the existence of smallpox in North Des Moines. Five cases have been discovered in the boardinghouse of Mrs. J. K. Johnson, where 15 men and women students boarded.

None but Women Nominated.

Denver, March 19.—The Prohibitionists have nominated a ticket composed entirely of women for the city offices to be filled at the election on April 1 next. Their candidate for mayor is Mrs. A. A. Hawley, president of the State Women's Christian Temperance union.

VICTORY!

The question whether or not Wylie should have a saloon has been a much mooted question. The temperance people won. How the saloon could be kept out of Wylie has been a question uppermost in many minds for some time. It was a very close call, as will be seen by the returns. A victory over the liquor traffic is as great as that of Waterloo over Napoleon, for although he was feared over all Europe, the drink habit should be feared over the whole world; Napoleon took property and lives, liquor takes property, lives and souls; Napoleon in his victorious processions, carried off treasures of immense value from foreign lands: the saloon takes costlier treasures than many Napoleons. The drinking habit carries in its death-bound procession more captives than did ever a Caesar. No wonder there arises on our stage a Mrs Nation, in whom a conscience dictates a proclamation to save a nation. Hers is surely a radical way, but a radical ill takes a radical cure.

Many, who occasionally visit a saloon when in town, worked and voted against one in Wylie. They say they are not against taking a drink, but that we are better off without it here. "We may not want anything, but a friend asks us along for company and we do not like to refuse." We see by this that we ought not by any means have a saloon here, for if they are not against taking a drink and will not refuse it at first, they may by having it handier, grow into habitual drinkers. Every cent spent in the bar-room is wasted and leads to destruction. The faithful mothers are rejoicing over the victory, for when husbands and sons come from Wylie they are not intoxicated, nor abusing what is intrusted to them.

The newspapers of the Twin Cities for some time past have been keeping their interested readers posted on all the details of the celebrated Hamilton case. What thoughts would come as we pictured the two young men, Leonard Day and Frank Hamilton, just in the very prime of youth, in connection with this tragedy—imagining that in that terrible moment which made them known to the world, they were both intoxicated. The one who fell in a billiard hall, unwarned, the victim of a murderer, and thereafter breathing a few sobs, passed over the boundary of time and eternity to be mourned by an unconsolable, heart-broken mother. Not a long time before he had mourned his father's death, who had left for him a wealth. And then—there is the picture of the accused. Shall that young man now suffer the penalty of seven years in dreary imprisonment, deprived of man's freedom, and forever carry the blot of manslayer on his name and character. It is tetrible! but we say, he is still among the living, but the other, uncautioned, was deprived of his life.

About a century and a quarter ago, in the restless time of the Revolution, lived a man, whose name, Alexander Hamilton, is immortal on the pages of our land's history. Frank Hamilton is said to be one of his descendents. Did our country's greatest financier, ever dream that at the opening of a second century thence, from his house should arise a murderer? Of Alexander Hamilton, Daniel Webster so eloquently exclaimed: "He touched the dead corpse of public credit, and it sprang upon its feet." He by striking a rock as it were could cause abundant streams of revenue to gush forth. What would his thoughts be today if he could see a descendant of his own house in confinement, stripped of his own garments and dressed in the shameful attire of a prisoner?

The thoughtful politician: "I ought to give it to that fellow for running against me, but I will not quarrel this week, as I am to conduct the services in church next Sunday."

The annual election was lively and showed the real character of politics. Your correspondent was led into a dispute with his opponent. But we feel endowed with the right to vote and work for what party he may choose at an election. We were supporting a straight ticket and the men on it were honest and trustworthy. But what matters it to those who have most of their property in another town how our affairs are managed? One thing we are gratified at—the votes for us were mostly no license tickets, which can't be claimed by our opponent.

CARNEGIE HAS GIVEN $25.000,000

Intimate friends of Andrew Carnegie, of Pittsburg, say that it is his intention to give at least $25,000,000 for buildings and endowment for the proposed technical school of Pittsburg. He intends to make his school the finest of its kind in the world.

Andrew Carnegie himself does not know how much money he has given away. Here is a recently published statement which is not far from correct:

Trust fund for pensions for Carnegie workmen....	$4,000,000.
Trust fund for free libraries in Homestead, Braddock and Duquesne, Pa.......	$1,000,000
Educational institutions in America...............	$7,105,000
Carnegie libraries in American cities	7,136,000
Libraries and schools in Great Britian...............	1,235,665
Miscellaneous gifts....	4.428,200
Total.................	$24,904,200

Mr. Carnegie has stamped himself a man of genius and his genius lies in accomplishing something in a way never attempted before. To loose his hold on business, just at the full tide of money-making; and to devote his energies to giving away his fortune in a scientific way so that the good effects will be permanent and accessible to all who wish to improve themselves—altogether this is something original, and Mr. Carnegie has proven himself great as well as good.

TIDE OF IMMIGRATION.

With the approach of spring the expected influx of immigrants to the Red River Valley lands has begun, and it shows evidence of the rush that will follow during the succeeding weeks, and that will certainly exceed all records made in previous years.

An idea of the extent of this expected immigration was given by Col. Wilkinson who brings the information that during the week just closing the car accountant at the company's general office in St. Paul has sent 100 cars to various points in Iowa, where they will be loaded with stock, machinery and immigrant movables that are being shipped up into the Red River Valley. In addition to this orders for fifty more cars have already been booked and they will be forwarded as soon as they can possibly be moved.

Nor is this all. The company's accountant says that from the reports received at the freight department the indications are that a thousand cars of emigrant movables will be brought out of Iowa during the month of March, and consigned to points on the Great Northern, and that by far the greater number of them will bring homeseekers' supplies to the Red River Valley.

Add to this the business being done by the Northern Pacific, which without doubt, is getting its share, and it will be readily seen that the number of settlers that will come to live on northern Minnesota farms this year will be enormous.

AMERICANISM.

The law of American life must be the law of work: not the law of idleness, not the law of self-indulgence. And the only work worth doing is done by those who learn not to shrink from difficulties, but to overcome them. Americanism means effort, means the constant and unending strife with our conditions which is not only the law of nature if the race is to progress, but the law of the highest happiness for ourselves.—Theodore Roosevelt.

DUTIES OF THE TAX COMMISSION

The duties of the tax commission recently appointed by the governor are defined in section two of the bill authorizing the commission, in the following language.

"The duties of said commission shall be to make a tax code for the state of Minnesota. Such code shall include a complete system for the just and equitable taxation of all forms of property, both tangible and intangible, and shall be properly indexed, and prepared in the form of a bill or bills for presentation to the legislatura. Said code shall include provision for a permanent tax commission, and shall define its duties, powers and compensation. The commission shall also prepare and report a bill or bills providing for any constitutional amendments which may be necessary for properly carrying out the system of taxation recommended by the commission."

The eyes of the whole state are turned on Messrs. Childs, Ives and Hahn, who constitute the tax commission. They have an arduous task before them.

There is every indication that the bill changing the form of primary election will be enacted into a law. This is practically an extension of the law of the last session, which applied only to Hennepin county, with several changes and amendments. It does away with the "caucus" and convention, a regular election being held, the same as the one in November, only that the candidates on each ticket receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared the nominees of that party, and shall be placed on the ticket for the ensuing election in November. In its present status, the bill exempts candidates for the state, township and village elections from this act; their nominations will be made as heretofore.

F. Marion Crawford, the American novelist, who lives in Rome, has been appointed biographer to Leo XIII, the present pope, who entered upon the twenty fourth year of his papal reign last week. This great work, which will, necessarily, be a history of the times as well as the man, is already well under way, though it cannot of course, be completed or published until after the pope's death. The importance of such a work is obvious when one considers the widespread dominion of the church of Rome. For this reason, too, it must deal with many lands and powers, and when it is remembered that Leo XIII, was born in 1810, almost a decade before the late queen, the extent of the biography can be imagined.

"We leave something of our hearts in every place where joy or sorrow comes to us. And so the hearth, the door-stone, the old tree that threw its branches over the house where we were reared as children; the well, into which, from day to day, many tears, it may be, were dropped, as the mother went to and fro; the brook that sang to our sighing; the mountain ravine, where we wandered to get rid of busy life; a thousand places that in youth or struggling manhood have been witnesses to our deep emotions—these things become personal to us, and afterward throw back, in their shadows, something of our own selves upon us, and greet us with a human sympathy."—Henry Ward Beecher.

A Life And Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in Consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it even if it cost $5.00 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say that it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." Regular size 50c and $1.00. Trail bottles free at W. A. Schreiter's Drug Store.

J. M. Allard has just received a fine new line of assorted chocolates. Fresh from the candy factory.

Mrs. Peter Stuhr has spent several days this week in the city a guest of Miss K. R. Stuhr and Mrs. C. W. Mead.

Mike Wilmes and C. W. Mead have gone to Montana where the former contemplates embarking in the sheep business.

Miss Nellie Curran has accepted a position as stenographer for the Ed. L. Healy Land & Loan Co. at Thief River Falls.

Some weeks will be spent in the east by Dr. Morley, of Crookston, getting advanced ideas from New York specialists.

The election at Bemidji last week was a lively one. A total of 618 votes were cast and the Pioneer says 34,000 ballots were printed in that office alone.

Dr. R. B. Foster, well known here, was one of the unsuccessful candidates for treasurer at the Bemidji election last week. He was 114 votes shy.

S. M. Sivertson has arrived in the city from Atwater and will actively engage in the milling business with the Red Lake Falls Milling Co. His family will arrive later.

M. K. Wall, of Thief River Falls, was up at Ringbo in Marshall county last week and out of forty representative farmers at a meeting only one kicked on county division.

Philip Chuyer left last Saturday to look into the prospects at Big Falls. Although the townsite has not yet been platted there is already a considerable movement to the place.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. H. Lemieux returned Saturday from a tour of Northern Minnesota organizing lodges of the Modern Brotherhood of America, and report a successful trip.

The funeral of Mrs. L. Rivard, who died last Tuesday at her home in Lake Pleasant township, occurred Friday. Mrs. Rivard was one of the pioneers of this section, having resided here over twenty years.

The Montreal House, the oldest building in Crookston, was destroyed by fire Tuesday evening. Loss, $2,000, insurance $700. The guests and employes lost all their personal effects, amounting to several hundred dollars.

An exchange says that a railroad contractor recently advertised for 300 sleepers. By return mail he received a letter from a neighboring clergyman, offering him his whole congregation and choir at reasonable terms.

The McIntosh merchants do not appear to believe in advertising, so the Tribune puts in a three column ad for Roberts' Supply House, of Minneapolis. Roberts is wiser than the McIntosh merchants—and more successful.

Ernest Buse is seriously ill.

B. G. Walker had John Cyr, a brother barber, arrested at Thief River Falls last week for keeping open on Sunday. Cyr plead guilty and was fined $1.00 and costs by Judge Tarrant. Cyr says he's glad of it. He can enjoy a Sunday rest as well as common people.

Architet E. Strassburger, of Crookston spent several days in the city this week figuring with Messrs. Borchers Kaufer, Pirath and Majeres on a proposed brick block to replace the frame row destroyed by fire two weeks ago. It is likely that a two story brick building will go in.

A sawmill, with a capacity of 3,000,000 feet per year, will be established at the new townsite of Hertford on the Brainerd & Northern railroad extension, on Turtle River Lake. Kelso & Co., the promoters, intend to have the plant in operation by April 1. Part of the plant will be moved from Solway, where a smaller mill is now operated.

Joseph A. H. Lemieux, of Red Lake Falls, District Manager of the Modern Brotherhood of America, passed through our city yesterday on his way to Hallock. Mr. Lemieux organized a lodge in Badger and will be back in a few weeks and organize a lodge in Greenbush and Roseau. Joseph is an old schoolmate of the writer and we had a good long talk about the early days of Red Lake Falls and the scene of our childhood days.—Greenbush Journal

A Grand Forks man wanted a manager for a 640 acres farm, and wrote to a friend in Michigan to find him a man. In due course an application came from a very desirable person, backed by all sorts of testimonials. The owner wrote back, "You are evidently just the man I want, but you are unmarried. I need a married man. I regret that this obstacle will prevent my hiring you." The reply came by wire: "Obstacle removed. Married today. Wife and I leave by next train." And they did. Colonel Robinson, the oldest resident of Pine City, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed his residence.

James E. Markham, a Republican, has been chosen to succeed himself as city attorney of St. Paul. The city council has a Democratic majority of one.

Jimmie Hasbrook of Milton pointed a gun that he supposed was not loaded at his 14-year-old sister Florence and shot her through the heart, killing her instantly.

The reports received by the state board of health show that during the two weeks ending March 11 there were 328 new cases of smallpox in 42 communities in the state. The number is growing less each succeeding two weeks, and the reports indicate that the health authorities are gradually stamping out the disease.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

Monday, March 11.

The Dunn-Hillmond primary election bill passed the house on a vote of 83 to 14. Before final action an amendment to remove state officers from the application of the bill was adopted. As it originally excluded township and village officers the bill now affects only districts (legislative, judicial and congressional), county and city officers. A number of unimportant bills were passed.

Three bills relating to Beltrami county occupied much of the time in the senate. They were finally recommended for passage. The bill to reimburse employes of the St. Peter hospital for the insane who lost personal effects in the fire of last March was recommended to pass.

Tuesday, March 12.

Bill taxing express companies 5 per cent on gross earnings recommended for passage in the house. Pennington's bill to abolish hyphenated names of political parties also secured favorable action. The teachers' retirement and pension bill reported from committee without recommendation.

Hurd oil inspection bill, amended to take effect two years hence, passed the senate without debate. The Rush "renovated butter" bill caused a lively discussion and was finally placed on general orders.

The house and senate conferees on the reapportionment bill held a meeting but failed to reach an agreement.

Wednesday, March 13.

The house spent three hours discussing the board of control bill. The opposition developed a surprising strength and the passage of the bill is doubtful. On the Hurd oil inspection bill the house refused to concur in the senate amendment. A bill fixing the penalty for train robbing was recommended for passage.

The Fitzpatrick bill, authorizing city councils of cities of from 10,000 to 50,000 to acquire electric light plants, recently killed, was resuscitated in the senate and laid on the table. A bill to appropriate $200,000 for two additional cottages at the Hastings and Anoka hospitals, was recommended to pass.

Thursday, March 14.

The board of control bill passed the house after one of the warmest debates of the session. An amendment putting every state institution under the board's control was defeated by one vote. A bill in the interest of direct legislation was introduced by Representative Sageng of Otter Tail county.

The drainage bill, appropriating $50,000, was recommended for passage in the senate after a hard fight; also the Stockwell measure providing for a uniform system of accounting in state institutions.

A new conference committee on the reapportionment bill was named in the house.

Friday, March 15.

House again postponed action on Senator Young's adjournment resolution. Among the bills passed were: For resale of land unsold at forfeited tax sale; raising gross earnings tax on express companies from 3 to 5 per cent; to abolish hyphenated political parties.

The senate passed Daugherty's bill to prohibit adulteration of liquors; also a bill allowing lawyers a wider latitude as to time in taking exceptions to the charge of the judge or instructions to the jury.

Messrs. Wessels and Viljoen, Boer representatives, addressed both the house and senate during the day's session.

Saturday, March 16.

No sessions held by either house or senate.

State of Minnesota } ss
County of Red Lake }

In Probate Court
Special Term
Feb. 20th 1901.

In the matter of the estate of Isidore Therrieault deceased. On reading and filing the petition of [illegible] executor of the estate of Isidore Therrieault, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains unexposed of, the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained, the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate (excepting the homestead) of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell the real estate of Isidore Therrieault in said county.

And it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said Executor to pay said debts, legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to [illegible] of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 18th day of March A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said [illegible] to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Gazette, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

BY CHARLES M. SHELDON,

COPYRIGHT, 1896, BY CONGREGATIONAL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL PUBLISHING SOCIETY.

he began to analyze his feelings, provoked by the expressions of the prayer. But his mind soon refused to criticise anything and, without any special reason for it, he began to ask if the saving of men was any more the Salvation Army's business than his own. He began to dwell on the word "saved" as it was used so often in the prayer. Then, by a logical step which he did not attempt to argue about as he might once have done, he was confronted with his own condition, and although he thought he tried to avoid answering the question, it persisted in being put: "Am I saved? What is Jesus to me?"

The whole matter was foreign to his moral code. Besides, how could a man in his present position, with all this labor trouble confronting him, attend to religious questions? Nevertheless he was forced to come back to the simple question: "Am I saved? What is Jesus to me?" All through the strange debate now going on within him he seemed to feel that he was being driven irresistibly to a point where he must answer or decide the matter of his own personal salvation.

He dressed and in a growing excitement walked the room in the twilight. How are men converted? Was Saul of Tarsus expecting to be met by the vision on the road to Damascus? Was it not as sudden and astonishing to him as a lightning bolt out of a cloudless evening? Does the Lord have any feeble limitations in his way of reaching men's souls or in the time he chooses? Stuart tried again and again to stop the persistent question that rose repeatedly to his lips, but to no purpose. He said, "I will go down and inquire about Eric." But he turned in his walk every time he faced his door and again paced back to the windows which opened on the front of the house. Gradually as the light of the world grew stronger outside another and an inward light grew in Stuart's soul. He watched it grow in awe of its strange revealing power. He saw himself as a child of God, with opportunities, powers, values, all of them hitherto used selfishly, and in and through all the rest he saw illumined a radiant cross. "What was Jesus to him?" The question grew with meaning. Why was the Jesus of history a figure to be respected simply? Of what value and meaning was the cross unless it became a personal redemption?

The sunrise of the outer world was reddening the pines out on the hills. In a little while the sun would be looking out over the ranges, and a new day would be born. But a new man was being born in the room of the Champion iron mine owner. The sun of righteousness was rising in him, and soon it would be daylight. Stuart trembled. He was alone. No man had spoken to him of salvation or of Christianity. But the divine presence had come at an unexpected moment, at what might have seemed a most inopportune time, and his whole nature was in the hand of a power that he dared not resist. He almost feared to breathe lest he should drive the heavenly presence away. He sat down and with his head bowed waited. It seemed to him for something more to happen. And then he seemed to hear a voice say, "My son, give me thine heart." He clasped his hands together and replied, "God, be merciful to me, a sinner!" And with the words a flood of light poured in. He at once kneeled down. It was an unusual habit with him. Now it seemed as necessary as breathing and as full of joy as loving.

How long he had been in that deep communion with his Saviour, so newly found, he could not have told. It must have been some time. He was aroused by one of the servants knocking at the door and announcing breakfast. He went down stairs, and the first person to meet him in the hallway was Louise. It was a new world that Stuart was henceforth to know, and his heart went out to his sister this morning with a new tenderness. She put her arm about his neck as he stooped to kiss her.

"What a dreadful time you must have had, Stuart. It is a great blessing you were not killed in that awful mine. The doctor has been telling me about it."

"Yes, I feel as if my life had been spared for some great reason," replied Stuart. "How is Eric this morning?" He put his arm about Louise and moved with her toward the door of Eric's room, which was near by. Louise slipped away from him and answered: "Oh, he is getting on all right! I don't want to see him. Don't wait breakfast long, Stuart."

She crossed over into the dining room, and Stuart went in to see Eric, who still lay in the down stairs bedroom which remained a feature of Ross Duncan's house as he had first designed and built it.

The doctor was there by the bed. He had come up early. He had attended to the wound, and Eric was resting comfortably. He lay there looking very pale and almost stern. Stuart felt an added tenderness for the man who had been his companion in that hour of peril. Somehow the experience of the morning deepened and enlarged all his thoughts of friendship and love.

He kneeled down by the bed and smiled as Eric turned his dark eyes toward him.

"What sort of a night did you have, dear fellow?" he asked as he laid his hand in Eric's.

"Oh, I rested well. I'm able to get up this morning, but the doctor here won't let me move."

"You can get up if you want to," replied Dr. Saxon gruffly. "Stuart, please order my horse around so I can get around to the undertaker's in time to make arrangements with him for Eric's funeral. Do you want the hearse with the black plumes all around the top, or the other one with the weeping urn arrangement in the middle?"

"Nonsense! I'm not so bad off as that!" replied Eric, with a feeble attempt at a smile.

"You will be if you get out of that bed for two weeks," replied the doctor as he gathered up his things to go. "Besides, you can't get up if you want to. Stuart, I leave him in your care. The nurse will be able to attend to him all right. She has full instructions." And with a word or two more the doctor went out of the house and whirling down the hill.

Stuart remained a few minutes with Eric and then went in to breakfast. There was a good deal to talk over. Louise asked questions about the accident. Stuart answered, feeling all the time that everybody about him had changed since that Light had dawned upon him. Even Louise could see and feel a difference, although she could not tell what it was. Finally she stopped in her questions about the mines and said:

"What is the matter with you, Stuart? What has happened? Are you ill from the effects of your exposure yesterday?"

Stuart looked across the table at her, and it was several moments before he replied. Then he said: "I will tell you, dear, when we are alone. I want time to think. No; I am not ill. I feel better than I have in a long time."

Louise looked surprised, but she asked nothing more and went on to tell about the gathering at the Vasplaines' the evening before. Stuart listened thoughtfully, now and then putting a question, and at last Louise came back to the subject of the miners.

"Now that troops have been ordered, I suppose the strike will end, won't it?"

"I don't know. Maybe it will just begin."

"But don't you intend to get new men in? All the mines in the lower range are bringing in new men today. It is an outrage for the men to prevent others from working."

"There will be trouble, I am afraid, before the day is over," replied Stuart. He faced a most serious problem, and he found his heart crying out for wisdom from the divine source he was beginning to know.

"Well, I don't understand you, Stuart. If father was alive, he would have 1,000 men here in Champion ready to go to work this morning instead of waiting for the other men to accept terms he had made only to have them foolishly rejected. If they won't work on their own terms, which you say you offered them, how can they blame you if you get new men in and protect them by law? If I were a man, I would teach those men a lesson. Look at the way they have treated you and Eric. They"—

Louise looked prettier than ever as she stamped her foot under the table. Stuart sat silent and sober. Just then the telephone rang. He went over and after a few moments came in to tell Louise he would have to go down to the Iron Cliff's office. Word had been sent up that he was needed.

"Aunt Royal is coming in on the noon train, Stuart, you remember. Shall I drive down and get her?"

"Yes, dear. I don't know how the morning's business will occupy me. I wish you would see to her." Stuart leaned over Louise as she sat at the table and kissed her again.

"And do have some sense about this strike business. Get new men in. What can you do if all the other owners start up again?"

"I'll do the best thing," replied Stuart gently. He went into Eric's room a minute.

"I'm sorry to leave you, Eric," he said affectionately.

Eric groaned: "To think of my lying here of all times in my life! Stuart, I must get up and go with you. The men"—

Eric tried to raise himself, but fell back with a cry of pain. The sweat stood out on his forehead in large drops. He clinched his hands and his teeth in a sort of rage that was not only terrible to see, but pitiful.

As Stuart stood by him there was a great feeling of compassion in his heart for him. "Eric, you will have to be patient. After all, the men have not broken over the law yet. With the exception of the men who fired the engine house I believe the most of them are minded to be law abiding."

"Not if they get to drinking," replied Eric, with a spasm of pain crossing his face. "They are devils when they drink. Curse the saloons! They will be the ruin of our cause yet. You will do all you can, Stuart, to hold the men in check? The troops are coming in today and the new men. O God, if I was only with my men today I believe I could control them!"

"Yes, yes, Eric. I'll do my best. After all, are we not in the hands of one who knows the end from the beginning?"

Eric stared at Stuart in astonishment.

Stuart continued as he leaned over the bed: "Eric, the light has shone upon me. God has spoken to me. I am a Christian. It has all come to me suddenly."

Eric was too bewildered to understand all that was meant by Stuart's confession. He feebly returned Stuart's hand grasp.

"I believe they ought to have the scale they demand," replied Stuart quietly.

Stuart added simply, "I will tell you more when I get back." Then after a pause: "God bless you, Eric! God help us to solve these questions with his wisdom, for ours is weakness and foolishness."

Eric's eyes were shut. Then a tear stole out from the closed lids and rolled over the pale cheek, and Stuart left him so.

He hurried down into the town and drove first out to Eric's cottage, which was on a side street three blocks from the square. Eric's father and mother were dead, and he was not married. He was living with his grandmother and two cousins, young boys who expected in time to enter the mines. Eric's home life was strange and had its influence on his life to shape it as it was. Stuart left word with the grandmother that Eric would be with him for awhile and then drove back into the square and went into the office.

It was the old office room of his father, but since Ross Duncan's death it had become a sort of headquarters for several mine owners who had railroad interests in Champion and mining property in the other ranges. Three or four of these men greeted Stuart as he came in and at once began to argue with him about his course in the strike and its probable results on the outcome of it.

"Now, Duncan," said one of the men, a large, florid man, who wore a big seal on a heavy watch chain and looked "important." "It is necessary for us all to move together in this matter. Things have got to a point now where it is a question whether we are running our own business or having it run for us by a lot of wild, ignorant fanatics engineered by Salvation Army cranks and other fools of the sort."

Stuart had all he could do to keep from striking the man in the mouth as he spoke of the Salvation Army. That delicate face in the army bonnet, that kneeling figure in the midst of the mob, that prayer, the sweet, clear, refined voice—all smote his imagination and memory as his eyes looked past the big man out of the window which opened on the scenes of the past evening. It was good proof perhaps of the genuine nature of Stuart's new manhood that he calmly listened until the speaker was through and then said quietly: "I do not regard the Salvation Army as you do, Mr. Wynne. My dearest friend, Eric Vassall, is a member of it, and I believe we owe our freedom so far from lawlessness to the religious influence exerted by the army."

Stuart's reply surprised all the other men. The big man reddened and was about to say something when one of the others spoke up:

"That aside, Mr. Duncan, we do not see your reason for refusing to get new men in and starting up again. Your refusal gives the strikers encouragement."

"I believe they ought to have the scale they demand," replied Stuart quietly.

"We don't!" exclaimed the first speaker viciously. "I'll see every striker starve before I'll grant anything like the terms they ask. The price of ore at present wouldn't allow it."

"But," said another of the men, speaking to Stuart, who remained standing in the middle of the room, "the Cleveland men are determined to set new men at work today. The first load will come in on the noon train. Troops are coming with them. The two companies that were here last night have gone on down to the lower range early this morning. We have the game in our own hands if we act together. You are the largest owner here. A good deal depends on your action."

Stuart pondered. The men all looked at him anxiously. At last he looked straight at them, and his face lighted up.

"I have given the men my word that I would take them back at their terms. They have refused to come back unless all the other owners make the same terms. I still think I am right in the matter, and the rest of you ought to grant their demands. I do not see how in honesty to my own convictions I can do otherwise. My present refusal to get in new men is certainly not adding to the danger of the situation here in Champion. Gentlemen"—Stuart paused for a moment, then went on firmly—"I cannot see my way clear to hire the men at smaller wages than $2 a day. I do not agree with the statement that the price of ore does not warrant the increase in wages. I firmly believe it does. The plain fact is that the work of the men is such dangerous, difficult work that $2 a day is little enough for the labor. There isn't a man of us here or in Cleveland who would do the work these men do for ten times $2 a day. I cannot look at it as you do. I shall do my utmost to prevent trouble, but if at any time during the strike my men come back I will open up with $2 a day for the underground men."

The other men looked at Stuart in added astonishment. There was silence in the office, broken finally by the big man who had spoken first:

"Well, that beats me! If I ever expected to hear a son of Ross Duncan make a socialistic speech! You ought to go on the platform, sir!"

The manner of the remark was so offensive that Stuart grew pale and trembled. But he controlled his passion and turned to the other men. For half an hour more they talked animatedly, while the big man sulked and smoked a bad cigar in the corner. At last Stuart saw that he was not and could not be understood. He could not give his best reasons for his position to these men. They lay too deep at the foundations of his newly found life to be explained to men whose spiritual natures were buried under cash values of existence.

When he was convinced that all the talk would result in nothing satisfactory, Stuart went out. He felt the need of something that responded to his own life. He felt choked and "poisoned" (he could not think of a less strong word) as he realized how firm a hold the love of money had on the business world. All the time he cried out in his heart: "God help me! I want to do the right thing and will do it as fast as the light comes." He examined his position toward the strike so far in the light of his Christian discipleship and heard no accusing voice in his heart over the judgment that he had declared to be just, and as he went out into the street he felt at peace as far as that was concerned.

As he walked the street thinking it all over he had a great desire to have a talk with some one he could trust who would sympathize with him. At once he thought of the new minister. "I ought to go and inquire about him anyway." He quickened his pace across the street, entered the square and took one of the diagonal paths to the hotel where Burke was staying.

He found Andrew Burke going through the hotel office with a large box. He saw Stuart coming in and exclaimed:

"Come up, come up, Mr. Duncan! I've got some beauties here. I want you to see them."

Stuart followed up one flight of stairs and entered a large room in the corner of the hotel, and Andrew Burke set down his burden, shook hands strongly and asked Stuart to excuse him while he opened his box. Stuart looked on wonderingly.

It was a box full of potted plants, young roses most of them. As fast as Burke took them out he arranged them on a temporary shelf by the window.

"There's a Nyphetis, one of the most delicate roses going. And here is my Kaiserine. That's a new variety just out this year. This Catherine Mermet is a beauty. Very hard to get a bloom in this climate, I fear. The Safrano is better. And just see here! I raised this Meteor myself and had six magnificent blooms from it last winter. You see, my wife was visiting some relatives in the east when my call came to come up here, and I try to amuse myself until she arrives with rocks and roses. Those are my pets. Let me show you some of my friends since I got here."

The Rev. Andrew Burke brought out a tray from another room and set it down on the table near Stuart. Then he noticed the look on Stuart's face, and his whole manner underwent a swift and remarkable change. He looked and spoke like the strong, deep, true man that he really was in spite of his "rocks and roses."

"Mr. Duncan, you did not come here to talk botany or geology, did you?"

"To tell the truth, I did not, Mr. Burke."

"What is it?" asked Andrew Burke, leaning forward and putting a hand on Stuart's arm.

It was a simple question simply put. But it revealed so strong and genuine a desire to know and sympathize with him that before Stuart knew it he was telling his experience of the morning. The tea rose odor of the plants in the window, and on the table filled the room, and Andrew Burke listened with kindling eye and long drawn breath. "Thank God! Thank God!" he was saying as Stuart went on. When Stuart finally paused, Andrew said, "Can't we have a little prayer of thanksgiving over this right here as we sit?"

"Yes, yes," replied Stuart gladly.

Before Andrew Burke was through with his prayer Stuart was sobbing. It was the first real touch of Christian sympathy he had ever known. It was wonderful to him, though, to think that he was now linked in sympathetic knowledge with every other disciple.

In the next few moments of question and answer he experienced one of the rarest and sweetest joys of his life.

It was not a shock to anything to find himself at last talking over the strike and its problems with Burke. After all, was that not a part of life, and was not all of it henceforth to be lived to the glory of God?

He was relieved to have Burke agree with his decision as to wages.

"My sympathies are with the workmen, Mr. Duncan. In fact I was born on a farm and raised in a factory. I'll tell you about it some time."

"I am going to make a request," said Stuart, with a smile. "Do you think a man who saves another man's life ought to call him 'mister' very long?"

"What shall I say?"

"'Stuart' is not a hard name to pronounce, is it?"

"No harder than 'Andrew.'"

"It's a bargain then. No more 'misters.'"

"Eh, but this is sudden, young man," replied Andrew Burke, rising and coming over nearer Stuart. "I'm ten years your senior, and you need my advice. It's a bargain, yes."

The two men shook hands again and thoroughly understood each other. It was the Christian fellowship that made such swift friendship possible. On any other basis these two men would have saved each the life of the other every day and "mistered" each other to a gray old age.

But events in the outer world were hurrying on fast, and Stuart could not avoid a feeling of anxiety concerning the train due at noon with the new men and the troops. Already the miners were gathering in the square. Looking out of the hotel window, the two men could see that the miners were excited and that the gathering was massing about the depot rather than around the band stand.

"I believe I will go down, and if there is any trouble I will do all in my power to prevent violence," said Stuart.

"Let me go with you," replied Andrew Burke.

So it happened that these two stood close by the depot when the noon train came in and saw the whole scene, which no man present that day ever forgot.

The train came in slowly, and the miners watched it in sullen silence. The first two coaches were filled with troops. The rest of the cars, six in all, contained the new men.

It was not known until long afterward just how the events of that day were planned and carried out, but before the engineer or fireman could offer any resistance, even if they had thought of such a thing, they were pulled down out of the cab and in a twinkling the tender was uncoupled from the coaches and two of the miners who understood the working of the engine started it forward and switched it off the main track upon one of the tracks built by the side of the ore shoots.

Meanwhile the miners at the rear of the train began to call out to the men in the coaches to get out and show themselves.

"We wants to see the brave men who have come up to take bread out of us mouths!" "Show yourselves! Come out and have a taste of a club!"

While this was going on at the rear the officer of the troops, seeing what had happened to the engine, promptly ordered his men out of the coaches and formed across the track and by the side of the rear coaches to defend the men within.

The commanding officer was a young man of handsome appearance, and he seemed cool and determined. As the troops took their position the crowd gave back a little, leaving a space of perhaps 20 feet between the line and the crowd.

It was a critical moment and needed only one act of violence to precipitate a crisis. And that one act was forthcoming. As the officer turned to give command a drunken man threw a mass of ore with murderous strength right into his face, and he fell to the ground with the blood spattering the uniform of the man nearest him.

Stuart from his position on the platform tried to make himself heard. The officer next in command stepped out and in a voice that rose over the roar of the wild beast rising in the mob shouted, "Make ready!" But before he could add, the word "aim" or "fire" a woman suddenly flung herself, as it seemed, right out of the mob and ran up directly in front of the leveled guns. She stood alone in the little space between the troops and the miners. Stuart recognized the Salvation Army leader of the night before. Her face was pale, but she was calm, and without any appearance of playing a part or doing anything unusual or unexpected she stood there, with the muzzles of the guns almost touching her.

CHAPTER V:

AN EXCITING TIME.

For a moment the woman stood confronting the soldiers. Then she turned and spoke in the midst of a deathly silence that was almost as terrifying as the howl of the mob a few seconds before.

"My brothers, in the name of God and his dear Son, our Saviour, remember what you are and as you value heaven do no wrong today."

The miners heard, and for a moment the silence was unbroken. It was one of those moments which prove men to be equal or wanting to an emergency. And Stuart in that brief time grew in strength and experience. He was in the open space before Andrew or any one else moved and standing by the woman, the leveled guns now touching them both. The minute Stuart leaped into the space between the troops and the miners the woman turned and knelt by the side of the wounded officer. Stuart was conscious of the fact that men were carrying the body out of the ranks and that the young woman was behind them, following. All that he felt rather than saw as he stood there.

"Men," he said, praying in his heart for wisdom to say just the right word, "listen to me a moment. Every man who strikes a lawless blow here today strikes at the cause of labor. If you want to set it back and destroy your own best good, now is your opportunity. It will be the act of madmen to do it. In God's name, in the name of the law and of your best interests I beg of you to use reason. For the sake of Eric, who loves you if ever man did, let these men go their ways and abide the results as law fearing, God fearing men!"

There was a stir all through the crowd while Stuart spoke. Then the silence was broken by cries here and there by men who had helped Eric in the organization of the union.

"He's right! Mr. Duncan tells truth!"

"Let's keep law! We be fools otherwise!"

"Aye, we's fools a'ready!"

"Better for us to get men to go back!"

This last cry was caught up by large numbers, and the mob fairly swarmed around the coaches containing the new men. During the events just described they had remained inside, but the windows were alive with heads thrust out to see what was going on.

Stuart felt that the immediate danger of collision was over. There were, however, still any number of chances for an outbreak. The troops lowered their guns, but remained on guard.

The scene around the coaches now assumed an intensely pathetic character. With it all there was an element of danger and the stirring of the fickle wild beast in the mob.

"Now, boys," pleaded an old miner, standing close up by one of the coaches, "you doesn't want to take bread out of us mouths up here, does you? Come! Say you'll go back and leave us to fight it out with the masters. We make to win if let alone."

"Aye, that we will!" said another eagerly. "The owners is losing on contracts every day now. Give us a chance. What have we done to you that you should come up here to take away our wages?"

"We've got families, too," replied a gruff voice from one of the windows. "And no work for over a month and women and babies crying at home. What would you have us do?"

This was a hard question to answer, and no one tried it, but hundreds of voices were beseeching the newcomers to go back and leave the mine owners to struggle with their old men.

At last one of the miners, a middle aged man who had helped to organize the union and next to Eric was as influential as any one in Champion, secured a hearing. He mounted one of the switch blocks, and the men anxiously listened.

"Tell you what the union will do. We agree to pay the fares of every man here back to his home and something over if you go back on the next train."

"Aye, that's the thing!" yelled a hundred voices. As a matter of fact the union, numbering now nearly 5,000 men, was in a position to do this, and in the desperate fight it was making it could afford to wring every possible cent from its members rather than give way to the influx of new hands. Once the mines opened up their chances of bringing the owners to terms would be gone forever. Besides, there was no telling what events might occur if once public sympathy was large enough to enlist other workingmen with them.

The appeals now made to the men in the coaches were frantic. Miners climbed up on the platforms and squeezed inside the cars to argue with the men. It was a scene of peculiar interest, one great swarm of hard fisted and hard faced men begging another crowd of the same kind to keep from exercising the natural desire to work for home and children. Surely what was first pronounced as a curse on our first parents has now become a double curse when work is the object of such a strange contest.

It would perhaps be difficult to tell how far the strangers were influenced by their sympathy for the miners or whether the sight of 1,000 men carrying walking sticks the size of a man's arm had its weight in bringing them to a decision. There were about 500 men in all. At last about 400 of them said they would go back on the condition that the union do as it agreed.

They came out of the coaches and were received with a tremendous burst of cheers and shouts. The remaining men, who for one reason and another refused to go back, were saluted with hisses, jeers, threats and abuse, but no violence was offered. The miners felt jubilant over the result of their appeal and were disposed to ridicule the handful of men now left.

"Let 'em go on, boys! What can the miners do with such a handful of greenies?"

"Aye, let 'em go! They don't know enough to get out of the way of a blast nohow!"

"Let the men at De Mott treat 'em. They's two to our one down there!"

Meanwhile at the other end of the train matters were in the hands of Stuart and the local police of Champion. It is not too much to say that Stuart within the last 24 hours had grown immensely popular with the miners. The conference at the Iron Cliffs office that morning and Stuart's speech had leaked out somehow, and that accounted in part for his influence at this particularly critical time. At any rate he successfully appealed to the men to stand by the officers of the law when they came up and arrested the man who had thrown the ore and

River Falls.

Miss Mary Bramsness is visiting with her parents.

Miss Josie Stokkestad is home with her parents for a short visit.

C. Christianson went to Wyandotte Monday with a load of household goods for Mr. Morsing.

C. Morsing came up from Manley, Iowa, on Friday, with a carload of supplies for use on the farm he bought east of here in the fall of 1900.

The town election turned out a peculiar way this year, some of those elected did not want the offices, and others who wanted them could not get them.

The stomach controls the situation. Those who are hearty and strong are those who can eat and digest plenty of food. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the good food you want. If you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, belching or any other stomach trouble this preparation can't help but do you good. The most sensitive stomachs can take it. W. A. Schreiter.

Rocksbury

Quite a number of new houses and barns will be built this spring, by the way it looks the farmers must be prospering.

Very little plowing was done last fall and on that account many farmers will seed more flax and oats this year than usual.

Quite a lot of sickness has prevailed here of late and very few have escaped a visit from the not desirable guest—La Grippe.

The St. Hilaire Lumber Company has been repairing their dam near Geske and the farmers have had a chance to dispose of their surplus stone piles at a fair price.

Results. Immediate and lasting. Before and after trying other remedies use Rocky Mountain Tea this month. 'Twill keep you well all summer. A great spring blessing. W. A. Schreiter.

Sleighing will soon be a thing of the past. The back bone of the winter seems to be broken and spring will soon make its appearance, inspiring new life and energy.

The contest between F. T. Sathre and C. Englestad for the office of town clerk was interesting. The excitement ran high during the progress of canvassing the votes, and as the last vote was counted Satre held the winning card.

Prof. Ivison, of Lonaconing, Md., suffered terribly from neuralgia of the stomach and indigestion for thirteen years and after the doctors failed to cure him they fed him on morphine. A friend advised the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and after taking a few bottles of it says, "It has cured me entirely. I can't say too much for Kodol Dyspepsia Cure." It digests what you eat. W. A. Schreiter.

SEED WHEAT

We have selected some very choic seed wheat, that we will sell or exchange. We have both pure Scotch Fife, any Blue Stem, and it is free from all foul seed, cleaned ready for a seeder. This wheat was raised in the bottom lands near the Red River of the North, and is about as fine a sample of wheat as we have ever seen. We have tested samples of the wheat that has been damaged by rain and find that about only forty of fifty per cent of it will grow, and when it does grow it makes a very puny and inferior straw. As a matter of fact there are very few farmers who appreciate the value of a change of seed. They will go on year after year seeding the old, run out, cockly seed, when a good strong seed gives them from 2 to 3 bushels per acre more and it does not cost any more to plow, harrow, seed or harvest, and they would have a good seed wheat of their own the following year. Sample of this seed wheat can be seen at our office or at the Crompe Elevator.

WOMEN LIKE PARKS.

THEY APPEAR BEFORE JOINT COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC PARKS.

Briggs' Bureau, Special Telegraph Service.

St. Paul, March 27.—At a joint session of the house and senate committees on public parks several representative women of the state appeared and eloquently urged that the memorials now before the legislature, asking congress to investigate the practicability of a national park in the Leech Lake district, be passed. Their arguments were strong and the solons marveled at the detailed information and forcibility with which it was presented. Their fund of information as to the effect of scientific forestry in the proposed park area and the actual condition of the land was larger than anticipated, and made some of the wise ones stare at each other. After the meeting many of the members pledged themselves to support the measures.

He Fooled The Surgeons.

All doctors told Remick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest Pile cure on earth, and the best Salve in the World. 25c a box. Sold by W. A. Schreiter Druggist.

A Life And Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in Consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it even if it cost $5.00 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say that it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." FAVOR THE BILL.

METHODIST MINISTERS RESOLUTE IN FAVOR OF THE DISPENSARY BILL.

Briggs' Bureau, Special Telegraph Service:

St. Paul, March 27.—The Methodist Minister's association has adopted resolutions, one member dissenting: favoring the passage of the dispensary and county option bill now before the senate. They seem to think that if the bill were to become a law it would compel the state to take a step forward in the direction of prohibition.

NOTHING DONE YET.

THE BRIBERY COMMITTEE IS, HOWEVER, ABOUT READY TO BEGIN.

Briggs' Bureau, Special Telegraph Service.

St. Paul, March 27.—No evidence has yet been taken by the committee appointed to investigate the charges of bribery in connection with the gross earnings tax bill. The committee will investigate behind closed doors, but all evidence will later be presented to the house. It is intimated in some quarters that there will be no evidence taken—in fact there is no evidence of a positive character, but that the whole thing is a play made to influence the passage of the bill. It is pretty conclusive that the friends of the bill are making the most of the charges and are diligently at work, hoping to reap the advantages of the scare and pass the bill.

Crookston, Minn., March 27, 1901.

We take pleasure in calling your attention to the coming presentation on next Friday, March 29, 1901 of that eminently successful romance—"The Prisoner of Zenda"—by that fascinating writer, Anthony Hope, and presented here with all the original scenery, costumes, accessories, etc., that characterized its phenomenally successful run at the Lyceum Theatre, New York City.

The cast is one of exceptional merit, and bearing, as it does, the Daniel Frohman seal, our patrons can feel assured of witnessing a performance of excellence, and one well fitted to be considered one of the dramatic treats of the season

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brower of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her hand and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved,—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold W. A. Schreiter Druggist. Guaranteed.

A Good Cough Medicine For Children.

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad colds, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by W. A. Schreiter, druggist.

AGGIE A PRISONER.

General Fuston Affects the Capture of the Filipino Leader by a Cleverly Planned and Executed Ruse.

Funston and Aguinaldo Are Now in Manila.

Briggs' Bureau, Special Telegraph Service.

Manila, March 28, 10:30 a. m. — Gen. Funston, with the assistance of a number of native Macabees, captured Aguinaldo in the country near Casiguran, nine miles from Bayler province, Isabella, northeast coast of the Island of Luzon. The rebel leader and entire staff are now in Manila.

Funston employed a very clever ruse to reach Aguinaldo. His plan worked successfully with the result that the head and front of the insurrection is now where he will do no more harm to American interests.

Aguinaldo was captured Saturday, March 23. The gunboat Vicksburg, with Funston and Aguinaldo on board, arrived here this morning. Two weeks ago he started from Manilla with six veteran Americans and a number of native scouts, all of whom were selected for bravery and extreme knowledge of the country. Funston's plan was that after he and his party had landed as near as possible to the place where Aguinaldo was thought to be hiding, the native scouts were to pass themselves off as insurgents, who, having captured Funston and the other Americans, were conveying them to Aguinaldo as prisoners of war. When the supposed prisoners were brought in their alleged captors before Aguinaldo they were to suddenly appear in their true character, seize the wily Filipino and make their way back to the coast.

It seems that the bold and daring Funston has succeeded in carrying out his well laid plans, and accomplishing the most decisive stroke in the history of the Filipino insurrection.

AT IT AGAIN.

RESERVATION LOGMEN ARE CALLED TO HAULT BY AGENT MERCIER.

Cass Lake, March 26.—Capt. W. A. Mercier, Indian agent and superintendent of dead and down logging operations on the Leech Lake and Cass Lake reservations arrived here Saturday and immediately suspended all logging operations in the vicinity of Cass Lake. Nine camps in all were closed down.

It appears that loggers have violated their contracts, and, instead of cutting dead and down pine, according to law, they have cut a very large percentage of green pine. A settlement is pending and full market value will be demanded for all green timber cut.

IN THE BIG TRUST

STEEL COMBINE SECURES THE ROCKEFELLER INTRESTS IN MINNESOTA.

New Issue of Great Northern Stock to the Amount of $25,000,000—Result of the Grand Jury Investigation at Duluth—Oleomargarine Test Case Back to the State Courts—General State News.

New York, March 19.—J. P. Morgan & Co. have confirmed the report that all iron mines, railways and lake transportation lines owned by John D. Rockefeller are to be taken in by the United States Steel corporation. These interests include the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines, which concern has a capital stock of $50,000,000, of which $29,887,448.97 is outstanding. It was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey in 1893 to acquire and operate iron mines in the Mesaba range, Minnesota. The company owns extensive properties in this region and leases some of its mines to the Carnegie Steel company and other large steel manufacturers. It owns the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railway, extending from Duluth to Iron Mountain, and embracing about 130 miles of road.

The Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines has no direct mortgage indebtedness of its own, but the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railway has a bonded debt consisting of 1,100,000 first mortgage 6 per cent bonds due in 1922, $2,211,000 consolidated mortgage 6 per cent bonds in 1923 and $2,644,000 second mortgage 5 per cent bonds in 1918.

GREAT NORTHERN STOCK.

New Issue of $25,000,000 Goes to Stockholders at Par.

St. Paul, March 19.—The Great Northern official circular signed by J. J. Hill, announcing the terms of the issue of $25,000,000 in new stock, has been issued. The circular recites that the capital stock of the Great Northern will be increased to an amount of not less than $25,000,000 "for the purpose of "acquiring additional lines that will add more than five hundred miles to the railroads controlled by the company and to acquire control of the ocean steamships of the Great Northern Steamship company, of which two of very large carrying capacity, designed for the Pacific trade are now under construction at New London, Conn." The terms of issue of new stock are described thus:

"Stockholders will be entitled to subscribe for $25 of new stock for each share of their holdings of the stock now outstanding, payments to be made as follows: Twenty per cent each on May 27, June 25, July 25, Aug. 26 and Sept. 25. Four dollars per share will be credited upon each installment on account of the subscriber's interest in said bonds released to this company by the subscription.

RECKLESS AND EXTRAVAGANT.

Grand Jury Investigates the Poor Fund at Duluth.

Duluth, March 21.—The grand jury of the district court has made its report and finds that the poor fund has been expended in a reckless and extravagant manner. It recommends that Chairman Ole A. Berg of the poor commission be removed from office at once. It also recommended that W. M. Abrahamson be removed from office as fire commissioner on account of his method of dealing with the city in selling supplies; also that no more supplies be bought at his store. It is found that a big per cent of the increase of crime in Duluth is due to the practice of city authorities in allowing saloons to keep open after hours and on Sundays. It is found that several organized gambling houses exist in the city, and recommended that they be closed forthwith.

BACK TO STATE COURTS.

Case Involving Validity of Minnesota's Oleomargarine Law.

Washington, March 19.—Justice Harlan has handed down the opinion of the supreme court of the United States in the case of the State of Minnesota vs. C. N. Brundage. The case involves the validity of the Minnesota oleomargarine law but the opinion delivered did not go into that. Brundage had been tried and found guilty by a Minneapolis municipal court. Without appealing to the higher courts of the state Brundage carried his case to the federal courts on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus attacking the constitutionality of the law. The circuit court for Minnesota sustained his contention, but that opinion was reversed in this decision. Justice Harlan held that the proceeding had been irregular because Brundage had not exhausted his remedies in the state courts.

Hill's Yacht Goes to Baltimore.

New York, March 25.—James J. Hill's steam yacht Wacouta, which has been refitting in this port, made several trips to Sandy Hook during the day on trial and later passed out on her way to Baltimore. It is understood that her owner will make short cruises in the Chesapeake bay and in Southern waters.

Minnesota Commissioners Named.

St. Paul, March 19.—Governor Van Sant has named as Minnesota commissioners for the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo H. P. Hall of St. Paul, O. D. Kinney of Duluth and John Morton of Nicollet county.

ATTACK THE TRUSTS.

Duluth Ore Developers Want Legislature to Act.

Duluth, March 25.—Local owners of explorations and leases in Minnesota talk of agitating the state legislature with a view to having that body attack the United States Steel corporation. The feeling among these men is that the new trust is unfavorable to the development of Minnesota, especially toward new discovery in the ore fields.

This agitation will be along the line of compelling the corporation to restrict its Minnesota operations to what it may do in New Jersey, where it was formed. Its railways to the ore regions would not be allowed under its ownership in New Jersey, but they are an integral portion of the Minnesota combination. The steel corporation expects to get about two-thirds of its raw material in this state and is, without exception, the largest holder of ore lands in Minnesota.

REPORT IS ACCEPTED.

Reapportionment Bill Passes the Minnesota Legislature.

St. Paul, March 22.—The conference committees on the reapportionment bill reported to the legislature the result of their conference. This retains Redwood county in the new Seventh district and returns Waseca county to the old First district which remains as it has been for the past 10 years. Both houses accepted the compromise matter and the bill was passed as amended.

Under suspension of the rules the house passed Senator Sivright's bill prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine offered for sale and it goes to the governor for signature.

CHANGE IN ITINERARY.

President McKinley Will Probably Visit Twin Cities.

Washington, March 26.—President McKinley may change his itinerary and pay Chicago a visit during his return from the Pacific. Charles Truax, representing the National Business league, has called upon the president and extended an invitation to Chicago. The present plans of the presidential party are to pass overland to Duluth, whence journey East will be continued by the great lakes to Buffalo. It is probable, however, that the president will change his route and come home via St. Paul.

Doukobors Will Invade Minnesota.

Winnipeg, March 25.—Between 1,500 and 2,000 Doukobors, or Russian Quakers, who were brought out to Canada some years ago in order to escape alleged persecutions in Russia, will probably invade the states of Dakota and Minnesota as soon as spring opens. They are much dissatisfied with the civil and religious liberties accorded in Manitoba and the Northwest territories and have made, through their English-speaking leaders, open threats to leave the country and go south if they are not permitted to worship and live pretty much as they please.

Minnesotans Buy Timber Lands.

Tacoma, Wash., March 25.—The sale of fir and cedar timber lands of Southwestern Washington to Eastern lumbermen continues at a rapid rate. J. G. Lewis, a banker of Aberdeen, and John Anderson, a logger, have sold 1,120 acres of timber land located near Elma to James T. Barber of St. Paul for $16,800. The Weyerhauser Timber company is rapidly devoting its $2,000,000 of increased capital to the purchase of timber lands.

Greatsinger Succeeds Rossiter.

New York, March 21.—At a special meeting of the boards of directors of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Brooklyn Heights Railway companies, Clinton L. Rossiter presented his resignation as president and director of the two companies. The resignation was accepted and J. L. Greatsinger, president of the Duluth and Iron Range railway, was elected president and director to fill the vacancies caused by Mr. Rossiter's resignation.

Miller and Hardy Discharged.

Anoka, Minn., March 19.—Elmer Miller and James Hardy were in court during the day to answer to the second indictment charging them with the murder of William J. Wise. County Attorney Pratt rolled the case and on motion of G. H. Wyman, the defendants' attorney, the indictment was dismissed and the boys discharged.

Boom in Farm Lands.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., March 25.—Some idea of the way Red Lake county real estate is going can be had from the fact that in two deals recently consummated 10,000 acres were sold. One of the purchasers is Grant Van Sant, son of the governor, who closed a deal for 5,000 acres.

Burglars Secure $800.

Worthington, Minn., March 21.—The store of H. E. Torrence & Bro. of this place was entered during the night and $800 stolen from the safe, about $650 of it in cash and $150 in personal checks. The side door of the store was found open in the morning.

Killed a Marriage Bill.

St. Paul, March 19.—The senate killed the Chilton bill to prevent marriage of idiots, insane or epileptics and passed the bill for payment of Russell Sage's $10,000 claim against the former village of Reeds Landing.

Refuse New Zealand's Request.

London, March 26.—"The United States government," says the Washington correspondent of The Daily Express, "has refused New Zealand's request to reopen the question of permitting British steamers to trade between Honolulu and San Francisco."

EBENEZER SOCIETY.

The Ebenezer Young People's Society met at the church last Friday evening and a good program was rendered. The subjects for debate "Resolved that Minnesota should be a prohibition state" was agitated with great animation. It was very instructive, and both the affirmives and negatives defended their sides bravely. It was stated firmly by negative speakers that prohibition is a total failure in the state of Kansas and Dakota; And in those states were thriving blind-pigs, joints and boot leggers, that not a cent of revenue came into the state from the liquor license, and still it was freely dispensed, that we have the local option in our state, and can prevent the grating of liquor license where it agrees with the sentiment of the people, and that if they want it they can get it as long as it is manufactured on any place of the globe: That such law could not be enforced, if the majority of the people want the saloon, and a broad political view was lastly expounded. One of the affirmative speakers was absent, but as the society is fortunate to have members who are always willing to help the thing along, a capable debator present acted as substitute, and there flowed forth arguments in an oratorical style. Kansas is down south where all things rapidly decay: a prohibition law would keep better in the North: that the revenue from liquor license was burning in the hands of educators, as well as the state, and the saloon-keeper himself: that we can enforce the law against the will of the people, that liquor cannot any way so freely be had, for one has to be very well acquaintanted to get it: that the state has to spend the revenue on extra officers, prisoners and penitnries: that the manufacturing of liquor could not be prohibited on all parts of the globe for many medicines are compounded from alcohol, whiskey and brandy. Every sentence uttered was striking and decked with arguments. The decision rendered in favor of the negative side. The papers by E. Soderman and C. J. Larson were very good. It was truly said that we do not read one page in a book without learning some thing We are sure one cannot attend these meetings without knowing something new when he goes home, if he takes any interest in such work at all. Considering the number of members, the attendance has been deplorably small, noting the very few times some have attended the meetings, we must say that there is a lack of interest among the young people of our congregation, and can't say anything else about such non-attendant members than that they are utterly useless to our society, for the society could not exist if we all did likewise. Spare moments are gold dust of time, we can improve ourselves marvelously on them. The writer has never attended the society meetings without learning something and will have much to practice and learn there for years to come. Let us all wake up and know that we are not here only to dig in the ground and mingle with the dust, but that in the beautiful spring and summers of life, we should do as much as possible show ourselves in such gatherings, where our mind is broadened, where we mingle with each other and an ambition is encouraged to emulate the best. This life is a contest, whatever good can be rubbed into our minds and memory is certainly worth its while. Did you ever regret attending our society meetings?

Robert Berg went to St. Hilaire Thursday to look up employment.

Matt Skala was among the Red Lake Fallsites at John Judge's sale.

Spring is surely at hand when crows and geese make their appearance.

Miss Alfrida Lorentzson, who has been sick for some time, is improving.

Nils Person was a west side representative in St. Hilaire last Wednesday.

O. Brink and other St. Hilaire citizens attended the auction sale at Judge's Friday.

Robert Berg returned from St. Hilaire Friday, having secured a position as a carpenter for the summer.

J. P. Larson took a ride on the Woodmen's goat last Tuesday night in St. Hilaire. He reported a good time.

A step-son of Geo. Pfaff was here to visit relatives. He says he has not seen his parents for sixteen years.

Gustaf Johnson, of Sanders, returned last Wednesday from St. Peter, Minn., where he had been on a visit.

Rev. Sand, of Crookston, came on the train Monday to conduct service in the Sw. Luth. church that day.

A. M. Hanson has constructed a new power saw, and farmers are having their summer's wood sawed in a hurry.

The deacons of the Sw. Luth. church met last Wednesday to nominate a candidate for minister in that congregation.

John Walbeck who has been in St. Paul, being treated for a long standing disease, is reported to be on the road to recovery.

C. W. Johnson is taking shorthand by mail. C. W. is a very studious fellow and is getting along nicely with his new study.

C. Melin sentenced a mink for murder in the first degree, as he was proved guilty of assisting in killing a large number of chickens owned by him.

Joe Schusser, of Red Lake Falls, came up last Tuesday with Chas. Sandberg's horses, which he has been using for some time. He returned the next day.

Last Friday there was an auction sale, when John Judge disposed of all his stock and machinery. The crowd was larger than usual and everything was sold at a fair price.

The Ebenezer Y. P. Society will hold its business meeting April 5, when new officers will be elected for the next quarter. All members are urged to be at the church at 7. p.m.

Carl J. Larson left Tuesday for Crookston to consult a doctor. He returned Thursday morning. Carl is not very ill, but is not feeling perfectly well. We hope he will soon be restored to perfect health.

Our noted bachelor, John Naplin took a trip to Wylie Friday to market a load of wheat. Ascending a steep hill at Sutor's, the team took the liberty to make a pause nearing the top. The weight of the load served as motive power in an immediate descension, as neither hand nor air-brake were in the equipment, its first stop was against a barb-wire fence. John had to carry up part of his load, and when he went to fetch up his team, some pigs were testing the grade of John's farm product.

O. T. Romsos, our presperous Wylie merchant, made a trip to Crookston Tuesday and returned the next day.

August Hoppe, one of the most prominent farmers of Sanders, stopped in our neighborhood on his way from St. Hilaire Tuesday evening, to get his sleigh repaired sufficiently to get home. Mr. Hoppe had broken it on the way.

C. J. Larson has been elected justice of the peace in our town, and we take pride in giving you the information that Charley qualified for the office, and is prepared and capable of performing or officiating in all occasions—yea, even unto tieing the knot.

One of our pedagogues was telling, at the boarding house, how he, when on coming home late one night went searching in the dark for something to eat, mistook a bar of Lenox Soap for cheese and took a big bite and started greedily to chew, One can imagine the result. "Well," said the landlord, "I can match that story, I was going to take a drink of alcohol the other day, and by mistake drank down the contents of a gasoline bottle. My disappointment was greater than my surprise."

That we are living in a time when all kind of schemes are practiced to make money, may be felt even in our peaceful community. There has been a man around among us here, who has touched upon the cords of past memories among our farmers. Some have allowed him to record dates and many moments of experience so prominent in their minds. But, as he was driving his quil at a rapid rate, recording the words that came from one of our old tested farmers—words clothing the thoughts that were arising in his memory from the grave of the past, the farmer further expressed himself how interesting, enjoyable and entertaining it would be to thus view the panorama of one's past, as the "historian" said it would cost nothing. But before that man was through he proved that he was not out merely for his health and to serve the people, without any returns. This, he showed in a very clever way, which he intended was not to be noticed. He wrote a few lines on extra paper which he demanded should be signed as application for the book containing the history just written. The cautious farmer would not subscribe his name to anything without first reading carefully what it contained. Being thus careful he found out that he had been asked to sign an order for the book for which he would be called upon to pay a very extravagant price. It is said that many have been fooled in this. No matter how you spell your name or what you think about it, it is worth all you possess. Many in olden times never knew how to sign their own name. It would be better if those who sign so carelessly had never learned to write.

WYLIE FLOODED.

One day last week, the railroad ditch opened east, and a rapid stream of water gushed continually into the place. Having no outlet on the west, the ditches not being opened there, the entire Main St., was all under water. The post office could not be reached from the east side by foot, before bridging was made to a pile of rocks lying near. The water was rising for many days and the basement of the Red Lake Falls Milling Co's. elevater was getting a high mark of it. During the cold spell, the whole street was a mirror of ice. Wylie has for a long time been called a "mud-hole." We certainly are entitled to a graded street here, or at least some filling up where it is lowest.

OUR TRADE WITH CHINA.

Chinese matters are again almost monopolizing the attention of the administration, not so much on account of the dispute between the Russian and English troops at Tientsin over the possession of a railway siding, although it is fully recognized that in the present strained feeling among the powers in China only a spark is needed to start a conflagration that might startle the civilized world and make history for the entire century, as because of the failure of the attempt of indemnity to be demanded of China. Commissioner Rockhill, who is now the representative of the U. S. in the negotiations at Pekin, has made a full report of that failure, and has asked for new instructions so that he may be in a position to meet what may be proposed by the other powers. Those instructions are now being prepared by the administration and will be forwarded at once. The present deadlock of the powers in China is just what was predicted many months ago, and is probably what Li Hung Chang, that wily diplomat, has been working for from the first, with a hope that a wrangle among the powers would in some way be beneficial to China in the end.

Consular reports are beginning to furnish some idea of the enormous losses of Americans engaged in trade with China on account of the trouble in that unfortunate empire. A report from Consul Fowler, at Chefoo, giving a resume of trade conditions in North China, makes a bad showing, especially for the American cotton goods trade. Mr. Fowler says no other country's trade suffered as much as that of U. S., owing to the fact that the scene of strife covered practically the entire American field of trade. Consul Ragsdale, at Tientsin, makes a report of the same nature, and says the outlook is decidedly unfavorable. He says the country north of Tientsin, where the principal articles of export are produced, is overrun with ex-Boxers and ex-soldiers who have turned bandits, and that it is difficult for merchants to get goods out of or into the interior.

REAPPORTIONMENT SETTLED.

The reapportionment nut is cracked. The second conference committee held a session Friday afternoon and agreed on a compromise between the position taken by the house and that taken by the senate. The house members offered to accept half the Somerville amendment, the part leaving Waseca county in the first district. The senate members agreed to this, and Redwood county will stay in the seventh district.

The bill as amended divides the state as follows:

Fourth—Ramsey, Washington and Chisago. Population 211,610.

Fifth.—Hennepin. Population, 228,340.

Sixth—Benton, Cass, Crow Wing, Douglas, Hubbard, Meeker, Morrison, Sherburne, Stearns, Todd, Wadena, Wright. Population, 208,162.

Seventh—Big Stone, Chippewa, Grant, Kandiyohi, Lac qui Parle, Lincoln, Lyon, Pope, Redwood, Renville, Stevens, Swift, Traverse, Yellow Medicine. Population, 184,357.

Ninth—Becker, Beltrami, Clay, Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Otter Tail, Polk, Red Lake, Roseau, Wilkin. Population, 190,052.

The bill as amended by the conference committee, leaving Waseca county in the first district, was reported to both houses this morning and passed without a contest. It now only lacks the signature of the governor.

Andrew Carnegie has rewarded one of his employees for continued faithful service, by giving him a fortune. John Molamphy, master of transportation of the Homestead works, Pennsylvania, is the beneficiary. A few weeks ago he was presented with one hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of stock. When the Carnegie company was reorganized last spring, five million dollars of stock was held in the treasury to be presented to bright employees. The stock pays for itself out of its own earnings in a few years. Over a dozen of Mr. Carnegie's clerks have become independent by acquiring the stock because of their honesty, perserverance and their ability to create new values to the company. Mr. Carnegie's methods may be adopted to advantage by other millionaire employers, who wish to help their faithful, honest workers.

Senator Platt, of Conn., author of the Cuban amendment to the army bill, who is now in Washington advises patience on the part of our people in dealing with Cuban reluctance to comply with the conditions named in that amendment, and expresses the positive belief that after calm, mature and deliberate consideration the Cubans will be wise enough to accept the conditions offered for the withdrawal of American authority. Mr. Platt thinks the less public discussion there is in this country of the action or non-action of the Cubans the sooner the whole business will be settled. That may be true, but the press of this country is in the habit of discussing what it pleases and it isn't going to change that habit to hurry up action by the Cubans, or for any other purpose. It is a public matter, and as such will be discussed.

The death of Rev. W. W. Lewis, chaplain of the senate, left a vacancy which was filled by the selection of Rev. H. A. Chouinard, of St. Peter. Mr. Lewis stuck to his post in the senate after he was ill and his death is in part traceable to his devotion to duty.

The house has passed the senate anti cigarette bill, making it a misdemeanor to sell cigarettes or cigarette paper in the state. The governor will probably sign the bill.

The legislature will adjourn on April 12.

ALUM IN FOOD.

How Can the Danger be Avoided?

The reported cases of poisoning from the use of alum baking powder have awakened the public to the serious danger which menaces the health of the people of this country in the numerous alum powders which are urged upon consumers.

Generally, alum powders may be known from the price at which they are sold, or from the fact that they are accompanied by a gift, or are disposed of under some scheme. The alum powder costs but a few cents a pound to make, and is often sold at twenty or twenty five cents a pound; sometimes as low as ten cents.

It is impossible to name all the alum powders in the market, but any baking powder sold at a low price, or advertised as costing much less than the well known, high class powders, or accompanied by a present, or disposed of under some scheme, is of this class, detrimental to health and to be avoided.

These facts should incline consumers to turn a deaf ear to all opportunities to buy the inferior powders. The wise housekeeper will decline in all cases to take them.

Orvie C. Thovele has accepted a position in A. P. Toupin's realestate office. He is a crack baseball pitcher.

At Crookston tickets have been nominated by both republicans and citizens conventions for officers to be voted for on next Tuesday, April 2. The republicans named M. R. Brown for mayor; C. A. Hitchcock, alderman at large; John Sandberg, D. S. Chesterman, J. A. Wyond, W. E. Slocum and M. Sullivan, ward alderman. The citizens renominated N. Campbell for mayor, J. O. Sergent, alderman at large; J. E. Morrisey, J. F. Koelmel, P. J. Lachappelle, T. A. Harris and M. Sullivan for ward aldermen.

Bemidji has been afflicted during a portion of the winter with a concern under the cognomen of the "Empire Theatre." It has been the home of questionable vaudeville performances, fistic encounters, wrestling matches, etc. The new city council recently passed an ordinance taxing such concerns the knockout license fee of $150 per month, and if that sum does not cause the doors to be closed forever, the ordinance will undoubtly be amended and codified until the proprietors of the questionable joint will be glad to hie them hence to fields where they may be more welcome.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

Monday, March 18.

The Armstrong anti-wineroom bill intended to abolish winerooms, was amended beyond recognition and passed—75 to 5. Other bills passed were: Levying a state tax on all dogs; to label prison made goods; voting a medal to Miss Mae Aryall of Itasca Lake for heroism in saving a child's life at the risk of her own.

In the senate the day was devoted to general orders and a large number of bills were acted on. Among those recommended to pass were: The Rush "renovated butter" bill; to legalize the foreclosure of mortgages in certain cases, providing for the destruction of tax lists six years after levy.

Tuesday, March 19.

The Chilton bill, prohibiting the marriage of certain persons, was killed in the senate, only 29 votes being cast in its favor. The afternoon session was devoted entirely to the board of control bill but the debate had not concluded when the senate adjourned.

The house passed a large number of bills. Among these measures were the following: Providing for a constitutional convention, to increase the penalty for train robbers, making unlawful any advertising in the interest of marriage or divorce. The Peterson "mental anguish" bill was killed by an overwhelming vote.

Wednesday, March 20.

The house spent the day discussing the Jacobson bill to increase the gross earnings tax on railroads. The majority report of the committee recommended that the measure be referred to the tax commission, but a minority report favored immediate action. The measure was finally placed on the calendar. During the course of the debate Mr. Jacobson caused a sensation by alleging bribery on the part of the opponents of the bill. A committee was named to investigate the charges.

In the senate the board of control bill was discussed at length. So many amendments were offered that a special committee was named to straighten matters out and report the bill and amendments in tangible form. A bill making the divorce laws more stringent was passed. The senate adjourned early as a mark of respect for Chaplain Lewis, who died during the day.

Thursday, March 21.

The senate passed two anti-trust bills—Senator Daly's very stringent and farreaching measure and that of Senator J. D. Jones which extends the provisions of the present anti trust laws to corporations organized before its passage. The bill reducing the interest on debts for state lands from 5 to 4 per cent was also passed. Rev. H. A. Chouinard was elected chaplain to succeed the late W. W. Lewis.

The Halvorson anti-cigarette bill passed the house—72 to 30. It now goes to the governor. The railroad gross earnings tax bill was laid on the table after a hard fight and a committee was named to investigate the charges of bribery in connection with the measure.

Friday, March 22.

The board of control bill passed the senate as amended—30 to 25. As passed the bill provides that the new board shall have control of all charitable, educational and correctional institutions. The board is authorized to appoint a disbursing and purchasing agent at each of the institutions.

The Daugherty reapportionment measure was passed by both houses.

Under suspension of the rules the house passed Senator Sivright's bill prohibiting the coloring of oleomargarine. The Herbert bill prohibiting employers from deducting money from their employes' wages for insurance was recommended for passage after a hard fight.

Saturday, March 23.

The house adopted a substitute for the senate final adjournment resolution fixing the last day of the session on April 15. To this the senate disagreed and a conference was called for at which an agreement was reached fixing the date of adjournment for April 12. To this both houses agreed. The Hard oil inspection bill also secured the endorsement of both houses. It is effective in 1903. The county local option bill was killed.

Two bills regarding the Northern Pacific land grant dispute were introduced in the senate. If passed they will end the litigation. The Deming bill, providing for the parole of life convicts, was recommended to pass.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }
In Probate Court, Special Term, Feb. 25th 1901.

In the matter of the estate of Isidore Thorleault deceased. On reading and filing the petition of [illegible], executor of the estate of Isidore Thorleault, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead), of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell the real estate of Isidore Thorleault in said county.

And it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said Executor to pay said debts, legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 18th day of March A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any) there be, why license should not be granted to said [illegible] to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Gazette, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls Minn., the 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1901.

By the Court,
(Seal) J. T. KNIGHT,
f21-m14-4t Judge of Probate.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, containing power of sale, duly executed and delivered by Charley A. wounded the officer. The arrest was made without any resistance on the part of the miners who were at the end of the train. While that was going on Stuart prevailed on the men to bring back the engine and couple it on to the train again.

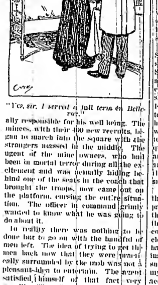
The wounded officer had been taken to the hotel, and Dr. Saxon had been summoned. Stuart assured the officer in command that he would be personally responsible for his well being. The miners, with their 400 new recruits, began to march into the square with the strangers massed in the middle. The agent of the mine owners, who had been in mortal terror during all the excitement and was actually hiding behind one of the seats in the coach that brought the troops, now came out on the platform, cursing the entire situation. The officer in command grimly wanted to know what he was going to do about it.



"Yes, sir. I served a full term in Bellevue."

In reality there was nothing to be done but to go on with the handful of men left. The idea of trying to get the men back now that they were practically surrounded by the mob was not a pleasant idea to entertain. The agent satisfied himself of that fact very speedily. The officers and troops climbed into the coaches again, and the train started off down the range. A mighty cheer from the miners went up as the train disappeared. The whole event had taken less than 20 minutes. To Stuart it seemed like an hour. He was growing old very fast since his father died and left him in possession of his millions.

But he thought to himself that he was at the very beginning of his problem, and every event complicated the entire situation. He could not see the outcome. The only thing his heart rested back upon was his newly found life, which even in this excitement proved to be the most triumphant part of his consciousness. In thinking it over afterward he recalled with particular pleasure the fact that at the very moment of his leaping in between the miners and the leveled guns he said to himself: "I am a disciple of Christ. If I die, I shall be with him in paradise."

He made his way through the different groups of miners now crowding into the square and went on into the hotel. He wanted to inquire about the officer. Andrew had already gone on before.

The landlord ushered Stuart into the room where the man had been carried. The doctor had just arrived.

Stuart went in, and the first person to meet him was Andrew. He had been one of the men to help carry the unconscious officer out the ranks. Kneeling by the side of the wounded man was the leader of the Salvation Army. She had at once done the right thing in her care of the case, and the minute the doctor saw it he growled out something about that being the proper treatment.

He quickly went to work and accepted the help of the young woman as a matter of course. Stuart and Andrew stood silently by, assisting a little as the doctor asked for things. "He'll never want to sit for his photograph again," remarked the doctor grimly, as he finally paused and rose to his feet after doing all in his power. "This strike is bringing me in a lot of unsolicited practice. I suppose I can send my bill in to the state for this case. But if the troops begin to fire into the miners I shall go bankrupt sewing them up and sawing off their heads and legs for nothing. Thank you, madam." The doctor turned to the figure in the Salvation Army costume as she stood calmly looking down at the still unconscious officer. "You're a good one to help. You have been a nurse or I'm mistaken."

"Yes, sir; I served a full term in Bellevue."

The doctor looked at her with added respect. "You have the touch of a lady," he said politely. That was the height of compliment from him.

"I am one," replied the young woman demurely. Stuart thought she smiled faintly. She had a naturally serious face, but at times it could be remarkably winning in its sudden lighting up of the personality.

The doctor coughed to hide his embarrassment at the reply and then said, "I should be glad to introduce you to these gentlemen here, lady," he added, with a ludicrous hesitation, "if I knew your name."

"I am Miss Dwight. I am with the army here for the present," she answered, with perfect self possession.

"This is Mr. Duncan, the owner of the Champion mines, and this is Mr. Burke, the minister of St. John's," said the doctor, turning to Stuart and Andrew.

She turned and bowed quietly, while the doctor busied himself with his patient again.

"You are Miss Dwight, the daughter of Allen Dwight?" asked Stuart eagerly. The minute he spoke he wished he could recall his words.

But the exclamation seemed to affect the young woman only for a moment. Then she answered, "Yes; Allen Dwight is my father." She added while a slight color swept over her pale face: "You played the part of a brave man today, Mr. Duncan. I want to thank you in behalf of the poor fellows who seemed to me so like sheep without a shepherd. How Christ would have looked on them with compassion!"

Her gaze was out of the window past Stuart, who was standing near it. The square was crowded with the men. Some one had gone up into the stand and was speaking. Stuart felt as never before what a sad and thrilling sight a great unguided multitude was. For the first time in his life he felt able to look at it through Christ's eyes. But he was also agitated over his meeting with Rhena Dwight. She had turned to the doctor and in a low tone asked a question. The doctor nodded his head, and she went out. She did not return, and Stuart, after seeing that everything possible was being done for the sufferer, started for home.

On the way he had leisure to recall the facts which the excitement of the past days crowded out of his mind: that Allen Dwight's daughter had some three years before while Stuart was in college surprised and astounded the society circle in New York of which she had been the leader by suddenly leaving her home and all her fashionable surroundings to enter the Salvation Army. He remembered what sensational accounts appeared in the papers. Above all he recalled vividly the effect the news had on her brother, who at the time was a classmate of Stuart. He could also remember talking it over with Louise when he came home for his Christmas vacation.

Louise was shocked as deeply as it was in her capacity to be shocked to think a girl who had such a career before her, gifted with such talents, musical and social, should give them all up to fling her life away in the slums over horrid, dirty, drunken, miserable people. "She must be crazy," said Louise. "Her father was right in saying, if the report was true, that Rhena never should come into his home again as his daughter." His aristocratic family connections were very deeply disgraced by the event. His own standing in society was under a cloud. He felt the shame of it with great bitterness and never alluded to it.

All this Stuart called up as he neared home. He had never met Miss Dwight before and knew nothing of her reasons for the complete change in her life. He wondered, thoughtfully if it had not been something like the experience that had come to himself that morning.

Louise met him with the news that his Aunt Royal, who had been expected on the noon train, had telegraphed that she had waited over a day on account of the troubles liable to follow the bringing of the troops. Ross Duncan's sister had planned for some time to come and make Louise a visit and be with her through the winter if Louise wished.

"Eric has been calling for you. He is very nervous. Life isn't worth living with all this excitement over these labor troubles!" said Louise sharply. "When Aunt Royal comes I mean to plan for something besides all this."

Stuart did not reply and went in to see Eric, while Louise walked into the parlor and began to thump the piano as hard as she could. She was angry with Stuart and vexed with everything in general.

"Well, old fellow," said Stuart cheerfully, "we had an exciting time, but no one killed yet, and I think the worst is over."

"Tell me about it." Eric tried to sit up a little and nervously moved his fingers over the bedclothes.

"That Salvation lass must be a brave one. Who did you say she was?"

"Miss Dwight. She has just come up here, I understand, within a day or two." And Stuart went on to tell Eric her story as he knew it. Eric listened with great eagerness. Then he inquired about the men; how they had behaved, what they were planning to do, what the next move would be, whether the men who had gone on down to the lower range would probably go into the mines or whether they would be prevented by the miners.

"I tell you, Stuart," said Eric after question and answer had been going for several minutes in this way, "I must get up out of this, and very soon too. The doctor can't keep me here two weeks, because I mean to be carried down to the square if I can't walk. Now is just the time when I ought to be with the men. If they once begin to break over the law the cause of labor will suffer a setback that it cannot recover from for years."

"That's true. But there is a lawless element already roused that is growing worse every day. If a gun had gone off this noon I doubt if a soldier of the entire number of troops would have left the spot alive. The men would have climbed over the dead bodies to beat the soldiers to pieces. I think I never came so near to seeing the claws of the wild beast in the mob in all my life."

"Ah," replied Eric softly, "I have seen them more than once. Heaven grant you don't see what I have." He referred to scenes which had occurred when he was a boy in the coal regions of England. Stuart had often talked them over with Eric.

"Amen," answered Stuart. He remained silent then, his thoughts busy with the events of the morning. He was casting about for a good opportunity to tell Eric his experience at the beginning of the day. In the midst of all the perplexing and complicated situation in which he was now placed Stuart went back repeatedly to his change of attitude toward all the facts of his own life. That must have been a tremendous event to hold so supreme a place in his mind as it did.

Just then Louise went by the door and called out, as she went on into the dining room, "Luncheon is ready!" Stuart had forgotten all about eating, but he left Eric to go in and keep Louise company.

All the time he was eating he felt that he must tell his sister the facts about his—what did he call it? The word "conversion" had always been distasteful to him, but what had happened to him? Something very remarkable and so remarkable that it seized him and held him in a loving and joyful grasp, making him feel that all other matters were as nothing compared with this. He was not of an emotional nature. His whole education and training were of such a nature that he had always prided himself on being a refined, self possessed man of the world, telling the truth, living purely, being strictly honest and brave, but without exhibition of passion or feeling, except at rare intervals when a strange, hereditary outburst would sweep away all traditions as if he were mad.

But now he felt as if a new passion had caught him up and held him; a new life swayed his whole being; he was calm, and yet he felt thrilled with this new existence. There was no yesterday any more. Everything was today and tomorrow. Jesus was the one great central, throbbing, pulsing, moving impulse with him. He was a new man. And yet men say, superficially, sometimes in these days, that the times of miracles are gone by. Is there a greater miracle in all the earth than when a human being like Stuart Duncan is born again, made a new man in Christ Jesus?

As soon as luncheon was ended Stuart had resolved what to do. He must tell Louise. There must be the truest and frankest understanding between them on this matter. It was too vital to be neglected or passed over or postponed.

"Louise," he said as they went into the drawing room together, "I want to tell you something, now we are alone."

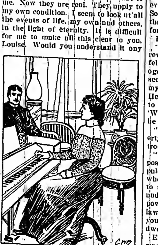
Louise did not reply, and Stuart went on, feeling the gap between his sister and this new life of his to be wider and deeper with every word he uttered.

"Early this morning I had a very remarkable experience," Stuart continued. "I had what seemed like a vision of my real life, and it was very distinct to me that all these years I had been neglecting the one most important part of my life." Stuart hesitated a moment as Louise sat looking at him in silent astonishment. "I have decided, Louise, that I must be a Christian."

There was an embarrassing silence. Louise colored and looked away from Stuart. At last she said in a low voice, "What do you mean?"

Stuart did not know what to say at first. He felt that Louise would not understand him, but he spoke with the directness and simplicity that seemed demanded by the occasion.

"I mean, dear, that I am going to live a new life, with God's help. I look at everything differently. I never used to think of Christ as anything more than a historical figure. Now he seems to me like a personal friend. More than that, he seems to be my own personal Saviour. I never knew before what the words 'saved' and 'salvation' meant to me. Now they are real. They apply to my own condition. I seem to look at all the events of life, my own and others, in the light of eternity. It is difficult for me to make all this clear to you, Louise. Would you understand it any better if I should use the old word 'conversion' and say I had an experience this morning that has converted me to a Christian life?"



Louise turned about on the piano stool and struck a few chords.

"No; I don't know that I would," Louise replied coldly. She had gone over to the piano and sat down on the stool facing Stuart, but not looking into his face.

"Can't you understand me, Louise?" cried Stuart. His disappointment was very great, although he had been prepared for something of this kind before he spoke.

"No, I don't understand, Stuart. It is very strange. You seem to think you haven't been a Christian all this time. You speak as if I wasn't one."

"Are you, Louise?" asked Stuart gently. But the question provoked her as he had not foreseen. He wished strongly afterward that he had not put it. It seemed as if he was judging her from his own Christian experience, not yet a day old.

"Yes, I am! What am I? A heathen?" Louise stamped her foot, as she always did when angry. Stuart saw that her thought of the word was not his. He remained silent, and Louise turned about on the piano stool and struck a few chords fitfully. Then she wheeled back and said bluntly: "What are you going to do? Join the Salvation Army?"

Stuart shrunk back as if from a blow. It was all so contrary to his experience that he was entirely unable to shape his speech as usual. He was silent until Louise repeated her question.

"I shall join the St. John's church. And I may join the army too. I understand people can do that without belonging to the ranks in one way."

Louise rose to her feet with a look of scorn that Stuart could not endure. "Well, father ought to be here to see all this! He would want to know if this is Stuart Duncan, his son."

"It is true he would not see the old Stuart Duncan," replied Stuart, with a noble dignity that even Louise could not help noticing, "but he would find a better one, I hope. Louise, dear, I wish you could understand just what I've felt. It is impossible for me to look on very many things as I did once. I want to say this to you now, so that you will not be surprised at certain events which may take place in the future."

"To what do you refer? To your joining the army? I suppose the leader is an attraction just now. I hear Miss Dwight has been sent up to take charge."

It was as cruel and harmful a thing as Louise could be guilty of. But she was stung into bitterness by many events of the past few days, and her selfish, narrow nature had more than once delighted to make Stuart suffer.

Stuart was pale to his lips. His Christian experience, his "conversion," as he could call it, was not more sacred to his thoughts than the memory of the army leader and the thought of her sacrifice and surrender of all that most young women count dear.

"Louise!" he cried, and if he had not been in the grasp of a better strength here he would have been swept into one of his old time bursts of passion. "Louise, you do not know what you wound. You must not harm my conception of Christ or cast any dishonor on his work in my forgiven soul. You have no right."

He spoke on sternly and yet with so much evident right defense of his inner motives that Louise was frightened. She might perhaps have asked Stuart's pardon, but he, fearing to prolong the conversation, went out of the room and in to see Eric. Louise, after standing idly by the piano a few minutes, at last went up stairs to her own room.

Stuart sat down by Eric and asked the nurse to leave them alone a little while. He was suffering from his interview with Louise, but he wanted to tell Eric his experience. It seemed to him necessary before he went on with his life another day.

In a few sentences he told Eric his experience of the morning. Eric listened in wonder. He was very weak. He grasped Stuart's hand and pressed it feebly when he paused in his narrative.

"I never had any such 'leading,' as our men call it. I joined the army because I believed it was the only kind of Christianity that can really help things much."

"But how is it, Eric? Do you feel a personal relationship to Christ as a Saviour?"

"Yes, I think I do. But it is not so plain to me as I would like."

"That is the most astonishing thing to me," replied Stuart thoughtfully. "You know I never had any idea of ever talking about salvation or a Saviour. You don't remember, do you, that we ever talked on this subject before?"

Eric shook his head.

"And yet, now," continued Stuart reverently, "I seem to feel as I never felt or expected to feel less than a day ago. I can't explain it, Eric, but Christ seems the most real of all realities in my life. I can put it in this way: Henceforth I do not feel able or willing to do anything without first asking, 'Would Christ approve this? Would he say, "Do it?"'"

"Does that apply to your use of property and money, and the present mine troubles?" asked Eric bluntly.

"Yes." The answer came with a positive conviction that thrilled the pale face on the pillow. "Yes; my whole life is changed. All my relations to my fellow men, all my possessions and their use, all that belongs to my powers of any kind, seem under the law of this new indwelling. Eric, do you believe in the fact of God actually dwelling in man?"

Eric did not reply at once. There was a thoughtful silence.

"Yes, I believe it. I don't see it very plain. But if you feel as you say you do it will change matters in the relations you bear to the men and all around."

"Of course. I don't see details yet, but I feel willing to walk where the light shines. Eric, old friend, life even under our present troublous conditions seems like a very great, grand thing in the now."

"I am glad for you," replied Eric simply.

Stuart saw that he was not able to endure much, and he called the nurse back soon after that and went out. But that brief communion did the two men much good.

It was now nearly 3 o'clock. Word came up to Stuart that the men who had been persuaded to leave had gone back on the first train east. There had been a great demonstration, and then the miners had disappeared, many of them going on down to the lower range to help the men there in their dealings with the remaining strangers.

Matters were quiet in Champion as the day wore on, and there was no news of an exciting character from below. The owners there had not tried to set the new men to work, but were evidently waiting for a large addition of the force to come in from the south and west. These would not pass through Champion.

Affairs were in this waiting condition the next day at noon when Stuart's Aunt Royal came.

She was a large, showy woman, a slave to society and a thorough woman of the world, a born diplomat and financier. She had very determined views of life and among them was the conviction that one might as well be dead as out of the fashion or out of society. She spoke of the people who were not in society as "the masses," the "common people, you know," whenever she mentioned them at all. She had inherited a large amount of money, a great deal of which was invested in tenement and saloon property in New York. This is a very plain and perhaps shocking revelation of Aunt Royal's main means of support, but it is a historical fact and goes with a biography of her person. Besides, who does own most of the saloon and tenement property of New York and get the rentals from it?

To sum up briefly, Aunt Royal was very much like her brother, the late Ross Duncan, with the exception of his gruff and hard manner of speech. Aunt Royal spoke very sweetly and gently always. A French revolution in New York would not have provoked a rough or elevated tone of voice from Aunt Royal. She had little education, as her father had been a market gardener in one of the city suburbs. It was there he had begun to make his money, and Aunt Royal as a girl had helped him, more than once driving a wagon load of vegetables and fruits into the city. She never spoke of that now.

The first word Louise said was, "Aunt, you have come to stay all winter, I hope?"

"I think so. Yes, I would be glad to escape from the whirl this winter for a change."

"We're having a little 'whirl' up here, madam," remarked the doctor, who had come up to see Eric that afternoon and was standing in the hall where Louise greeted her aunt.

"Ah, Dr. Saxon," said Aunt Royal, "I am delighted to see you again!" In reality she hated the doctor vigorously, and the doctor returned her feeling with interest. "You are having trouble up here, you mean? I suppose it will soon be quiet. These people will soon be driven to work again. They never make anything by these uprisings."

"No, ma'am, only work for the doctors," replied Saxon. He went into Eric's room, and Aunt Royal and Louise went up stairs.

"So you have one of these people in the house. Don't you consider that rather dangerous?" Aunt Royal said in her sweet, clear voice as she was going up the broad staircase with her niece.

Eric from where he lay heard every syllable distinctly. He had met Aunt Royal once, and the meeting was not a pleasant memory. He had never been able to keep from choking when he thought of the condescending air with which this woman had expressed herself to him on the occasion of his saving Stuart's life. It was very much as if he had been a Newfoundland dog and she had patted him on the head for pulling Stuart out of the water by the teeth.

"When do you think I can get out of here, doctor?" he asked almost roughly.

"Not for a week anyway. You're getting on well. Don't mind her. I'd hate to have the job of being her family physician. I don't believe she has any real heart. It's a piece of leather with valves, warranted to let just so much blood through, and only so much, every beat. She hasn't any more real circulating system than a frog."

Eric stared at the doctor. He had never heard the doctor at his very gruffest say anything so harsh. The doctor seemed ashamed immediately and tried to apologize by saying:

"I ought not to have said that, but I feel better for it."

Two days went by, and still the situation between the mine owners and the strikers remained nearly the same. The owners at the lower range had not yet succeeded in getting enough men in to go to work. Several of them who had gone on from Champion had been persuaded to leave. The troops were still at De Mott, and the speeches of the miners in their daily meetings at the park were growing more bitter against them. The wounded officer at the hotel was recovering. His friends had come up to take care of him, and the doctor thought he could go home at the end of the week. Andrew Burke had proved a delightful companion to the officer. He had moved some of his choicest roses down into the room and had himself proved the truth of the proverb, "A merry heart doeth good like medicine."

It was Friday night that the Vasplaines had invited Aunt Royal, Louise and Stuart to a quiet dinner at their house. Stuart did not want to go. He knew what the company would be, and he had no liking for the young Vasplaine who for a year or two now was evidently trying to win the favor of Louise. Stuart, even before the experience which made life a new thing for him, never had any fellowship except that of an acquaintance with Vasplaine, and he knew enough about him to dislike his immoral character and his general make up as a man.

The family was exceedingly wealthy, and next to the Duncans' their house was the finest in Champion. It was built at the other end of the valley toward the park. The elder Vasplaine had retired some years before. His brother and his son carried on certain lumber and copper industries south of Champion. They were not directly interested in the iron mines, except as they were involved in the general condition of business, all of which, of course, felt the effect of the strike. There was also in the family a daughter, Miss Una Vasplaine, a young woman about Louise's age. The girls had been playmates.

Stuart was sitting by Miss Vasplaine at this dinner, and the conversation was general all about him. He was just replying to a question put by his companion, and she had rallied him on his serious appearance. Miss Una was vivacious, a striking looking girl, and Stuart in the old days had always found her an agreeable talker. He smiled in reply to her question and was on the point of answering when the whole company received a shock that set the ladies screaming and the gentlemen starting to their feet in alarm.

The large dining room fronted on the veranda, and a magnificent plate glass window extended from the floor almost to the ceiling, looking out on the pine tree lawn. The night was clear and frosty. It was growing late in the season, and winter would soon set in; the ground was bare now and dry. The moon was just coming up over the Davis hill range.

Suddenly through this window a chunk of iron ore came crashing right over the table. It scattered the glass in every direction, crashed through the pendants of the electric chandelier and smashed into the mirror over the sideboard, knocking it into splinters, and then, falling down on the sideboard itself, broke the glassware and dishes right and left.

A chunk of iron ore came crashing right over the table.

The affair was so unexpected, it came so without warning, that the company was terrified and altogether shocked. Aunt Royal was the first to speak.

"That's the work of some of your precious strikers."

"I don't believe it," Stuart shouted. In his heart he cursed the saloon and all its great wickedness. He believed the hand that flung the ore was rum crazed.

The men all rushed out on the veranda, and the elder Vasplaine, thoroughly incensed at the outrage, ordered his horses out, and as soon as they were ready he and his brother started off down the road in pursuit. Word was sent to the police force in Champion of the affair. Stuart remained with the ladies for awhile, and then, as young Vasplaine volunteered to escort them home, he hurried down into the town to investigate the matter. He did not believe any of the miners would do such a thing. They had done enough that had proved the owners against them, but only when under the influence of drink. Besides, Vasplaine was not an owner now, although he had been years before.

Stuart found everything quiet in the town. Most of the miners were still in De Mott. It was murmured that a large load of men was coming in that night. He remained at the office a little while and then started out for home.

As he came out on the street he saw the Salvation Army. It was kneeling at the corner for its outdoor meeting just before going into the hall to hold its regular service. Rhena Dwight was kneeling right on the hard stones of the pavement offering a prayer. Stuart could not hear the words, but he could see the pale, earnest face. He hesitated where he was. He thought he would go on home. Then he thought he would go into the hall and see what kind of a meeting the army had. At last as the army rose and went up the street beating its drum he turned slowly and walked in the same direction. Just as he entered the hall he might have heard if he had not been too absorbed in where he was going a sound borne over the frosty ground and through the clear mountain air from the direction of De Mott. It was the sound of thousands of feet striking the earth and coming toward Champion.

CHAPTER VI.

A MEMORABLE NIGHT.

The Salvation Army hall was an old storage room which had once been used for miners' supplies. It seated about 400 people. There was very little furniture in it except the wooden chairs and two box stoves, one at either end. A flag was draped across one corner.

Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N.C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occassion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in both cases. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he had suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with sever pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. For sale by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

SEED WHEAT

We have selected some very choic seed wheat, that we will sell or exchange. We have both pure Scotch Fife any Blue Stem, and it is free from all foul seed, cleaned ready for a seeder. This wheat was raised in the bottom lands near the Red River of the North, and is about as fine a sample of wheat as we have ever seen. We have tested samples of the wheat that has been damaged by rain and find that about only forty of fifty per cent of it will grow, and when it does grow it makes a very puny and inferior straw. As a matter of fact there are very few farmers who appreciate the value of a change of seed. They will go on year after year seeding the old, run out, cockly seed, when a good strong seed gives them from 2 to 3 bushels per acre more and it does not cost any more to plow, harrow, seed or harvest, and they would have a good seed wheat of their own the following year. Sample of this seed wheat can be seen at our office or at the Crompe Elevator.

VIC'S LETTER

WRITES A LETTER TO THE GAZETTE ON WASHIMGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

TOOK THE LETTER THIRTY-EIGHT DAYS TO MAKE THE TRIP

Calamba, P. I., Luzon Prov.,
Feb. 22, 1901.

Editor Gazette,—

This being a legal holiday for us, I take pleasure in writing a few lines to The Gazette.

Our work here is of considerable interest to both Americans and natives. The natives are employed here to the number of some five or six hundred. Most of their wages in my opinion go to aid the insurrection for only a day or two ago there was found, near the American Soldiers' commissary in this town and not 200 yards from our quarters, a lot of sugar, rice, salt and tobacco stored in a building said to be an insurgent's commissary of subsistance. The whole was confiscated and teams are still hauling it away and storing it elsewhere. The progress on our road is very slow, but the work to [illegible] is first class—a rock bed with sand and gravel surfacing. The rock is very scarce and is secured by blasting with dynamite in a canyon 200 feet below the level of the road, then hoisted up by means of a derrick.

From this canyon the water comes for supplying, on the Spanish system, the waterworks for this city, four miles to the west. Four miles from the town a dam was made that furnishes a forty-foot head of water and a canal was dug alongside of the canyon to bring the water through to the ditches on the sides of the streets of the city and thus the streets are watered every morning during the dry season without extra cost. The water flows through rock canals on all the streets of the town, and is used for washing, drinking, etc., and besides offers a fair fire protection. The dam is said to be about 100 years old and to have cost half a million dollars. It was built by Leo Rezardo a once noted Spanish priest. It is a great piece of work and must have been a hard one on the poor natives who did all the work.

Well, readers, this is all for this time. I am as ever.

Vic.

Do You Know

That sulphur and lard rubbed on any portion of the skin will cure it and allay all itching and burning?

That spirit of camphor rubbed upon a pimple or cold sore as soon as they appear will scatter them at once?

That stains caused by water inside of baths may be removed by rubbing with dry salt?

That before scalding milk you should rinse out the pan with a little cold water, as this will prevent the milk from burning?

That when boiling onions it is a good plan to change the water once or twice? This makes the vegetable more wholesome.

That hard water becomes nearly soft by boiling?

How To Treat Your Guests.

Remember, there is such a thing as overdoing the attention paid a guest. Do not feel that you must be forever at her elbow; do not think it necessary to plan something for every minute of the day. Nothing is more annoying. People, even when they are visiting, like to have moments to themselves. They like to go to places where they feel at home, and no woman feels at home if her hostess is continually at her hand and suggesting things for her amusement; nor does it conduce to her comfort if she feels that the whole household has been turned upside down because of her coming.—Alice I. Eaton in the April Woman's Home Companion.

Gooding Mill Sold.

On Saturday Chas. N. Bourdon and Mike McNamara purchased the Gooding mill property, including the magnificent water power and plant. Just what the gentlemen will do towards developing the property is not known, but they are contemplating the feasibility of moving the mill up "on the hill" and running it by electricity.

After Long Debate.

St. Paul, April, 3—The house, after a long debate, has passed the express company gross earnings bill, compelling the companies to pay to the state 6 per cent on their gross earnings in lieu of all other taxation.

WAYS OF TWO CHIEFTAINS.

Roberts and Kitchener, Heads of the British Army, Contrasted by a War Photographr.

A photographer who went to the front on behalf of the leading illustrated journals and has just returned related an anecdote the other day which very aptly illustrates the different characters and methods of those two great English generals, Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, says the London Free Lance. He (the photographer) was provided by his employer with a special tarpaulin-covered cart and a couple of mules for the transport of his apparatus, and, needless to say, the name and style of his paper was writ large all over it. During those fierce days at Paardeberg preceding the surrender of Cronje there was a big run on the ambulance wagons, of which, owing to the rapid British advance, there were none too many. Proceeding cautiously one day with his cart and mules to a spot favorable to snapshotting a few pictures, the artist was suddenly confronted by an orderly who signed him to stop and spoke as follows: "Lord Roberts presents his compliments and would be glad of the immediate loan of your cart for a couple of hours to convey a wounded trooper to the rear."

Of course there was only one possible answer to such a request. The photographer hastily climbed down and evinced in the rapidity with which he undid his tackle how much real pleasure it gave him to comply. But that was not all. At the expiration of the two hours the orderly again galloped up and said: "Lord Roberts presents his compliments and would be glad if you would extend the loan of your cart for a further two hours." Absolutely flushing with pleasure, the artist could do nothing but blurt out his readiness to lend his cart to so courteous a commander for just as long as he should be pleased to retain it. Promptly at the expiration of the time named, however, the cart and mules were brought safely back, along with an expression of thanks from the commander in chief for the assistance rendered him.

But now mark the difference in the case of "the man of iron." The very next day a precisely similar emergency arose. This time, however, Lord Kitchener himself rode up, accompanied by a troop of lancers. Acting evidently upon orders just given, two of the troopers sprang from their saddles, one of them seized and held the mules and the other proceeded with the utmost dispatch and without so much as a look at the astonished artist to undo the fastenings at the back of the cart and unload the tackle. "What is it, my lord?" gasped the photographer, helplessly, from the box seat. "Quick, man, get down and lend a hand. Sorry, but we must commandeer you for ambulance." was the reply he received. And before he could quite realize the situation the two mules had been "outspanned," his traps strewed about the ground and his cart attached to two mounted troopers and was thundering over the veldt. As to when, where or how it would be returned to him was left entirely to his imagination, as Kitchener and his staff immediately galloped away without vouchsafing a word.

Finnish Immigrants.

Of the 6,753 Finns who came to this country last year only 17 were refused admittance, only 62 were unable to read and write, and only 14 were said to be in danger of becoming public charges.—N. Y. Sun.

THE HALVERSON & RICHARDS LOGGING ROAD TO BE EXTENDED.

OBJECT IS TO DIVERT THE PINE SUPPLY FROM RED LAKE, SOUTH.

The Red Lake Transportation company, a corporation largely represented by Halvorsen & Richards, the railroad contractors, has sold its railroad in Beltrami county to the Northern Pacific.

The Red Lake line, starting from the lake, runs towards the Minnesota & International in a southeasterly direction, and will make a connection with that road at some point not yet determined upon. The Minnesota & International is a branch of the Northern Pacific which is being extended northward from Bemidji a distance of 25 miles, the terminus of of this season having been fixed at Blackduck. This line is under construction by Halvorsen & Richards.

The line from Red Lake which has been sold to the Northern Pacific is a logging road about twelve miles long and its extension to the Minnesota & International branch will put a large section of country in direct communication with Brainerd, and consequently with Minneapolis. The road has important logging contracts, and will handle about 15,000,000 feet this year for Minneapolis concerns. The purchase gives the Northern Pacific a line to Red Lake, where a boat is in service to transport freight and passengers to the west side of the lake.

Desperate Efforts to be Made.

St. Paul, April 3.—The forces of the opposition to the Dunn direct primary law have been marshalled and one final effort will be made to either kill the bill or emasculate it until the best provisions have been set aside and it is in such shape that one trial will be enough to compel its killing at the next session of the legislature.

Later.—The bill has passed and the obnoxious amendments fortunately were not let in, so the law will be in good shape for a fair trial.

New Board of Control.

St. Paul, March 3.—There seems to be every probability that the appointments on the new state board of control will be C. A. Morey, William E. Lee and S. W. Leavitt, the members of the commission who investigated the boards in other states and made the favorable report on the bill to the governor.

Still in Doubt.

St. Paul, April 3.—One of the most interesting bills before the legislature this session was the Umland divorce bill. This bill provides that no divorced person shall marry within six months of the time that the divorce is granted. A number of interesting arguments have been the result of efforts to push the bill through.

Large Batch Introduced.

St. Paul, April 3.—Monday was the last day to introduce bills and a large batch of them were put in. More than 1,000 bills altogether were introduced in both houses.

CREAMERIES.

ONE OF THE MAIN FACTORS IN THE PROSPERITY OF MINNESOTA.

One of the most potent influences that have been at work bringing prosperity to Minnesota is the creamery industry. Many a farmer who used to buy his groceries "on tick" now pays his bills with cash or bank checks. Formerly a cow was valuable in so far as she proved her ability to raise "steers;" now there is another factor and she must also be able to place a creamery check into her owner's hands. Five years ago there was hardly a creamery in the state; today there are plants in nearly every community. When a man can get a $35 income from a $45 cow, he must make a little money in the deal, and that is just what many of them are doing now. Every new settler makes the old ones, who have been spreading out over the whole area, draw in. The Red Lake Falls creamery will soon open for the season's run. There is every prospect of a profitable season. New members are joining the association every day.

AN ACCESSION.

To the Ranks of Crookston's Professional Men, Is Attorney R. M. Hayes.

A Times representative called on Attorney R. M. Hayes, who recently came here from Blue Earth City to establish himself in a practice of law, and found him comfortably located in an elegant suite of office rooms above the Merchants Nat'l bank. The rooms have recently been remodeled and newly decorated, and make one of the most complete and attractive office suites in the city. Mr. Hayes is not a novice in the practice of law, but has had five years' experience and left a good business, including several important cases in district court in southern Minnesota to cast his lot in Crookston.

"That country," said Mr. Hayes, "is getting too slow and conservative for a man with energy and young blood in his veins. I am satisfied that the great Red River Valley, where marvelous growth and development is the order of the day and will be for years to come, offers a broader field and larger inducements for the energies of a progressive man in any profession.

"I did not come to Crookston because I thought my services were specially needed here, nor because I had no practice in Faribault county. I am simply correcting the mistake I made in locating in southern Minnesota five years ago, where the people have settled down to the staid old New England style of doing business, instead of coming at once and casting my lot with the hustlers in the Red River Valley."

Mr. Hayes' forte is in conducting district court cases, and he will make a specialty of that branch of the law also of the law of real property. The Times confidently expects to see Mr. Hayes take a leading position at the Polk county bar.—Crookston Times, March 25.

Helm & Berthon.

On Monday Joseph Helm sold to L. P. Berthon a half interest in his business, including real-estate and stock. Mr. Helm has been in business in Red Lake Falls for nearly nineteen years, and is regarded as one of our strongest and most responsible business men. Mr. Berthon has been a resident of our city for about five years. He owns the old LaBissoniere farm, and has taken an active interest in the movement to locate the creamery here, and in all matters tending to agricultural advancement and economic methods in farming. The firm name will be Helm & Berthon, and we predict for them a prosperous career.

Easter Sunday.

The long Lenten vigil of forty days is about over. This is "Holy Week" and the climax in the commemoration of the passion is brought about on Good Friday. Easter Sunday falls on next Sabbath, and the event is being anticipated the world over with expectancy. This year our people have the opportunity of buying fine potted and cut flowers from the ladies of the Presbyterian church, who have on sale at the post office a magnificent collection.

WALLERT EXECUTED

MURDERER OF WIFE AND FOUR STEPCHILDREN HANGED AT HENDERSON.

Long List of Appointments Made by Governor Van Sant—President Northrop a Commissioner to Attend the Congress of American States. Minnesota Foresters, at Duluth, Elect Officers—State News in General.

Henderson, Minn., March 29.—Shortly after 1 a. m. Franz Theodore Wallert was hanged in the courtyard of the county jail in this city for the murder of his wife and four stepchildren on ... 21 last.

Wallert approached the scaffold without show of fear, the noose was quickly adjusted, the drop sprung and 13 minutes later his lifeless body was cut down and placed in a coffin. His neck was not broken by the fall and he died of strangulation.

The condemned man spent his last evening chatting with his brother-in-law and the death watch until about 10 o'clock. He then intimated that he was sleepy and thought he would lie down for a nap. He lay down on the couch in his cell, but he could not go to sleep. In a few moments he arose and resumed his conversation. He was in a particularly vivacious mood and laughed and talked with his brother-in-law and sisters. He joked with his visitors as merrily as though the day of his death were many years distant.

From the first to the last he has been stoically indifferent to his impending fate, and, if he has felt the canker of remorse, he has not given it utterance in words. The only interest he has shown in his execution was when he asked the sheriff to be allowed to see the gallows upon which he was to be executed.

MANY PLUMS DROP.

Governor Van Sant Sends in a Long List of Nominations.

St. Paul, March 30.—Governor Van Sant has sent the following nominations to the senate which immediately confirmed them:

Surveyor general logs and lumber, Seventh district, A. D. Stevens, Crookston, reappointed; Nels H. Hanson, Anoka, insane hospital trustee; Chris Arundson, St. Peter, member of the board of charities and corrections; Judson N. Cross, Minneapolis, to represent State Forestry association on state forestry board; M. N. Williams, Little Falls, to represent State Horticultural society, and Greenleaf Clark, St. Paul, to represent State Agricultural society on same board; Charles L. Pillsbury, municipal electrical inspector for Minneapolis; N. Lindquist, St. Paul, master horseshoer, on horseshoers' board of examiners; V. M. Bayless, Minneapolis, on state board of inspections of flax, hemp, etc., on which Dr. O. C. Strickler will represent the state university regents.

State board of equalization vacancies: Second district, Joseph McKibbin, St. Paul; Fourth district, Emerson Cole, Minneapolis; Sixth district, Nels J. Nelson of Watonwan county; Seventh district, C. M. Sprague, Sauk Center; Eighth district, Fred Greiner, Chaska; Tenth district, O. G. Langer, Houston; Twelfth district, I. L. Filley, Louisberg; Fourteenth district, N. S. Gordon, Crookston; Sixteenth district, G. C. Thorp, Hancock; Eighteenth district, Daniel Anderson, Cambridge.

NORTHROP ON A COMMISSION.

President of Minnesota University to Attend International Congress.

Washington, April 2.—The president has appointed a commission to attend the international congress of American states to be held in the City of Mexico some time this year. The Bureau of American Republics arranged for such a congress some months ago with a view to drawing closer together the republics of North and South America and congress made an appropriation in the sundry civil bill to provide for the necessary expenses of delegates representing this government.

The president has selected as delegates Professor Cyrus Northrop, president of Minnesota university; Henry G. Davis of West Virginia, William I. Buchanan of Iowa, Charles M. Pepper of the District of Columbia and Volney W. Foster of Illinois. There will be no salaries attached to the office. It is purely honorary, but the expenses of the delegation will be paid. The date of the congress has not been fixed, but it is expected that it will be called some time next fall or winter.

FORESTERS CHOOSE OFFICERS.

Independent Order for Minnesota Meets at Duluth.

Duluth, March 29.—At the annual meeting of the high court of the Independent Order of Foresters for the jurisdiction of Minnesota, the following officers were elected: H. W. Cheadle, high chief ranger; S. A. Kemp, junior past high chief ranger; A. P. Peterson, East Grand Forks, high vice chief ranger; Dr. W. W. Routh, high secretary; J. D. McHall, high treasurer; Dr. I. T. Burnside, high physician; L. E. Gosaman, Crookston, high counselor; George E. Wyckwire, high chaplain; Thomas Hancock, high conductor; H. H. Buzzell, Mille Lacs, high senior woodward; W. W. Hoopes, high marshal; K. C. McKenzie, high senior beadle; H. C. Brown and F. H. Lounsberry, high auditors, and Frank L. Young, high journal secretary. W. A. Hicken was elected representative to the supreme court, which meets in Los Angeles in 1904.

EXPERIMENTS IN FLAX.

Duluth Publisher Trying to Improve the Yield in the Northwest.

Duluth, March 28.—Charles H. Thornton of this city, publisher of The Daily Commercial Record, is trying to introduce Argentine Republic flax seed into the Northwest. Last year he sent for samples of seed from Bombay, Calcutta and Argentine Republic, and had them sown in North Dakota. The Argentine lot amounted to about 15 bushels. The Bombay seed brings a higher price than any other in the world, but it did not thrive in the North Dakota soil. The same was true of the Calcutta seed, but the Argentine seed all showed fine results and produced much better flax than that raised from the Northwestern seed. These investigations led Mr. Thornton to make an attempt to introduce a larger amount of the seed this year, in fact to lay the groundwork for the introduction of the seed generally throughout the Northwest. Some time ago he arranged with a Buenos Ayres seed man to select seed for him, and in a short time he will receive about 8,000 bushels of Argentine seed. Practically all of it is already sold.

With reference to the seed used last year, McCabe Brothers, large farmers at Glasston, N. D., said of the crop: "We think .. will average from five to eight bushels more per acre than the common seed."

The experiment is creating much interest among the elevator and flax seed interests here.

MOVEMENT OF SETTLERS.

Thousands of Immigrants Are Passing Through St. Paul.

St. Paul, March 29.—Five trains were required to handle the movement of home-seekers Tuesday. The Northern Pacific and Great Northern sent their coast trains out in double sections, and the Soo was well loaded with colonists for North Dakota and the Canadian Northwest. Wednesday the traffic was still heavier and the equipment of the coast lines were taxed to the utmost.

Tuesday night's trains from the south brought in several hundred excursionists from Michigan, Illinois and other points in Wisconsin. All of them were taken out Wednesday morning.

FREIGHT RATES RAISED.

Lake and Rail Tariff Advanced Between New York and the West.

Duluth, March 31.—Word has been received here that an advance of 5 cents a 100 on first class freight from New York to Duluth or St. Paul has been agreed upon by lake and rail lines. The proposed schedule is now under consideration by trunk lines. There is also an increase of 4 cents in second class, 3 cents in third, 2 cents in fourth and fifth and 1 1-2 cents in sixth class merchandise. The contemplated increase is taken to mean that a heavy westbound traffic is expected this year.

GOES TO THE GOVERNOR.

Board of Control Bill Through the Minnesota Legislature.

St. Paul, March 28.—The board of control bill has at last gone through both houses and will be sent to the governor for approval. The conference committee recommended that the house concur in the senate amendment and when this was reported to the house that body adopted the report and after an hour's debate finally passed the bill, 86 to 23. As passed it places all state institutions except the Soldiers' home under the supervision of the newly created board of control.

Dr. Pierce Found Guilty.

Duluth, March 30.—Dr. Thomas J. Pierce, a medical specialist, has been convicted of having performed a criminal operation. When he heard the verdict read he reeled and fell in a faint. Physicians were called and they had considerable difficulty in reviving him. He was sentenced to Stillwater from St. Paul in 1893 for a similar offense in which the woman died.

Thousands of Fish Suffocate.

Prior Lake, Minn., April 2.—Thousands of fish have been smothered during the last two winters in the lakes of Scott county and should there be no increase in the water supply the next six months the chances are that anglers will have either to lay aside their rods or seek new grounds.

Big Railroad Deed Filed.

Pine City, Minn., March 28.—A deed conveying from the St. Paul and Duluth railroad to the Northwest Realty company all its property between the Twin Cities and Lake Superior has been filed with the register of deeds. The consideration is $3,500,000. The revenue stamps attached amounted to $3,300. This is the largest transaction ever filed in this county.

Oldest Traveling Man Dead.

Faribault, Minn., March 27.—Lauren S. Pease died here of apoplexy, aged 74. He was an old and prominent resident, having come here from Ohio 44 years ago. Mr. Pease was said to be one of the oldest commercial travelers in the Union.

Are Presidential Postoffices.

Washington, March 27.—The following fourth class postoffices will be advanced to the presidential class on April 1: Hubbard and Winfield, Ia., Republic and Thompsonville, Mich., Cass Lake, Minn., and Glenwood and Kiel, Wis.

To Increase Gross Earnings Tax.

St. Paul, March 29.—The house by a vote of 78 to 36 passed the Jacobson bill for a constitutional amendment raising the rate of the railroad gross earnings tax from 3 to 4 per cent.

THE EAST AND THE WEST SIDES.

To the north of our little burg there is a progressive settlement, which extends over an area of many square miles. The homes and whole farms show a lead in advancement. The great majority of the people, strong, sturdy and enterprising, were a score of years since immigrants from the prosperous northern monarchy of the Scandinavian Peninsula, and their language echoes from the rills, lakes and valleys to the east of the majestic Scandinavian mountain range. These people leave steps wherever they go, which nothing can efface—industrial developments take their full course wherever they alight. Churches and schoolhouses crowd in their wake. They, as a people, may look back on the early history with delight, and read with pleasure of their ancestors—the passengers of those two historical ships, "Kalmar Nyckel och Fogel Grip," that came plying the billows of the beautiful Delaware one foggy day in March, 1638. Their first appearance here was like that of friends, and meeting this country's native inhabitants, they dealt with them in a manner always to avoid a bloodstain on their banner.

Here, in our own peaceful environment, we see signs or tracks probably from a glaciel period—a grade formed by nature's forces, which now has furrows, deep from travel of old. As we live in the community for a while we learn that not only does that grass covered grade serve as a high graveled road, which turns travelers' wheels from far north to our trade center, Wylie, but it is also looked upon as a dividing line between two sides—the East and the West. With such a dividing parallel here, and the settlement being thus cleft, the people, young or old, point out themselves as East siders or West siders.

A few years past the dividing line was closely drawn, but of late there has been a commingling and a growing tendency to get together. But even yet the two sides have their strong individualisms, and there is a peculiar but intense loyalty felt by each citizen for his "side."

No land is more sought, more prosperous, or gives more privileges to the people than does America.

But the different people of various nations, though they love America, love still their native land. So does also the East sider or West sider like the best his own side: he feels most at home there: he will adhere to its habits and modes of work, costumes and characteristics. It has been suggested that the people of this country should not forget their mother country, but should love it as a mother, while they love this country as a wife. Whether the West or East siders here, loves the other side at all is hard to say; but we are positive that if they do, they love their own the best, be it as mother or wife. They each ought to be glad that they now mingle with each other; but the West or the East, each know their own people the best. The two sides have in their endeavors been separate. There have been two divisions for the sewing societies, the quilting bees and all the social functions, and if one goes to visit the other side at such occasions, that person feels a stranger there. But the people are, as a whole, industrious, and the country shows it. Such settlements stand as an ornament to our land. Our country wishes for many such, for the stars and the stripes to wave over many such free citizens, who use their freedom right, and their opportunities to the best, and save no effort to accomplish their work, and make the most of it.

WYLIE BREVITIES

Peddlers come around, one every other day.

David Soderman visited RedLake Falls last Sunday.

Nils Johnson transacted business in St. Hilaire Thursday.

Albin Erickson was a Bray representative here Wednesday.

Otto Ortloff made a business trip to St. Hilaire Saturday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Claus Adolphson, March 29.

Alfred Lindquist and sister made a trip to St. Hilaire Monday.

Rev. Mattson returned to Winnipeg Tuesday, with his family.

Claus Lorentzson was a business caller in the Saintly City Thursday.

O. P. Johnson, of Bray, transacted business in our little town Wednesday.

S. A. Swanson was seen at Wylie last Wednesday, taking care of landseekers.

John Jacobson came up from Crookston Saturday to visit relatives in the country.

Miss Betsy Johnson returned home last Thursday from a short visit in Crookston, and will spend Easter here.

Thom Hennesy is building a new granary. He is evidently looking forward to a big crop, judging from the size of it.

A. M. Hanson was sawing wood last week at Wylie with his new power saw. 15 cords of wood per day is the capacity.

Charley Anderson, a noted farmer of Bray, has been passing through our neighborhood with loads of lumber from St. Hilaire.

And now they want to sell our town a new grader. We were highly taxed in paying for the old one. The names on the petition are mostly those who pay little taxes. Those with more real estate and property are thoughtful in their expenditures.

FINE LINE OF BUGGIES.

If the fine weather keeps up seeding may be begun this week, as the high land is dry as soon as the frost is out.

O. T. Romsos, our prosperous Wylie merchant, turned out to attend the services held in the Sw. Luth. church last Monday.

P. V. Sandberg and our highly esteemed bachelor, Charley, interviewed friends and business men at the county seat last Tuesday.

Otto Ortloff drove to Red Lake Falls Saturday for a doctor for his brother, Willie; but the doctor came too late. The sufferer had passed away.

Cattle buyers are around. They like to get yearlings, but the farmer knows that he can earn the money himself by keeping them till they get older.

Miss Alfrida Swenson, of Minneapolis, who is teaching school in Red Lake Fake Falls, came up Saturday to spend her Easter vacation with J. P. Larson's.

John Malmquist of St. Hilaire, has been repairing his barn on his farm, which was damaged during the storms last winter. John is having bad luck with this building. In the cyclone on Aug. 4th, it was broken into splinters. Last fall money and time was spent to have it rebuilt.

Willie Ortloff has been seriously ill with inflammation of the bowels, and death had been expected for the past week, when doctor gave up hope for recovery. The end came last Saturday. Deceased was in the prime of youth aged seventeen, a very nice boy and liked by all. He is mourned by father, mother, four sisters, and six brothers, of whom two brothers and two sisters were in Dakota and Mallory at the time of his death. The remains were interred in the German cemetary Tuesday.

Y. P. Society will meet in church on Good Friday at 7 P. M. Swedish program and election of officers. All Welcome.

Oscar Carlson, a model farmer of this vicinity has broken the record of this settlements' history, for last Friday, he was out mowing hay. Oscar sympathized with his horses and cattle, getting short of fodder, thought it better for them to get the grass in the barn, than finding it for themselves on the prairie. Mr. Carlson has a good deal of grass on the farms he rents, but being very busy last summer, he found no time to cut it. We could hardly believe our ears when we heard the strange sound of a mower at this time of the year. But it is a winner.

Last week Monday Rev. Alex Sand, of Crookston, conducted service in the Sw. Luth. church here, and delivered a striking sermon, in which he illustrated the true character of man. He dwelt principally on the subject: "Christ before Pilate." Pilate was considered as a representative of mankind. Much has been expressed about Pilate, bad and worse, but men today are no better than he was; Pilate was a coward, he found fault with Christ but was afraid of the people to act in accordance with his own judgment. There are many cowards today. Pilate was cruel, and allowed punishment to be inflicted on Christ before he was convicted; the people of today are savage and cruel, in midst of civilization. Pick up the newspapers and read of the barbarous acts committed by civilized men. Read of the inhuman cruelty at Leavenworth, Kansas, and many places in southern states, where men, without even being tried, are taken and dragged by a furious mob, to an iron pole, and chained to it. Wood is piled around him and oil thrown over it. Fire being set to it, people gather around the helpless man in his death agony, while their fellow man is thus cremated alive. When life has fled, they approach the body like furious wild beasts; each one wants a bone as a relic. Is not the man of today cruel? Rev. Sand mentioned many other respects in which the man of today resembles Pilate, and lastly the fate of that man who had asked, "Who art God that I should fear him?"

Rev. Sand was especially called to preside in electing a candidate to be called as minister for the congregation. The one elected was Rev. J. S. Rydiog, of Nelson, Minn. He will be called as soon as possible. John Johnson and August Svenson, of St. Hilaire were present; Clara congregation, east of St. Hilaire was also well represented. Rev. Sand returded to Crookston the next day.

Pan-American Exposition.

Nothing since the World's Fair at Chicago, in 1893, has elicited the widespread interest that is manifest all over the world in the Pan American Exposition, which is to be held [illegible]lo, from May 1st to November 1st, 1901.

The purpose of the [illegible]osition is to illustrate the progress of the countries of the Western Hemisphere during a century of [illegible]derful achievements, and to bring toge[illegible] into closer relationship the people composing the many states, territories and countries of the three Americas. Acting under proper authority the president of the United States has invited all the Republics and Colonies of the American Hemisphere to join in commemorating the close of the Nineteenth and beginning of the Twentieth Century, by holding this International Exposition, on the Niagara frontier.

For this important event, the Nickel Plate Road has issued an attractive descriptive folder pamphlet, elaborately illustrating the Pan American Exposition, the buildings and grounds.

The Nickel Plate Road is the short line between Chicago and Buffalo, and affords competent train service from Chicago to Buffalo, New York City, Boston and all points east, with trains of modern equipment on which no extra fees are charged; also dining car service of the highest order. It affords meals in its dining car on the individual club plan, ranging in price from 35c to $1.00.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my left arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parsons & Co., druggist of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

A Testimonial from Old England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years, being most of the time confined to her bed. She is now quite well." Sold by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

THE SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY.

The statistics of the beet sugar industry show that, after many years of manufacture on a small scale, it has assumed large proportions, and in the census year more than one third of the domestic sugar product was obtained from the beet. This quantity of sugar, 70 per cent. of which was suitable for immediate consumption, was produced in a year of extremely unfavorable agricultural conditions in the beet districts. The yield of beets per acre was less than half that of an average season. The factories could readily manufacture more than two and one-half times the quantity of sugar produced, if supplied with sufficient raw material.

The progress of the industry can not be measured by the returns of previous censuses, since beet sugar has been separately reported but once, by the census of 1880, and at that time the total capital invested in four establishments would not equip a modern factory of average capacity.

The schedules show that but one factory obtained sufficient beets, and that many were operated but a small fraction of their capacity. The average quantity of beets worked per factory was 26,489 short tons, and the average nominal capacity of the factories, based upon only 100 days' work, is more than 60,000 tons. The average length of the working season in the various states is not known, but for the United States it is probably nearer 40 days than 100 days. Notwithstanding the very adverse agricultural conditions which resulted in the small supply of raw material, the value of the products was larger than the expenditures. A number of factories earned a fair return on their investments, others paid expenses, and several lost heavily. The statistics demonstrate that beet sugar manufacture is a commercial success to the United States.

"Third notice." Every editor has received them. The postmaster sends them to the editor, but the postmaster is not to blame. For instance there was a man named Tim Short who sent us three notices to stop his paper, he didn't want it any longer. We wondered what was the matter. Upon investigation of our subscription list we found Tim was short $2.50. He had never paid a cent and he stopped his paper as a matter of economy to us. A few evenings ago we stepped into a church and Tim's melodious tenor rang out in that soul stirring song, "Jesus paid it all." He might have been mistaken but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing that he had made an assignment of his liabilities to the Lord.—Ex.

The position which the Pierpont Morgan organization holds with reference to the business and political world is discussed by Mr. John Brisben Walker in the April Cosmopolitan under the title, "The World's Greatest Revolution." Familiar with the business world and a student of affairs, Mr. Walker has, while approving of the general idea of concentration which makes for good organization and public economy, drawn a picture of the power now exercised which will be a surprise to the great majority who have not given this subject thoughtful attention.

It is said that the powers of either man or woman are developed fivefold by working with a life companion who is in entire harmony. The ideal wife as a rule has it in her power to make the ideal husband. What constitutes the ideal wife is discussed in an extremely able article by Lavina Hart in the April Cosmopolitan.

A cup of hot coffee is an unfailing barometer if you allow a lump of sugar to drop to the bottom of the cup and watch the air bubbles arise without disturbing the coffee. If the bubbles collect in the middle, the weather will be fine; if they adhere to the cup, forming a ring, it will either rain or snow, and if the bubbles separate without assuming any fixed position, changeable weather may be looked for.

Announcement

On April 1st I disposed of half of my interest in the general implement business to L. P. Berthon, who needs no introduction to the people of Red Lake County. Through the confidence and co-operation of an ever growing constituency I have built up one of the largest establishments in my line in Northern Minnesota. The policy that has made this institution a success in the past, will be continued under the new regime. Mr. Berthon will enter actively with me and we will both give our undivided attention and best efforts at satisfying a discriminating public. Thanking my old customers for the encouragement they have given me in the past, I trust they will give the new firm their liberal patronage in the future. Yours truly,

LEGISLATIVE DOINGS

Monday, March 25.

Senator Young's bill providing that a voter may vote for all the electors on a presidential ballot with one cross passed the house.

The bill to prohibit deductions from an employe's pay by an employer for an insurance fund was also passed. A bill providing that the state and county pay two thirds of the value of animals killed because of tuberculosis was adopted.

The senate spent the day on general orders. The bill to license elevator operators was amended to apply only to St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth and was recommended to pass. Other measures recommended for passage were the Peterson bill allowing the sale of personal property of telephone companies to satisfy judgments for taxes; the McGovern bill to improve the state law library; the Torry bill providing for the sale of the state capitol lands in Kandiyohi county.

Tuesday, March 26.

The senate defeated the Halvorson anti-cigarette bill and buried it beyond resurrection by moving a reconsideration of the vote and then tabling this motion. The senate had previously passed the measure and the house did likewise, making a few minor changes. When before the senate the second time several members who had originally supportd it voted in the negative and the bill was killed.

Most of the day in the house was devoted to roll calls on the passage of bills and a large number of measures went through. Among them were: To regulate deposit of state funds; requiring that all baking powders be labeled with the names of their ingredients; allowing exceptions to be taken to any order, ruling or decision of a judge although no exception may have been taken when the order or ruling was made.

Wednesday, March 27.

The senate killed the Schaller bill to make state hospitals out of the asylums at Hastings and Anoka. The bill placing a 5 per cent gross earnings tax on express companies passed after a heated debate. The Jackson bill for the appointment of a commission to locate the exact position of Minnesota troops before Vicksburg was passed.

In the house the Jacobson railroad gross earnings bill was taken from the table by a vote of 57 to 56 and will be debated until disposed of. The Johnson bill providing for an increase in the road and bridge fund was killed after a bitter fight. Chilton's marriage bill was reported favorably by the committee on public health.

Thursday, March 28.

The Deming parole bill in interest of the Younger brothers passed the senate by a majority of 22 after a short debate. The primary election bill came up as a special order. It was variously amended but consideration was not concluded when the senate adjourned. Peterson's bill calling for a constitutional convention was defeated—24 to 30.

The house finally agreed to the senate amendments to the board of control bill and the measure was sent to the governor. As passed it places all state institutions except the Soldiers' home under the supervision of the newly created board. The Nichols bill, raising the gross earnings tax on express companies from 3 to 5 per cent, was passed.

Friday, March 29.

The Jacobson bill for a constitutional amendment raising the rate of the railroad gross earnings tax from 3 to 4 per cent passed the house by a vote of 78 to 36. Mr. Jackson's bill making it a felony for a man to desert his wife or children also passed.

The senate spent much of the day discussing the primary election law but made very little progress. The gross earnings tax bill was brought in from the house and given its first and second reading. Senator Sweningsen's "optometry" measure was recommended for passage as was Senator Schaller's bill to prevent the spread of contagious diseases among domestic animals.

Saturday, March 30.

Senator Young's bills providing for a compromise of the Little Falls and Dakota land grant litigation were recommended to pass in the senate by a close vote. A bill providing for liens on horses and other animals for the cost of horseshoeing was passed. The revised Burns telephone bill was recommended to pass.

In the house the Peterson bill making telegraph companies liable for damages incidental to mental anguish caused by delay in delivery of messages was taken from the table and placed on the calendar. A bill permitting the taking of fish for food purposes with nets from the Mississippi river below St. Anthony falls was passed.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

BY CHARLES M. SHELDON,

Author of "In His Steps," "The Crucifixion of Philip Strong," "Robert Hardy's Seven Days," "Malcom Kirk," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1896, BY CONGREGATIONAL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL PUBLISHING SOCIETY.

There was a platform about two feet above the floor where the army was taking up its position for the meeting as Stuart entered.

Although many of the miners had gone over to De Mott that day in anticipation of the excitement when the new men came in, there was still a large number of men in Champion. The hall was crowded. Not a place was left for standing room except at the rear near the door and the aisle which by common practice was left open for converts to march down and kneel at the altar. The man with the big drum was stationed out at the end of the platform and had difficulty to find room enough to swing his arm as hard as he wanted to, and once during the evening as he flung his drumstick back to bang his instrument on a hallelujah chorus he struck one of the interested spectators who was leaning eagerly forward a good, smart blow on the nose. This incident created a little confusion, but it was soon quieted.

Stuart was intensely interested in the meeting as it progressed. He was familiar with the outdoor meetings, and he had seen the army in its great gatherings in London, but he was in a condition himself at this particular time, in his own personal history and experience, to feel a peculiar and special interest in this particular meeting.

He was sitting about six rows from the front and next to the aisle, where he could see everything distinctly. The audience was mostly men, though several of the miners' wives and some of the younger women were scattered about in the crowd. The service started with a vigorous solo and chorus. The major, a large, fine faced Englishman, with a voice that shook the windows, started in with the song,

I was a deep dyed sinner,
Just as deep as I could be,

and the army came in with a rattling chorus to the Bowery tune of "Swim Out, O'Grady!" The verse and chorus ran like this:

I was a deep dyed sinner,
Just as deep as I could be;
But, praise God for salvation,
Today I know I'm free!
I have God's smile upon me now;
Of hell I have no fears,
When the devil comes and tempts me,
Why, I whisper in his ears:

CHORUS.

Get out, Mephisto!
I have no use for you.
I'm a soldier in the army,
And to Jesus I'll be true.
I'm fighting 'neath the colors,
The yellow, red and blue,
Get out, old devil, get out!

There were five verses, the last one concluding the second or final chorus as follows:

A word about the collection,
For we want a good one sure;
The devil often tells me
That to give I am too poor.
Which makes me go down deeper
When the timbrel comes my way,
And my action brings a blessing sure
And helps me when I say:

SECOND CHORUS.

Get out, old devil!
I've lost my love for you.
I'm a soldier in the army,
And to Jesus I'll be true.
I'm fighting 'neath the colors,
The yellow, red and blue,
Get out, old devil, get out!

It would be impossible to describe the effect of this song on the audience. The Cornish people were great lovers of music. Before the stalwart soloist had finished two verses of the song nearly every foot in the audience, and there was not a light foot in it, was beating time on the hard board floor, and at the conclusion of the third verse nearly every person in the hall was roaring out the words of the chorus with the army, although they had not been invited to sing on this particular selection.

The army did not seem in the least disturbed, however. It would take more than a slight incident like that to disturb the Salvation Army of Champion. At the conclusion of song everybody on the platform kneeled down.

Rhena Dwight was in the center of the little group. The audience was as quiet now as it had been noisy before. There was a smoky kerosene lamp just over her head, and as she kneeled there in the midst of those rough surroundings Stuart could not crowd back the thought of what this girl had been and what she was now. The refinement of her face was remarkable. It had seen a great trouble, but withal it was a face that had seen a great victory. She prayed very much as she had the first time Stuart heard her. The army broke in frequently with "Amen!" and "Hallelujah!" but not noisily or in a way really to interrupt. Stuart glanced through the crowd and saw here and there tears running over rough cheeks of men and women. Then he bowed his own head, and when the prayer was finished and he lifted up his face again something like tears wet his own eyelashes.

Immediately after Rhena's prayer half a dozen short prayers were offered by different members of the army. Then they rose to their feet again, and one of the hallelujah lasses came forward to the front of the platform and sung with a tambourine accompaniment, while two other members went down into the aisle with their instruments, which they passed around as collection boxes. A meager contribution of pennies rattled on the parchment covers of the tambourines while the song and chorus rose loud and determined:

Oh, I'm glad I am converted
In the army of the Lord!
Oh, I'm glad I am converted
In the army.

CHORUS.

Reign, oh, reign, my Saviour!
Reign, oh, reign, my Lord!
Send the sanctifying power
In the army of the Lord,
Send the sanctifying power
In the army.

He will give you grace to conquer
In the army of the Lord,
He will give you grace to conquer
In the army.

He will fill you with his spirit
In the army of the Lord;
He will fill you with his spirit
In the army.

Oh, I feel the power is coming
In the Army of the Lord,
Oh, I feel the power is coming
In the Army!

It was at the close of the collection that Rhena spoke. As long as he lived Stuart will never forget the feeling with which he listened nor the impression made upon the rough, uncultured audience. Where had this young woman, reared in the hothouse atmosphere of society, trained to its artificial politeness and refinement, caught the spirit which knows how to speak to the people of the street and the mine and the coarse toil of humble homes? Certain it was she had caught it, and the old storage room, with its audience of stolid, hardened, rough men and women, was the scene of a strange victory of spirit over spirit. Rhena's voice was a wonderful help. It was very clear and strong for such a little body. It penetrated into the souls of the people. But it was what she said that held them bound like captives to her will. She spoke simply, lovingly, with true enthusiasm, of the great love of God in sending his Son into the world. It was not preaching: It was a message of one saved soul to others who were still in peril. She spoke only a few minutes, and as she closed she asked those who were under conviction to come forward and kneel by the platform.

At once an old man stumbled out into the aisle. He was partly under the influence of liquor, and if it had not been for the friendly pushes of the people on either side of the aisle as he tumbled up first against one, then against another, it is doubtful if he would have succeeded in getting as far as the platform. He did reach it, however, and kneeled down after a fashion, resting his head and arms on the platform at Rhena's feet. Instantly, in a voice that thrilled every ear in the room, Rhena started the song:

Return, O wanderer, return,
And seek your Father's face!
Those new desires that in you burn
Were kindled by his grace.

Return, O wanderer, return!
He hears your humble sigh.
He sees your softened spirit mourn
When no one else is nigh.

Return, O wanderer, return!
Your Saviour bids you live;
Come to his cross, and you will learn
How freely he'll forgive.

Each time the army came in with the chorus:

Oh, you must be a lover of the Lord
Or you can't go to heaven when you die!

The contrast between the absolutely cultivated tone of the song in the verses and the noisy, drum accompanied rattle of the chorus was startling to Stuart. He winced at it every time. Rhena did not seem in the least disturbed. She smiled at the enthusiastic swing of the arm that beat the big drum and nodded her head in time to the rush of the chorus as it was also caught up by the audience.

Several persons went forward and knelt during this song. At its conclusion the major, who seemed in command this evening, called for testimonies. They came, brief and simple, from nearly every member of the army on the platform and were listened to in perfect silence, which was sometimes followed by a clapping of hands in the audience or by the rest of the army. The testimonies generally consisted of a brief statement, something like this:

"Two months ago I found Jesus right here in this room, praise be his name! He is very precious to my soul."

"The Lord spoke to me from the cross just three weeks ago tonight, and I gave him my heart. Hallelujah!"

"I was a drunken worthless sinner a year ago. Now I am redeemed, washed in the blood of the Lamb, and I am not ashamed to testify of his salvation."

"Before I was converted and joined the army I was known as 'Scaly Joe, the whisky soak.' Now I'm a new man; haven't had a nip for more'n a month, and my name is Joseph now, and don't you forget it! Amen!"

One of the late converts among the women came forward, and in a trembling voice, with tears running down her cheeks, she said, while the laughter raised by "Scaly Joe's" testimony suddenly ceased:

"I was an outcast on God's earth only a short time ago. The army found me and told me of the love of Jesus. I'm redeemed and my sins all washed away in the precious blood. Glory be to his name!"

Now to Stuart, as he sat there listening to all this, a great torrent of feeling came. It rose in him like a swelling tide, and he did not try to repress it. There was something very wonderful to him in the rude, rough, simple manner in which these men and women of the common people spoke of sins forgiven and a personal Saviour. It all coincided with his own experience of only a few days before. It was the last thing in the world he had expected to do when he came into the hall, but now it seemed the most natural and necessary thing, and, acting under what he believed to be a leading of the divine impulse, he rose, and, with all the people in the audience and on the platform looking at him and in the midst of silence that was painful, he said, "My friends, I want to say with these other saved souls that I have also lately felt God's hand and acknowledge Jesus Christ to be my personal Saviour, and by his help I mean to live as becomes his disciple."

"Thank you, Mr. Duncan, for telling me," she said simply.

It was a very simple, unaffected statement, entirely free from anything like cant or parade of one's conversion. But it produced a very marked effect upon every one in the hall. Rhena Dwight flushed, then paled again, and her lips parted as if she were offering a prayer. The members of the army remained motionless. The old miners who had known him as a boy stared at Stuart as if he were another person, as indeed he was now.

He was still standing where he had risen, and all eyes were upon him, when through the silence of the room came the sound of a host of marching feet. It was a measured, heavy sound, and instantly every man in the room had risen. Some one near the door shouted into the room: "There's been a fight down at De Mott! They's bringing soldiers up here!"

The next instant every man in the room was struggling for the door. Stuart was near the platform, and it seemed like the most natural thing in the world that in the confusion that attended the sudden and unceremonious exit of the audience he should be talking with Rhena Dwight.

And in the midst of all the noise of overturning chairs and the growing tumult just outside the door of the hall Stuart told her his experience of the morning, when he had for the first time felt the personal touch of the divine power and heard the call to his soul, "Follow me," as the living and risen Christ had spoken to him. Somehow it seemed altogether the most natural thing in the world that this part of his inner life should become known to this slight, earnest faced figure in the Salvation costume. Rhena clasped her hands together, and her eyes glistened with tears.

"Thank you, Mr. Duncan, for telling me," she said simply.

It all took a few minutes only, and Stuart, after speaking to some of the other members of the army and receiving a hearty "God bless you, sir!" from all of them, started to go out. When half way down the aisle he turned and went hurriedly back and said:

"Miss Dwight, I hope you will not risk your life in the crowd tonight. I don't know what the men are going to do, but you have dared enough already. I beg you will not venture among the miners tonight."

He did not wait to hear her reply. She looked surprised, and as he went out he wondered if he had spoken more like commanding than beseeching. But, once out in the street, he was absorbed in the sight that met him in the square which had lately been the scene of so much excitement.

As the facts grew upon him Stuart asked himself if the events of the strike were about to come to a climax with a tragedy that night. During the evening, while he had been at the Vasplaines' and in the Salvation Army hall, the miners at De Mott had come in conflict with the troops, and in the fight that took place the troops had fired, killing two of the men and wounding several others. Before another volley was fired, however, the miners had fairly swarmed over the handful of troops, disarmed them, and after a brief but fiery debate they had resolved on a vengeance that to the mind of the north men was in keeping with the occasion. They had secured the officers and men of the two troops and placing them in the center of the crowd marched them over the range to Champion, there determined to give them a short trial by the public mob and then shoot the officers. They had marched over to Champion because the two miners who had been killed had lived there. The bodies were brought over with the crowd, carried into the square and placed at the foot of the band stand. The captured men and officers were massed directly in front of the dead bodies. The great crowd of miners filled the entire space outside and around the stand.

All this Stuart learned as he came out into the street. He was sick at heart as the truth grew on him. Never in all his life had he seen the Cornishmen, the Danes, the few Italians, the Norwegians, all so excited and so possessed with the one thought of vengeance. The moon was fully up now, and it flooded the square with its mellow light. It was frosty, and not a breath of air was stirring. Never had Stuart imagined such a scene possible in the town of Champion. A dozen men had gone up in the band stand. The tragedy was about to begin by the public trial of the troops, to be followed by the predetermined shooting of at least half a dozen of them.

For a moment Stuart remained motionless, smitten with dumb hopelessness. The whole town was in the grasp of the mob. The handful of police was powerless. What could possibly resist the torrent that was about to be let loose, and where would it end? There was no hope of assistance from other troops nearer than Hancock, 100 miles away. Before they could arrive the tragedy would be acted out. Stuart groaned as he thought of Eric and his influence. Nevertheless he had himself just begun to spring into the crowd and raise his voice alone against the impending horror when some one pulled him over backward, nearly throwing him off his feet, and the voice of Dr. Saxon said:

"Two of the biggest fools on earth are out here tonight, and if you will be another we'll make a combination hard to beat!"

"What! How's that?" cried Stuart in amazement. And his surprise was doubled when the doctor, who had reached out from his buggy and caught Stuart, threw back the robe and disclosed Eric's deathly face as he reclined on the seat beside him.

"Quick! If anything is going to be done, do it with a streak of lightning under it to help it along!" cried the doctor. He spoke to Stuart rapidly. "I was at De Mott tonight when the trouble occurred. I drove back here and came around by the Beury road past the house. I stopped a minute to see Eric, and when I told him the men were marching into Champion with the troops he swore by all his old Anglo-Saxon gods that he must come down here and talk to the men. And here he is. It'll probably end him up, but he said if I didn't bring him down with me he'd get up and try to walk it anyway. If he dies, it's suicide and not a case of malpractice, but he may pull through all right, for it beats the Dutch what a lot of doctoring it takes to kill off one of these labor agitators. Here! Help him out, Stuart. Confound him if he doesn't want to get up there in the midst of the high priests of this strike till the last armed foe expires! Gently now! I'll wager $2 a day he'll faint away before he can open his mouth to say his little oration!"

All this from the doctor as with the utmost skill and tenderness he assisted Stuart to lift Eric out of the buggy and then helped bear him right into the crowd, where Eric, who was suffering the most awful pain, motioned the two to carry him.

After all, it was not surprising that Eric was here this night. Stuart realized what it might mean as he shouted to the miners around him to make room for Eric.

The men exclaimed at sight of these two men carrying the fainting form of their young leader, and they fell back, opening a path for their passage up to the band stand. When they reached that, Eric cried in a voice that gave Stuart more hope than he had yet dared to feel: "Right up the stairs! Quick! I'm able to speak to the men. Please God, they shall not do this great wrong tonight."

Some of the men in the stand came part way down the rude steps and helped Stuart and the doctor. After all, they did not know Eric's motive in coming out this way. And they were under his influence still and probably had no thought of resisting any attempt he might make to address the crowd.

So Eric was carried up, and the doctor and Stuart brought him forward and partly held him on his feet, looking out over a scene that became a part of the life memory of them all.

The moon was at the full, and there was no need of torches or lamps. The two dead men had been placed upon a rude platform of boards at the foot of the band stand and elevated so that their forms could be visible to the miners, even those who were at a distance. Their faces, uncovered, stared straight upward in the cold midnight. The captured soldiers were ranged directly in front of the bodies, and the force of the great mob, indeed, crowded them up to the very edge of the ghastly platform so that some of them stood touching it. The square itself all about the soldiers was black with the mob. All the faces were set and stern. All were lifted toward the stand as Eric stood there confronting them.

He is a great man who knows the way to the heart of a mob. Probably there was not a soul in all Champion that night who knew how to place his hands on the strings of emotion and impulse as Eric Vassall knew when it was a question of dealing with the men whom he loved and in whose cause he had voluntarily given up all ambitions that most men allow to grow when they are conscious of their ability to rise above their fellows. Eric assumed the right to speak at this crisis as the right of one who sacrificed more than any man present for the sacred cause of labor. And no man in the stand dared to deny him that privilege or interrupt his purpose.

What do men say on such occasions? It is doubtful if Stuart or the doctor, who heard every word, could have told afterward what Eric said. Every word burned like fire in the air, but it did not belong to the catalogue of speeches easily repeated. The doctor was amazed at the power of Eric's voice. It rang out like a trumpet and reached

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS.

Hill Top.

The big rain last Sunday spoiled a young couple's evening walk.

A. O. Letvig, of Wylie, was around here this week repairing some wells.

C. A. Gerlach, and sister, Augusta, visited their parents at Hill Top on Sunday.

Keystone was represented here Sunday by Henry Horn and Frank Miller and families.

Mr. and Mrs. Casper Tiedeman and son George, and Henry Freeman were up from Euclid Sunday for a short visit.

Ferd. Gothier and Chas. Zutz will each erect fine residences on their farms. One will be furnished with a steam heating plant.

You cannot enjoy perfect health, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes if your liver is sluggish and your bowels clogged. DeWitt's Little Early Risers cleanse the whole system. They never gripe. W. A. Schreiter.

A class of children, of the German Lutheran church, were confirmed on Palm Sunday. They were William and Charley Eckstein, Carlie Zutz, Richard Gother, Adolph Horn, Fred Teideman, W. A. Gerlach and Lizzie and Maggie Tiedeman, Minnie Scholtz and Louisa Labitz. Rev. VaIKern delivered a very interesting sermon.

You will waste time if you try to cure indigestion or dyspepsia by starving yourself. That only makes it worse when you do not eat heartily. You always need plenty of good food properly digested. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the result of years of scientific research for something that would digest not only some elements of food but every kind. And it is the one remedy that will do it. W. A. Schreiter.

ALUM IN FOOD.

How Can the Danger be Avoided?

The reported cases of poisoning from the use of alum baking powder have awakened the public to the serious danger which menaces the health of the people of this country in the numerous alum powders which are urged upon consumers.

Generally, alum powders may be known from the price at which they are sold, or from the fact that they are accompanied by a gift, or are disposed of under some scheme. The alum powder costs but a few cents a pound to make, and is often sold at twenty or twenty five cents a pound; sometimes as low as ten cents.

It is impossible to name all the alum powders in the market, but any baking powder sold at a low price, or advertised as costing much less than the well known, high class powders, or accompanied by a present, or disposed of under some scheme, is of this class, detrimental to health and to be avoided.

These facts should incline consumers to turn a deaf ear to all opportunities to buy the inferor powders. The wise housekeeper will decline in all cases to take them.

Editor's Awful Plight.

F. M. Higgins, Editor Seneca, (Ills.) News, was afflicted for years with Piles that no doctor or remedy helped until he tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve. He writes two boxes wholly cured him. It's the surest Pile cure on earth and the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cents. Sold by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

SEED WHEAT

We have selected some very choic seed wheat, that we will sell or exchange. We have both pure Scotch Fife any Blue Stem, and it is free from all foul seed, cleaned ready for a seeder. This wheat was raised in the bottom lands near the Red River of the North, and is about as fine a sample of wheat as we have ever seen. We have tested samples of the wheat that has been damaged by rain and find that about only forty of fifty per cent of it will grow, and when it does grow it makes a very puny and inferior straw. As a matter of fact there are very few farmers who appreciate the value of a change of seed. They will go on year after year seeding the old, run out, cockly seed, when a good strong seed gives them from 2 to 3 bushels per acre more and it does not cost any more to plow, harrow, seed or harvest, and they would have a good seed wheat of their own the following year. Sample of this seed wheat can be seen at our office or at the Crompe Elevator.

JUST WHAT WE NEED

DIRECT N. P. LINE VIA BEMIDJI TO DULUTH AND THE TWIN CITIES.

STRONG PROBABILITY THAT THE ROAD WIL BUILD THIS SEASON.

Bemidji, Minn., April 8.—While the Northern Pacific has been extending the Brainerd & Northern and buying out the Red Lake Transportation company with a view to tapping the northern Minnesota timber country, the Great Northern has not been idle. It has sent out numerous surveying parties north and west from Cass Lake, Bemidji and Eckles. More than one railroad official has affirmed that in the near future the Great Northern will from one of these towns extend its line into the northern timber country now so fully covered by the Northern Pacific.

The latest report is that the Northern Pacific is now at work upon a short line from Winnipeg to Duluth, passing through Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Red Lake and Beltrami counties, using its Red Lake Falls line as the main line, and at Bemidjie forming a junction with its road the B. & N. M., thus shortening the distance 200 miles. It is generally believed that the company will not build through to Winnipeg, but will connect with the McKenzie-Mann road at some point near the border.

A surveying party under Joe Wall is now at work on the survey a hundred miles northwest of here. The camp outfit and supplies have been hauled by teams, but as they have reached the swampy country, the supplies must be transported by skiffs. They left here several weeks ago.

The country through which all these surveys have been made is heavily timbered and watered. The population is light, but increasing rapidly. The new lines will do a big business in carrying settlers and their effects in and bringing ties and timber out. The whole section will in time develop into a valuable agricultural country.

Tragedy at Ada.

Ada, Minn., April 8.—Miss Maggie Riggers met with a sad death here early yesterday morning.

Miss Riggers was about 34 years of age, and had for many years been the proprietor of a millinery store in this place. She was a prominent member of society and a most estimable and industrious young lady. She lived in rooms in the rear of her establishment, which burned early Sunday morning. After the flames had been extinguished her charred body was found near the front door, where she seemed to have fallen, overcome by the fumes of the fire while trying to escape from the burning building. It is thought a gasoline stove exploded, starting the fire which rapidly took in the building. The sad affair has cast a gloom over the people of this little place, where she was much beloved.

Buy a New Location.

On Saturday Leveck & Normandeau purchased from E. Brdiotte lots 1 and 2 in block 10, corner of Champagne and 3d, together with the building thereon, consideration, $600. The building, which now faces on Champagne avenue, will be turned to face on 3d street. Messrs. Leveck & Normandeau will move their blacksmith shop to the new location from the historic old stand at the foot of Main st., where the anvil first rang out in '79, over a wilderness. Thus removing another landmark.

Banking Change at Thief River Falls.

On Saturday L. C. Simons, who owned 88 shares out of a total of 100 in the Scandia State Bank of Thief River Falls, sold out his interests to W.W. Prichard, of Spirit Lake, Iowa, and there will follow a reorganization of the bank, as Mr. Prichard will move to Thief River Falls and assume active control. It is the intention of the new regime to put in a land department in connection with the bank, to be styled the Thief River Falls Improvement Company.

MIRACULOUS CURE

Of a Sister in a St. Louis Convent —Suffered With Cancer —Prayer Answered.

Chicago, April 5.—A special to the Chronicle from St. Louis says Sister Kuehn of St. Joseph convent, has apparently been cured of a cancer after 18 years of suffering at a time when she was apparently at the point of death from the malady.

The seeming miracle which it is claimed was performed occurred on St. Joseph's day, March 18, the feast of the Saint, after whom the order was named. It came at the end of nine days of prayer for the recovery of the nun, participated in by all the sisters of the convent. She felt no relief from the sore which affected her stomach until the ninth day, when she awoke from sleep with the exclamation: "I feel no pain."

The bandages which covered the cancer were removed and no sore remained, only a white scar. Since then Sister Kuehn has been doing her routine duties and does not suffer from cancer.

Wants an Investigation.

St. Paul, April 10.—George T. Rice of Red Wing, the deported Manila editor, has returned to Minnesota and will live at his home in Red Wing until he can secure a congressional investigation of his case. Mr. Rice, in his paper made charges against the captain of the port and was deported because he refused to retract them after the authorities had decided, without a public investigation, that they were not true.

FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

BOARD OF EDUCATION RE-ENGAGES A NUMBER OF THE OLD TEACHERS.

The board of education held a meeting Tuesday night to consider the matter of a substitute for Miss Olive Rinquist, who has been compelled to give up her school work temporarily. No decision was arrived at, although there are several applications before the board. Prof. Whiteley was re engaged for another year, as were also Misses Lushy, Van Etten, Fahy, Carley, Costello and Rinquist.

Another meeting will be held Saturday night.

Advertised Letters.

John McNicol, Mr. J. F. Miller, Mr. Ulric Plante, Mr. Geo. Turville, Alfred Trudel.

If not called for in two weeks these letters will be sent to dead letter office as prescribed by law. In calling for the above please say "advertised."

Easter Flower Sale.

The Easter Flower Sale inaugurated by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, was an innovation that proved a great success. Potted plants and cut flowers were disposed of in great quantities, and the demand for cut flowers for the Easter ball Monday night far exceeded the supply. It was a move that seemed to fit in with the wants of the people for Easter flowers, and was a source of considerable revenue to the Presbyterian society, while affording a splendid opportunity, the lack of which has often been felt, for church decoration and replenishing of the window flower garden with fresh, blooming plants after the long winter's trying effects.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. DIRECT PRIMARY.

ONLY TWELVE VOTES AGAINST IT IN THE UPPER HOUSE.

MISS TOUSLEY, A LOCAL ARTIST, RECEIVES FLATTERING OFFER.

St. Paul, April 10.—The senate has finally passed the general direct primary election bill in almost the same form as it passed the house. The conference had no trouble in reaching an agreement. An attempt was made to restrict the operation of the law to cities of 10,000 population or over, but this was defeated. The bill as it passed also provides that candidates for nominations who fail at the primaries may secure places on the regular ticket by petition. The bill finally passed by a vote of 45 to 12, those voting against it being Senators Batz, Coller, Dart, Dickey, Everett, Gausewitz, Geer, McGovern, Mellicke, Scheliabach and Viesselman

Easter Sunday.

The weather, always such an important element to be considered, was well nigh perfect, and the day was an ideal Easter Sunday. Special services were held in both Catholic churches of the city, morning and evening. At the morning service in St. Marys church the choir rendered a new composition, "Pope Leo's Mass," which is composed on the lines adopted by the Cecilian society, whose efforts make towards eliminating the operatic in church music. The sermon by the pastor, Rev. Ansgar, was extremely strong and eloquent. At St. Joseph's church in the evening Rev. Fayolle delivered one of his fine English sermons. The audience was unusually large. Miss Della Toupin rendered an appropriate Easter solo, entitled "Heac Deis" (He is Risen), which was accompanied by the organist, Miss Eva Marchildon. It was a very finished and artistic production. Rev. Achinson not being in the city, there were no evening services at the Presbyterian church.

A Local Artist Appreciated.

The many friends of Miss Clara B. Tousley and the admires of her fine alto voice are pleased at the compliment accorded her by Prof. M. E. Robinson, musical director, "Queen Esther", which will be given at the Devil's Lake Chautauqua July 20th and July 22nd, with 1,000 voices picked from among those who have in the past assisted Mr. Robinson with the play, Miss Tousley having been requested to take the contralto solo part of Zeresh, which she assumed when the contata was given here something over a year ago. When it is remembered, that she has been chosen ahead of scores of trained soloists all over the Northwest where the play has been given, the character of the testimonial can better be appreciated.

Indians Want Protection.

St. Paul, April 10.—The Indians on the Leech Lake reservation are again asking for protection from the lumbermen who are cutting thousands of feet of green timber under the "dead-and-down" permits. Two of the head men of the Pillager band have been in St. Paul for several days interviewing Senator Clapp and Gov. Van Sant on the subject, and asking them to do what they can to have the matter settled and the illegal cutting stopped.

Belair-Verboncouer.

The marriage of Mr. Oliver Belair and Miss Emma Verboncouer occurred Monday morning at St. Josephs church, the Rev. E. Fayolle performing the ceremony. The newly wedded pair have resided here since childhood and have hosts of friends who will wish them a bon voyage on the sea of matrimony.

They have gone to housekeeping in the Lachapelle flats.

Optometry Bill Passed.

St. Paul, April 10.—The senate has passed the bill regulating the practice of optometry, or the fitting of glasses. A board of examiners is appointed under the law and all men practicing the art must pass an examination and secure a license.

A Heavy-weight Farmer.

O. Mikkelson, of Iona, Murray county, has been making some heavy purchases of improved farms near the city the past week, having on Monday purchased the old Ben Gervais farm, from the owner, Joe Gray, and several other quarter sections hereabouts. Mr. Mikkelson has just sold a half section of land in Murray county for $9,920. He has a farm left, which, together with the improvements, is valued at $10,000. Mr. Mikkelson likes this part of Minnesota very much and sees ahead the finest kind of prospects. He will move here and no doubt become a factor in pushing this section to the front, as he is a successful man of progressive ideas, and knows how to go about the business. He is a firm believer in creameries, and thinks all the farmers in the immediate vicinity of Red Lake Falls will be very short-sighted if they do not unite in patronizing the creamery already established. The creamery industry is the foundation of the farming prosperity in Southern Minnesota.

The Burlington Complimented.

It is well known that the Burlington Route is selected by the government, and has been for many years, as the route for its through mail service between Chicago and Council Bluffs. The overland mail, and the through mails from Europe across the continent to Asia, are sent by the government over the Burlington. This service is performed in special trains, but there is no written contract for the service with the government. It simply has selected and retains what it considers the best, quickest and safest route for its transcontinental mails; nor is any subsidy paid. The Burlington receives only the same rates in force by general law for the carriage of all mails in the country. In a recent debate in the House of Representatives at Washington, upon the question of paying a subsidy to a line of railroad between New York and New Orleans, for keeping up a fast mail service in the South, Mr. Loud, of California, chairman of the committee on postoffices and postroads, in giving his reasons for voting against this subsidy to the southern railroad, paid the following high tribune to the Burlington. He said: "If subsidies are proper, you should not restrict them. If there is any railroad in the country that earns extra compensation from the government, that railroad is the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, from Chicago to Omaha, which runs phenomenally fast trains, carrying nothing but mail; but that company does not ask for a subsidy."—Railway Age, March 29, 1901.

Don't You Know

That women make poor silent partners?

That most all wives like a little caressing occasionally?

That a sermon over twenty minutes long is a clerical error?

That the bonds of matrimony do not always pay dividends?

That mothers can do more to help save the world than preachers?

That many a bad man has been known to make a good husband?

That some people like to be talked about and others to do the talking?

That there is no harder work than riding on a train that is behind time?

That marriage may be a civil contract but some people behave in a very uncivil manner after entering into it?

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }

In Probate Court
Special Term
Feb 20th 1901

In the matter of the estate of Isidore Theriault deceased. On reading and filing the petition of Benjamin [illegible], executor of the estate of Isidore Theriault, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell the real estate of Isidore Theriault in said county.

And it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said Executor to pay said debts, legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses to sell all of said real estate,

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 18th day of March A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Benjamin [illegible] to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Gazette, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, containing power of sale, duly executed and delivered by Charley A. Anderson, a single man, mortgagor, to the Canadian & American Mortgage & Trust Co., (limited) mortgagee, bearing date the tenth day of April, 1896, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of deeds, in and for the county of Polk, State of Minnesota on the eighteenth day of April, 1896, at three o'clock p. m., in Book 7 of Mortgages, pages 359 [illegible], and thereafter transcribed to the office of the register of deeds in and for Red Lake county, Minnesota, in Book 8 of Mortgages, page 50, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of two hundred and eighty one dollars and seven cents, ($281.07)

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale, and the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit:

The east half of the northeast quarter (E ½ N E ¼) of section twenty-three (23) and the west half of the northwest quarter (W ½ NW ¼) of section twenty-four (24) township one hundred and fifty-two (152) range forty-two (42) containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres of land, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, twenty-five dollars ($25.00) attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Red Lake county, or his deputy, at the front door of the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on Saturday, the twentieth day of April, 1901, at two o'clock p. m., subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated March 7, 1901.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

the farthest point. It meant, of course, that the collapse would come after the strain, and Saxon watched him narrowly to see the first sign of it. The main current of Eric's appeal flowed through the one channel of preserving unstained the sacred cause for which the men had sacrificed all they had and were. The pleasure of tasting vengeance would last but a little while. The cause of labor would be killed so far as they were concerned once and for all if law was broken or vengeance taken this night. He appealed to the religious element, which he knew was strong in hundreds of the men before him. He reminded them of the prayers that had been offered from the very place where he now stood. How could a just God or a merciful Saviour look with anything but horror upon men who had vowed to love and obey him plunging into such a crime? And, oh, for the cause they represented! Was it not dearer to them than the killing of a few men in revenge? Would that bring to life again their brothers? Who was there who did not feel for the wrongs and injustices of the workingmen if he did not? Yet in his vision of events he clearly saw that never in his lifetime or that of their children's children would they lessen those wrongs or obtain just rights as men if by an act of passion they broke the already too slender bond of sympathy that united the great public with them now.

Eric had never put so much of himself into an appeal before. It had never cost so much. It would be a wonderful triumph for him if he could prevail tonight. And he believed he could see signs of a yielding on the part of the men. If only he could hold out a little longer! He reeled in the arms of Stuart and the doctor. All his senses throbbed with agony. The panorama of the square floated before him in a mist of moonlight, and the dull murmur of the mob broke on his ears like a faroff surf on an ocean coast. He felt his voice failing him, his tongue seemed like ashes in his mouth, and still it seemed to him he must go on.

It was now, as Eric began to feel earth and heaven slipping away from him before he had completed his heart's desire or before his words had wrought their work in the men's minds or acted on conscience and reason, although they had listened in a wonderful silence—it was now that a voice rose from the steps of the Salvation Army hall, which was close by the railway depot and, indeed, made one corner of the square of Champion. It was the voice of Rhena Dwight, and she was not speaking, but singing.

We have said that the Cornishman is a great lover of music and very susceptible to its influence. Rhena had found that out from her contact with the miners and their families since coming to Champion. It was not a remarkable thing, therefore, that as she stood and listened to Eric that night she was led to use the gift which God had given her. More than once she had seen angry passions calmed and brute impulses shamed at the sound of her voice, and as Eric began to faint away Rhena, moved by one of those true inspirations of life which would to God more of us might follow, broke into a song which swept like an angel's over that hushed and wondering audience. The clear, frosty air bore every word and note to the ear of the thousands of men who stood packed into the square.

The distance was not very great, and the voice was cultivated, the enunciation distinct and exact. But the pathos, the entreaty, the warning, how did Rhena sing all that except by the help of the divine power who takes and uses poor, weak human powers to his glory when they submit themselves to his will in the consecration of his gifts? She sang while the mob listened:

It's true there's a beautiful city,
That its streets are paved with gold.
No earthly tongue can describe it;
Its glories can never be told,
But I know, I know,
I know I shall be there.

Your loved ones dwell in that city,
Whom you placed beneath the sod,
When your heart felt nigh to breaking
And you promised you'd serve your God.
Will you, will you,
Say, will you meet me there?

There none but the pure and the holy
Can ever enter in;
You have no hope of its glory
If still you're the servant of sin.
Bless God, bless God,
Bless God, you may be there!

Yes, you can go there, my brother,
For Jesus has died on the tree,
And that same precious blood is flowing
That washed a poor sinner like me.
Will you, will you,
Will you now wash and be clean?

All who enter that glorious city
Have made their garments of white,
Have trod in the Saviour's footsteps;
They've battled for God and for right.
I long, I long,
I long to meet you there.

Had ever singer such an audience, such an occasion or such a purpose in using the divine passion of song? Long before she had finished Eric had fainted dead away, and Stuart and the doctor were caring for him as he lay on the floor of the band stand, his upturned face as ghastly white as those two below. But Stuart's senses throbbed to that song as they never had to any triumphant aria that ever swept through the gilded, perfumed opera houses of Europe. What were all those singers there to this one who was using her gift to help save life and prevent crime? It is probable that Stuart Duncan laid his heart at the feet of Rhena Dwight that evening. He had already surrendered his soul to God. It was no less a sacred mingling of that with all the rest of his recent experience that he lifted up his heart to the height of loving this woman.

The song ceased. The men breathed deeper, as if they had been holding their breath during the singing, and a murmur swelled over the square. It grew every second, but the mob was not the same. The better purposes in hundreds of the men had been stirred. They were not brutal or cruel or lawless men for the most part; but, on the contrary, very many of them were deeply religious, and above all else they desired to see the cause of labor triumph. The facts so clearly presented by Eric were undeniable. One of the older men began to speak now from the stand. They had come up to Champion to take the law into their own hands. The question was, in the light of sober reason, what would the results be if they should do this thing in hot blood? Eric was right about it. There arose a storm of cries from the crowd at this point for a division on the question. "What did the union decide?" "Bide by the union in the matter!" "Aye, aye; that's reason!" "Vote!" "Decision!"

The vote was accordingly taken. Should the soldiers and officers be dealt with by the miners for the death of the two men or should they be handed over to the authorities to await due process of law? The vote was taken by hands. Less than a fourth of the men thrust up their hands with clubs in them on the vote to deal with the soldiers as they pleased. On the negative an overwhelming majority carried the day to submit the entire affair to the law.

Instantly every man in the band stand came down. Stuart and the doctor assisted in bearing Eric back to the doctor's buggy. Eric revived a little as he was being carried and asked to be taken to his own house. The doctor thought that would be wiser than to take him back to Stuart's, and Stuart reluctantly consented to the transfer. He went himself with Eric, saw him comfortable and then returned to the square.

The decision of the union was being faithfully carried out. The troops and their officers were placed under guard in the engine house, and the police of Champion were assisted by the miners, who claimed that the firing of the troops had been without excuse and that the placing of them under arrest was called for by every dictate of justice and fair play.

As we pass this incident in the course of this narrative which is connected with the story of our lives in Champion it is sufficient to say that next day the troops were taken back to De Mott by the authorities, and in the trial which came off afterward the case was dismissed on the ground of insufficient evidence to convict. As a matter of fact, there had been great provocation on both sides, but the firing of the troops was always considered by the miners as not warranted by the facts. They always spoke of the killing of the two men as "murder" and looked upon the acquittal of the officer who gave the command to fire as an outrage and a clear miscarriage of justice.

So ended that memorable night. Stuart went home at last, feeling that the problem was no nearer solution, so far as the strike was concerned, and agitated as never before by the great rising within him of emotions and thoughts heretofore entirely unknown to him. The sight of the conflict these men were making for a few cents more a day for labor, which meant the risk of life every 24 hours, was a sight that grew more and more significant to him as he watched the struggle unfold. He could not see the end. He dared not anticipate the final result.

As the days went by the situation remained practically the same. The effect of sending troops down the range had so far shown the mine owners that they had really a very ugly chance to take in forcing new labor into the mines. The few men who had gone on from Champion to De Mott had gradually been persuaded to go back, or they drifted away in search of work elsewhere, as the owners put off getting more men. In reality the owners dreaded more than anything else the flooding and ruining of the mines in case the attempt to put new men in was successful. Besides all this, the price of ore was rapidly rising, and many of the owners had great quantities of ore in the stock piles, and it was believed by many that there was no great desire on the part of the owners to start in again so long as such large quantities of ore were already at the top. It was thought that even if the strike continued until spring the owners would be able to realize large profits on lapsed contracts and on this account would really be the gainers by not operating the mines. Meanwhile winter was fast coming on, and the miners were finding it more and more difficult to get credit at the stores. Many of the merchants refused to trust the men any longer. There was a prospect of some ugly scenes of suffering in Champion unless matters changed decidedly in a fortnight.

It was at this time that Stuart first really thought of his great wealth with reference to its use in improving the condition of affairs in Champion. He had gone down to see Eric, who was able to be about the house now, and while there Andrew had come in. The three had drifted into a discussion of ways and means to relieve the distress that was apparent already among the families of the miners.

"I cannot help feeling that this strike is all wrong, Eric," said Stuart, continuing the conversation as it had started from the standpoint of the miners. "I am in receipt of letters every day from my agents in Cleveland beseeching me to come in with the other owners on their refusal to grant the men their demand of $2 a day. They say in every letter they do not see in case of a break in the union how I am going to manage affairs if the men hold me to my original decision of giving $2 a day."

"What will you do?" asked Eric.

"Time enough when that time comes. Does the union show signs of weakening?"

"Not yet. But there is no telling." Eric sighed. "I am changing my opinion of the strike and all. Somehow I have seen a different vision of the future since my injury and especially since the night in the square."

"Do you mean that you are more hopeful or less so over the final result?" asked Andrew.

Eric was silent and very thoughtful before he replied.

"I don't expect to see it in my lifetime; I mean the triumph of right and brotherhood, and I will tell you why. The love of money is as old as civilization. I do not know of a stronger or more enduring passion. It reaches down into the very basis of all human struggle and is the mainspring of every civilized man's life. Why, even the church is honeycombed with the love of money! And the more I study the problem the more I believe that nothing short of a very convulsion of nature will ever tear away the clinging, grasping hand of civilization on its eternal clutch of gold, the love of wealth, the cause of all the selfishness of the modern world as we know it."

"There is no question about money being at the bottom of most of the world's selfishness," replied Andrew. "But its use has sometimes proved a blessing. I very often think I could be a better man if I could pay off all my debts and buy all the roses I want."

"Yes, you would then get to be as selfish as the rest of us," smiled Stuart. He came back to the topic first started. "How can we do anything in the present emergency? Here is a practical condition. I don't know that it helps much to discuss how the men got into it. I understand that women and children are beginning to suffer. I don't know that we need to push our investigations into causes further than that."

"So I have!" Stuart spoke quietly, but almost as if for the first time a consciousness of his great power had flashed across his mind. The other two men watched him curiously—Eric from the standpoint of the workingman, Andrew from the point of view of the church.

"I'm ready to consecrate every cent I possess to the good of humanity!" cried Stuart, with enthusiasm. "And I want you two men to show me how to do it wisely."

Eric rose and shuffled toward the window. Then he came back to where he had been sitting and remarked: "You must be converted sure if it's gone in as deep as all that."

Andrew looked over at Stuart and said smilingly, "If you mean all that, we need time to think it over and formulate wise plans."

Stuart rose and paced the little room. "I mean every word. When I became a Christian, I said in my heart, 'I will dedicate all I have and all I am to the cause of my Saviour.' I understand fully all that means. I do not believe a man can be a Christian at all and make money his great object in life or regard money in any way except as a steward or trustee to use all that has honestly come into his hands as God would have him use it. I don't know just the exact amount of money I have at my disposal," he added simply. "Can't we three get together and arrange some kind of a three cornered, three sided society that shall have for its object the discussion of ways and means and the questions of men in relation to others in society? How does that idea strike you two?"

So for the first time Stuart suggested the plan which he afterward elaborated. The three men agreed to meet the next day with Andrew and make a definite and practical organization. Eric was now able to get out again, although he was far from strong and had the prospect of a lame shoulder for an indefinite time.

At home that afternoon Louise and her Aunt Royal were discussing a proposed party to be given for the Vasplaines and three or four other families. Not anything elaborate; just a quiet affair; it was too near the time of her brother's death to entertain any great party. Aunt Royal was very particular about observing society etiquette, especially when the observance did not interfere with her selfishness. When it did, she found that the rules of polite society allowed her to have about what she wanted if she gave it the right name. So she and Louise had planned a quiet "affair," not a "reception" or a "party," at which they had decided to invite about 25 or 30 persons representing the old and aristocratic families of Champion.

"Aunt," said Louise after they had discussed what they would have to wear and to eat, "what do you think of inviting Rhena Dwight?"

"What!" exclaimed Aunt Royal. "The leader of the Salvation Army! What are you thinking of, child?"

"She is a beautiful singer," replied Louise. She seemed to be thinking hard of something.

"Do you mean to invite her in a professional capacity to help entertain the company?" asked Aunt Royal.

"She wouldn't come in that capacity," replied Louise, with a dry laugh.

"What makes you think of inviting her, then?" asked Aunt Royal, with a searching look.

"Oh, never mind! I had an idea," replied Louise.

Later in the afternoon she went out, walking down into the town, as she frequently did in winter. She loved the exercise, and, finding that it helped to keep her well and good looking, she persevered in it even in stormy weather.

Rhena Dwight lodged with an elderly widow who kept two or three other boarders in a house just below the army hall. Louise, after walking around the square, went down past the hall and knocked at this lodging house. Rhena was in, and Louise was directed to her room. She knocked, and Rhena herself opened the door. She did not know Louise at first, as the light in the passageway was dim. When she did fully recognize the face and figure with its rich setting of costly furs, she at first colored slightly. Then she asked her to come in. Louise entered, and Rhena closed the door after her. Outside the snow was beginning to fall very fast, and the short winter day was deepening its twilight about the town of Champion.

CHAPTER VII.

PLANS GOOD AND BAD.

"You are surprised to see me, Miss Dwight," said Louise, taking the seat Rhena had placed for her. "I am Miss Duncan, Stuart Duncan's sister."

"Yes, I know you are. I have seen you walk past the hall several times," said Rhena quietly. She had not the remotest idea of the purpose of Louise's call.

"We are going to have a little company at the house next week, and we would be glad to have you come," said Louise boldly, looking straight at Rhena. "I thought it would be less formal to call and invite you personally than to send a note."

Rhena looked over at her caller in the utmost astonishment. She did not know Louise at all. She had never met her in society in the old days before leaving everything for the army, and she thought Louise, knowing her story, might suppose she would possibly enjoy a taste of the old life again. The face in the fur trimmed hat looked very pretty, and Rhena felt kindly toward it.

"Thank you," she answered gently. "I appreciate your kindness, but it is impossible. I cannot go. I have shut the door upon my old life. I do not wish to open it again." She was silent, as if memory claimed her thought. Then she added, with a smile that Louise could just see through the unlighted room: "Besides, I have my regular army duties to perform every night. I cannot leave my people, and there is a great deal of visiting to be done now. The distress and suffering in miners' families are increasing very fast."

"I'm sorry you cannot come," said Louise. She rose slowly to go. "Stuart speaks of you occasionally, and I thought perhaps it would please him to invite you." The girl watched Rhena carefully. Rhena did not change color. She stood like a statue, pale and still. Louise continued: "And I thought probably you might feel like coming to the informal affair we have planned. We have asked the Waltons and the Wymans and the Vasplaines, and Una and I will do the honors of the music room, where we hoped we might have your voice to assist. Una plays beautifully."

"Well, I'm sorry you cannot come," said Louise.

"Una?" asked Rhena.

Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER
-BY-
PHIL. A. KAPPER.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

PLACES FOR 1,000 TEACHERS.

Places are open for 1,000 trained American teachers in the Orient. This is the result of the establishment of a general department of public instruction for the Philippines, with a central office in Manila under the direction of a general superintendent, to be appointed by the Philippine commission, at a salary of $6,000 per annum.

Schools are to be established in every pueblo in the archipelago, where practicable, and those already established shall be reorganized where necessary. The salaries of the division superintendents and teachers and the curricula for primary, secondary and other public schools are to be established by the general superintendent. He also is to exercise general supervision over the entire department. According to the terms of the act the English language, as soon as practicable, shall be made the basis of all public instruction, and soldiers may be detailed as instructors until replaced by trained teachers.

Authority is given to the general superintendent to obtain from the United States 1,000 trained teachers at salaries of not less than $75, nor more than $100, a month, the exact salary to be fixed according to the efficiency of the teacher. The act provides that no teaceer or other person "shall teach or criticise the doctrines of any church, religious sect or denomination, or shall attempt to influence the pupils for or against any church or religious sect in any public school." Violation of this section is made punishable by summary dimissal from the public service.

The Hallock Enterprise, printed at the home of the game warden who secured the evidence against the Couks and Wilcox, and who helped arrest the Beltrami county poachers, is authority for the statement that Executive Agent Fullerton will make charges against the constables and sheriff of Red Lake county who recently interfered with the game wardens and endeavored to replevin game siezed by Agent Fullerton and his wardens at Thief River Falls. William Benzie, one of the constables, has written a letter to Agent Fullerton, apologizing for his conduct and stating that he would be glad to aid in the enforcement of the game laws hereafter.

Some of the amendments made to the United States revenue law, made by congress at the last session, will be of interest to our readers. One item of importance is that after July 1, the date the new law goes into effect, bank checks will not be required to be stamped. Neither will money orders at the post office require 2 cents additional after that date. Promissory notes, express bills, telephone messages, warehouse receipts, telegraph messages, bill of lading, mortgages, deeds or conveyances under $2,500, power of attorney are all exempt under the revenue laws. Bank drafts, however are still taxed 2 cents for each $100.

The new wolf bounty law fixes the bounty for killing a full-grown female wolf during the months of January, February, March, April and May at $15 or for killing any full-grown wolf at any other season of the year $5. For killing a female cub wolf at any season of the year the reward shall be $4, and for a male cub $2.

Senator Nelson writes from Washington to the Cass Lake Times that as soon as possible he will get over to see Secretary Hitchcock and try and induce him to declare the agricultural lands on the ceded reservations open to homestead entry.

The case State vs. Euch Dupont, of Lake Pleasant, occupied the attention of Judge Toupin and a jury Monday. The case arose out of a misunderstanding as to who was to clean up the schoolhouse in which the Lake Pleasant election was held, and involved a matter of $2.00. The defendent won the case.

Dr. Chas. Germo, of Ballatin, Minn., has spent the past week in the city a guest of his brother, Attorney Thos. Germo. The Doctor has heard of the boom in Red Lake county farm lands, and came up to gather in some of the prosperity. He purchased a farm in Terrebonne from Healy & Bourdon.

Says the Crookston Journal: Julius Pieth, the St. Hilaire real estate boomer, passed through here Saturday evening on his way to St Paul. To a Journal reporter he stated that his page advestisement in the St. Hilaire Spectator had brought him 16 sales within the past two days. Thus it will be seen that advertising pays

Ole Svenson, of Garnes, reports that in addition to operating his farm he has done a little stock raising. He recently sold a bunch of cattle for $500 00 and has now invested in a full blood short horn bull and will hereafter devote more of his time to stock raising. Many other farmers should follow his example and improve their stock

It is said a St. Hilaire man lost a dog and received a letter stating that it would be returned if 50 cents were deposited in a certain place. He marked the coin, left it, and the dog was returned. The next morning his 8-year old son appeared with the marked coin. The boy and his father then went into executive session in the woodshed.

Announcement

On April 1st I disposed of half of my interest in the general implement business to L. P. Berthon, who needs no introduction to the people of Red Lake County. Through the confidence and co-operation of an ever growing constituency I have built up one of the largest establishments in my line in Northern Minnesota. The policy that has made this institution a success in the past, will be continued under the new regime. Mr. Berthon will enter actively with me and we will both give our undivided attention and best efforts at satisfying a discriminating public. Thanking my old customers for the encouragement they have given me in the past, I trust they will give the new firm their liberal patronage in the future. Yours truly,

MET A TRAGIC DEATH

YOUNG LADY MILLINER AT ADA PERISHES IN HER BURNING STORE BUILDING.

Chippewa Indians Protest Against Operations of Lumbermen—Illinois Central Coming to St. Paul—President Northrop Will Decline the Recent Presidential Appointment on International Commission—News of the State in General.

Ada, Minn., April 8.—This village was the scene of a fatal fire which caused the death of Miss Maggie Riggers, a milliner and dressmaker, who has operated a millinery establishment here for a number of years. Her living rooms were in the back of the building which she occupied with her stock of millinery and which was a small frame structure on the principal business street in the village.

At 8:30 o'clock smoke was noticed coming from the interior of the building, but before the alarm could be given and the seriousness of the situation realized the building was wrapped in flames and all efforts to rescue Miss Riggers were of no avail. When her charred body was taken from the ruins later it was found lying close to the door leading into the street, and the supposition is that when she reached the door she was overcome with the smoke and heat before she was unable to unlock the door. The origin of the fire is unknown, but the general supposition is that it was caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove.

CHIPPEWAS PROTEST.

Say They Are Being Swindled by Timber Cutters.

St. Paul, April 3.—Red Blanket of Leech Lake, chief of the Bear Island Chippewas and principal chief of the Chippewa tribe, accompanied by a subchief, Mah-che-gah-bow (Man-who-moves-standing), and an interpreter, appeared before Governor Van Sant to protest against the manner in which, as Red Blanket asserted, the Chippewas are being defrauded by timber cutters on the reservation.

Red Blanket declared through the interpreter, that white and half breed lumbermen are now destroying the reservation timber by assuming to act under the provisions of the law permitting certain persons to cut the "dead and down" timber.

Red Blanket also said that, although the Indians have been alloted land in severalty, many of the men don't know where their allotments are situated, and cannot find out. The chief wanted Dar Hall, the former Chippewa commissioner, to go up to the reservation and point out these various allotments.

NORTHROP WILL DECLINE.

Cannot Serve on the International Commission.

Chicago, April 4.—Professor Cyrus Northrop, president of the University of Minnesota, who was named recently by President McKinley as one of the United States commissioners to the international conference of American states to be held in the City of Mexico the coming fall, states that he probably will be forced to decline the appointment.

"I already have accepted an engagement to speak at the bi-centennial state celebration in October," he said, "and as the proposed conference is to be held about that time, it will be impossible for me to attend it. I never sought the appointment."

ILLINOIS CENTRAL PLANS.

Officials Say Trains Will Run into St. Paul Sept. 1.

St. Paul, April 5.—Trains of the Illinois Central railroad will commence running into St. Paul Sept. 1, according to the statement of C. K. Dixon, superintendent of the Cherokee division of the road, who passed through St. Paul with a party of Illinois Central officials.

With Superintendent Dixon were F. M. Hinman, civil engineer; A. Dillon, roadmaster of the Cherokee division, and Walter Browne and G. G. Smith, capitalists of Sheldon, Ia.

The officials examined the Minneapolis and St. Louis property, but no information of the exact way in which the new road will enter the city is yet announced. Superintendent Dixon will probably have charge of the Illinois Central service in St. Paul.

He Guards Aguinaldo.

Cannon Falls, Minn., April 8.—Lieutenant Gilbert A. Youngberg, whom the Manila dispatches report as being one of the officers selected to guard Aguinaldo, is a Cannon Falls boy and was sent to the Philippines last fall. He graduated last summer at West Point, standing well up toward the head of his class.

Wealthy St. Paulite Dead.

Cincinnati, April 8.—Lathrop Reed, 70 years old, a wealthy citizen of St. Paul, was found dead in his berth aboard a sleeping car attached to the Florida train of the Queen and Crescent road. A physician who accompanied Mr. Reed said he was returning from Florida where he had been in the hope of recovering his health.

Primary Election Bill Passed.

St Paul, April 5.—The primary election bill was finally passed by both houses during the day, the conferees recommending the elimination of the Smith voting machine amendment and that requiring oaths that the voter had supported the same party at the previous election.

SOME BIG PROFITS.

Consolidated Shares Are Worth About $194 Each.

Duluth, April 5.—The basis of agreement for the inclusion of the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron mines (Rockefeller's company) in the Morgan syndicate is enough to net the holders of shares in the mines about $194 per share on the present price of United States Steel stock. This is $20 a share higher than the top price for the mine stock here in the past few days and just $130 more than it was selling for two months ago. On March 1 this stock was selling at $ [illegible] a share less than it will bring under this conversion price. For the [illegible] 000 shares held by Duluth people there is a total return, if they were to sell at present prices of United States Steel, of over $2,000,000. The Morgan syndicate announces that the John D. Rockefeller holdings are [illegible] per cent of the entire issue, but this probably includes not his personal holdings alone, but those of his immediate associates, such as F. T. Gates and the Colgate-Wetmore crowd.

FINALLY KILLED IT.

Bill for Release of Youngers Again Before Minnesota Legislature.

St. Paul, April 8.—The bill to parole the Younger brothers, now serving sentences of life imprisonment in the state prison for the bank robbery and murders in connection therewith at Northfield, Minn., 25 years ago, was finally killed by the house of representatives. The bill had gone to the governor for his approval, having passed both houses in an amended form, but a question of unconstitutionality arose and the bill was recalled from the governor to remedy this defect. The house first refused to amend the bill and then by a vote of 53 to 50 indefinitely postponed the bill. The fight for the pardon or parole of the Youngers has continued without rest for the past 20 years and this has been the nearest to success that they have yet reached.

GROSS EARNINGS TAX.

Minnesota Legislature Increases It From 3 to 4 Per Cent.

St. Paul, April 4.—By a vote of 53 to 8 the state senate passed the Jacobson bill, increasing the tax on gross earnings of railroads from 3 to 4 per cent, without amendment as it came from the house and the bill goes to the governor for his signature. If the increase is sustained by the people and afterwards by the courts it will mean an increase of several hundred thousand dollars in the taxation of railroads in the state. Under the 3 per cent law the state received nearly a million and a quarter dollars from its railroads. The fight for an increase in the tax has continued for the past 10 years, a previous law having been declared to be unconstitutional by the United States supreme court, and the present measure provides for its submission to a vote of the people at the next election.

Primary Election Bill Passed.

St. Paul, April 3.—By a vote of 45 to 12, the senate finally passed the primary elections bill, after adopting several minor amendments. The bill is not to take effect until Sept. 1, 1901, and state officers and members of elective boards are excluded from its provisions. It differs in no material way from the form in which it passed the house and it is believed the lower body will concur in the senate amendments.

On the Upper Mississippi.

La Crosse, Wis., April 8.—Navigation on the upper Mississippi river is now formally opened. Raft boats and packets are coming out of their winter quarters and going after rafts at various points along the river. The McDonald boats at this port will start out early next week. The packet Beaver was the first boat through the bridge this year and the rafter, C. A. Cowles, passed down during the day.

Smallpox Closes Schools.

Wells, Minn., April 4.—The public schools opened Tuesday morning only to be closed again at noon on account of the appearance of two new cases of smallpox. One of the members of the senior class of the high school is under quarantine. All of the cases thus far have been mild.

DISPOSES OF ITS HOTELS.

Northern Pacific Sells Its Yellowstone Park Property.

Washington, April 9.—The department of the interior has consented to the sale of the Yellowstone National Park property owned by the Northern Pacific to the Yellowstone Park Transportation company. The matter has been hanging fire for months, and while the secretary of the interior has not yet officially signed the papers he is understood to have given assurance that the transaction as outlined to him will be given formal approval. The policy of the department has been to divide the park privileges as much as possible and opposition to the purchase outright of all concessions by one company has been made by a rival transportation line.

The Northern Pacific owned all the hotels and improvements of that nature in the park while operating it under the association name. J. H. Dean has been officiating as president. The transportation company making the purchase has been operating in the park. Major E. W. Bache and S. S. Huntley of Helena, and H. W. Childs of St. Paul, are its promoters. The transfer embraces the mammoth Hot Springs hotel, the Fountain hotel, the Grand Canyon hotel and the Lake hotel, aggregating over $500,000, including two lunch stations. The Northern Pacific has been operating them since 1883, but at a loss.

LEGISLATIVE DOINGS

Monday, April 1.

It was the last day for the introduction of bills and members of the house offered 30 new measures. This makes the total number for this session 732. The house passed a bill settling a long standing dispute between the state and the Northern Pacific Railroad company. The measure validates the claim of the Northern Pacific company to the 106,368 acres of swamp land granted by the state in 1881 for the construction of the Little Falls and Dakota Railroad company.

Twenty-five new measures were introduced in the senate. Two measures were passed, one of them the McKusick bill to amend the general laws of 1889 relating to the tax levy rate for state and county, and the other the Shell bill to reimburse a Nobles county village for expenses incurred in stamping out an infectious disease. The McGill bill to establish and maintain a retirement fund for teachers was killed.

Tuesday, April 2.

The primary election bill occupied most of the day in the senate, coming up at 11 o'clock as a special order. When the senate adjourned the measure was not completed. A bill providing for a superintendent of steam plants at state institutions was killed.

In the house the Allen bill appropriating $19,000 for the beet sugar makers of the state failed by a tie vote. Peterson's mental anguish bill, referring to telegraph companies, met the same fate. On a statement from the bribery investigating committee additional time was granted for making a report.

Wednesday, April 3.

The Dunn primary election bill passed the senate by a big majority, 45 to 12. There was no debate as to the merits or demerits of the measure, but about two hours were spent in offering and passing upon amendments. The bill is not to take effect until Sept. 1, 1901, and state officers and members of elective boards are excluded from its provisions. Other bills passed were: To regulate the practice of optometry; asking congress to appoint a commission to investigate Red River valley drainage; relating to issuance of bonds.

The house passed the Haugland "blind pig" bill prescribing rigid penalties for taking or sending liquor into a temperance community. The Torson bill increasing the term of superintendent of public instruction from two to four years was recommended for passage; as was also the Lee bill to make insane hospitals out of the Hastings and Anoka asylums.

Thursday, April 4.

By a vote of 53 to 8 the senate passed the Jacobson bill, increasing the tax on gross earnings of railroads from 3 to 4 per cent, without amendment as it came from the house and the bill goes to the governor for his signature. If the increase is sustained by the people and afterwerds by the courts it will mean an increase of several hundred thousand dollars in the taxation of railroads in the state.

The house passed a large number of bills. Among them were: Providing for the establishment of employment offices in cities of more than 10,000 inhabitants; to amend the probate court. The Torson bill to increase the term of state superintendent of public instruction was killed.

Friday, April 5.

The committee appointed by the house to investigate charges of bribery made by Representative Jacobson with regard to the gross earnings bill submitted its report. The findings of the committee are that the evidence is not sufficient to substantiate the charges. The Anderson bill, giving cities of 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants the right to erect electric light plants passed. The Deming parole bill, having been decided unconstitutional, was recalled for amendment.

The Torrens land bill, amended to affect counties of 75,000 population and over, passed the senate with one dissenting vote. The Halvorson "blind pig" bill, the special order for the afternoon, passed unanimously. The senate receded from the Ives and Smith amendments to the primary election bill and the measure was passed.

Saturday, April 6.

The house has finally killed the Deming bill to parole the Younger brothers. The bill was returned from the governor on account of a question of its constitutionality. The house at first refused to amend the measure and then indefinitely postponed it by a vote of 53 to 50. The report of the bribery investigation committee was received and adopted and a resolution introduced censuring Messrs. Jacobson and Washburn, the originators of the investigation.

The senate spent the day in committee of the whole and recommended 42 bills for passage. Senator Halvorson's second anti-cigarette bill was indefinitely postponed. A resolution was adopted instructing the attorney general to bring suit against the Great Northern to determine title to certain lands.

WYLIE BREVITIES

Swan Anderson went to Crookston Monday last.

Chas. Sandberg made a trip to St. Hilaire Thursday.

Rev. John Olson, of St. Hilaire, held service in Black River Friday.

Chas. Hagglund and J. P. Larson represented this vicinity at St. Hilaire Thursday.

Fred Anderson and Richard Lorentzon braved the muddy roads to the Saintly City Saturday.

J. P. Larson will leave within a couple of weeks for Brainerd, where he expects to go in the car shops.

Miss Alfrida Swenson, of Red Lake Falls, visited with friends and relatives here during her Easter vacation.

Farmers have been vaccinating their stock for black leg, as a number of cattle have died around here this spring.

Miss Betsy Johnson left for Battle Lake Thursday, where she intends to stay with Rev. Moody's for some time.

Andrew and Emil Orloff returned to Grand Forks last Wednesday, having attended the funeral of their brother Willie.

Thom Hennesy disposed of $175 worth of young stock to Linnehan & Madden last week. A good side issue to the farming.

Alfred Larson and S. J. Swenson returned from Akely Thursday, where they have worked in the logging camps.

The remains of Willie Orloff were laid to rest last Tuesday afternoon in the German cemetery. A large number of friends had gathered to pay their last respect and homage to the deceased, and the funeral procession was very large.

Miss Eurika Erickson returned to Crookston Monday after a short visit at her home. She came up to attend her sister Hilma's wedding. Hilma was one of the charming young ladies of the "East Side," and the other contracting party was Ole Johnson, who is a brother of her sister Minnie's husband. We congratulate the newly married couple, and wish them a long and happy life.

Student A.—"What makes you so angry with that old man?"

Student B.—"Dickens, he has been home and in his conversation with pa' and ma', he threw all kinds of mud at us who have been to school, demonstrating that we amounted to nothing, in comparison to others who have had no schooling. What understands he about it? How on earth does it concern him?"

Student A.—(Excited:) "Supposed to be a Christian spirit! Well, if he speaks that way to our parents, we can imagine his fluent tongue when among other people."

H. & F. C. Leppert.

GOOD GOODS AT POPULAR PRICES.

COFFEE. My trade in Gas Roasted Coffee is increasing daily, which goes to show that these brands are giving good satisfaction. If you are a lover of good Coffee you must try my FANCY BLEND for satisfaction. It will pay you to use this grade as one pound will go a good ways further than a cheaper grade. The MORNING STAR is a medium grade and has already gained a hold with my customers. The OLD GLORY is a cheap grade and for the price has no equal. Judging from the great demand, it has an established reputation. Remember these are gas roasted coffees and contain one-third more strength than those roasted by the old process.

C. G. Borgen has dug a well west of his store.

Albert Anderson was in St. Hilaire Tuesday.

Roads became very muddy after the recent rain and snow.

P. E. Smidesang is going to sell out. He expects a buyer soon.

A carload of hay has been pressed and will be shipped from Wylie.

Edward Soderman was a pedestrian to St. Hilaire Thursday, and returned Friday.

O. P. Johnson, of Bray, is helping to do the carpenter work on Nick Eckstein's new building.

Chas. Sandberg has improved his place with a new, large and cheerful tenament for his chickens.

Deacon C. A. Lindquist conducted the services in the Sw. Luth. church on Good Friday. Owing to bad roads, the attendance was small.

O. T. Romsos is expecting a brother to come here. Ole with his brother will then add dry goods to his present stock. We wish them success and are glad to welcome a new citizen.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that had for many years made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help. but she says of this Royal Cure—"it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praise throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Ebenezer Young People's Society met last Friday evening and a short program was rendered. It was a business meeting and the following officers were elected for the coming quarter:

President C. J. Larson.
Vice President, P. V. Sandberg.
Secretary, Carl Naplin.
Fin. Secretary, Gust Naplin.
Treasurer, Albert Anderson.
Librarians, John Naplin, Felix Anderson.
Program Committee, J. I. Brink, Edward Soderman, O. T. Romsos.
Critic, C. W. Johnson.
Organist, Albert Anderson.

The ex-president was appointed janitor. The librarians will each have an assistant, to loan out books if they are not present. Their report showed that the library contains 114 volumes.

The treasurer's report showed that the society owns in property and money $86, besides $35 donated to the congregation.

Pan-American Exposition.

Nothing since the World's Fair at Chicago, in 1893, has elicited the widespread interest that is manifest all over the world in the Pan American Exposition, which is to be held in Buffalo, from May 1st to November 1st, 1901.

The purpose of the exposition is to illustrate the progress of the countries of the Western Hemisphere during a century of wonderful achievements, and to bring together into closer relationship the people composing the many states, territories and countries of the three Americas. Acting under proper authority the president of the United States has invited all the Republics and Colonies of the American Hemisphere to join in commemorating the close of the Nineteenth and beginning of the Twentieth Century, by holding this International Exposition, on the Niagara frontier.

For this important event, the Nickel Plate Road has issued an attractive descriptive folder pamphlet, elaborately illustrating the Pan American Exposition, the buildings and grounds.

The Nickel Plate Road is the short line between Chicago and Buffalo, and affords competent train service from Chicago to Buffalo, New York City, Boston and all points east, with trains of modern equipment on which no extra fees are charged; also dining car service of the highest order. It affords meals in its dining car on the individual club plan, ranging in price from 35c to $1.00.

Call on any ticket agent for Pan American folder of the Nickel Plate Road, or address John Y. Calahan, General Agent, 111 Adams st, Chicago.

Parties desiring hotel or rooming accommodations at Buffalo, or Niagara Falls, during any period of the Pan American Exposition, are invited to apply by letter or otherwise to F. J. Moore, General Agent, 291 Main st., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my left arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parsons & Co., druggist of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

A Testimonial from Old England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington, England. "It has saved my wife's life, she having been a martyr to bronchitis for over six years, being most of the time confined to her bed. She is now quite well." Sold by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

COUNTY NEWS NOTES.

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS.

Hill Top.

Roads were so bad Easter that most of the people walked to church.

Mrs. Carl Gerlach was on the sick list last week. Dr. Watson was called.

C. A. Kent and C. G. Gerlach have gone to Euclid for a week's visit with friends.

Talk about this vicinity! Mrs. Gother has some tomato plants with blossoms. How is that for high?

Miss Annie Sutter, of this vicinity left for Hagdale Monday, where she will teach the school at that place.

A. C. Kind has returned home from Bemidji, where he was working in the pinery. He says good bye Bemidji.

Adolph Horn and Fred Tiedemann, who had been attending German school here left on the Monday train for their home in Keystone.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gerlach's family increased Friday morning by the arrival of a bouncing baby boy. Mother and child are doing well.

The sermon delivered by Rev. Val Kern Easter Sunday was unusually strong and eloquent. The text was taken from Marc. 16 1-8.

You cannot enjoy perfect health, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes if your liver is sluggish and your bowels clogged DeWitt's Little Early Risers cleanse the whole system. They never gripe. W. A. Schreiter.

Brooks.

Wanted.—The south wind and the bright sunshine.

Theo. Robillard went to Crookston Monday to work at the saw mill.

John B. Cyr, of Thief River Falls, spent a few days here last week visiting relatives.

Mrs. Frank Noel, who has been sick for three weeks, is very low and the end is feared.

You will waste time if you try to cure indigestion or dyspepsia by starving yourself. That only makes it worse when you do not eat heartily. You always need plenty of good food properly digested. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the result of years of scientific research for something that would digest not only some elements of food but every kind. And it is the one remedy that will do it. W. A. Schreiter.

Lambert.

Lambert farmers have their machinery all ready for seeding.

Joseph Lefeovre has sold his farm and gone to the Blackduck country with the intention of starting up in business.

The bridge under construction at Lacombe's crossing on the Clearwater, is well under way. It will be completed this week.

Skin troubles, cuts, burns, scalds and chafing quickly healed by the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is imitated. Be sure you get DeWitt's. W. A. Schreiter.

Frank Leroux drove to Red Lake Falls Monday to get a new supply of machinery for spring work, having rented the Roderigue farm which is owned by Chas. Benoit.

Sanders.

The townboard held a meeting March 29, at the town clerk's office and assessed the road work for the ensuing year—5 mills on the dollar on realestate and personal property and one day's polltax.

Taken thismonth keeps you well all summer. Greatest spring tonic known. Rocky Mountain Tea, made by Madison Medicine Co. 35c. W. A. Schreiter.

The town supervisors commenced their first work on the roads this year April 1st, with Iver Johnson, A. W. Lind, Erik Hord and others cutting and staking a road line between sec. 14 and 15, and 22 and 23, ready for clearing and grading.

River Falls.

Geo. Madden, of Wyandotte, went to St. Hilaire Monday.

L. T. Bergh is at Bemidji collecting for the McCormick Company.

Fred Harrington sold his 80 acre farm to Wm. Eikhoff of St. Hilaire. Consideration $1,200.

Mr. Wilson was out with three land seekers Monday, but did not go very far on account of the roads.

Fred Harrington is delayed from moving on account of the muddy roads. He will move to Red Lake Falls.

Roads and fields are drying rapidly and if this weather keeps on a few days longer the farmers will soon be at their spring work.

W. Adams was over to the east side Monday, hunting for some of his stock. They left home Saturday, and he fears in trying to cross the river they went through the ice, as two carcasses were seen tumbling over the dam Saturday.

"I have been troubled with indigestion for ten years, have tried many things and spent much money to no purpose until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken two bottles and gotten more relief from them than all other medicine taken. I feel more like a boy than I have felt in twenty years." Anderson Riggs of Sunny Lane, Tex. Thousands have testified as did Mr. Riggs. W. A. Schreiter.

Brav.

Roads are very muddy, almost impassable.

Arvid Olson shot and killed a big wolf Sunday.

J. O. Carlson made a trip to Thief River Falls Saturday.

S. E. Erickson and family left us for good Wednesday.

Victor Sandstrom and family, of Numedal, were visitors among relatives Sunday.

O. P. Johnson started for a business trip to Crookston Sunday, returning Tuesday.

E. A. Moran, of Red Lake Falls, was among us Wednesday, looking over the cattle the farmers had on hand.

"Last winter I was confined to my bed, with a very bad cold on my lungs. Nothing gave me relief. Finally my wife bought a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure that effected a speedy cure. I cannot speak too highly of that excellent remedy." Mr. T. K. Houseman, Manataway, Pa. W. A. Schreiter.

Numedal.

M. Stevens, the carpenter, is busy building a residence and barn for Mrs. Moestad.

A meeting to discuss the feasibility of building a co-operative creamery was held at the Tweet school Saturday. A good thing—push it along.

LOCALISMS

M. S. Horvie, of Slayton, who bought the Zaiser farm last fall, is at the Grand View, and will make this place his home. He is expecting his wife to join him shortly.

The ice in the Red Lake River is giving some uneasiness, and the railroad bridge is threatened. The ice is yet solid and efforts are now being made to blow it with dynamite, immediately above the bridge.

For sale or Rent.—Small residence, and five of my own farms between Red Lake Falls and Gentilly.

For Sale or Rent.—My property opposite Gazette office, arranged for hotel, large dining room, kitchen, office and sample room; several bed rooms on first floor, and 17 bed rooms on second floor. I would consider a trade for good farm lands. Would sell on terms to suit the purchaser. For particulars call on me.

L. A. Kaufer.

The Chinese laundryman decided to leave Saturday, after a hot altercation with one of his patrons over the quality of the work turned out, and Monday shook the dust of this city from his feet, and went back to Crookston. Here is a city of 2,000 souls without a laundry—the best opening in the Northwest for the right party.

Wilfrid Lemieux came over from Grand Forks Monday, returning the next day. Wilfrid and Adelard are calculating to open up another store under the old firm name of Lemieux Bros., but they inform us that there may be a delay of several weeks before their plans mature. In the meantime the former will go to Fargo to assist in disposing of a salvage stock.

Paul Rieck, who has a grove of 400 Norwegian poplar trees on his farm, some of which have attained a height of 16 feet, although they are but four years old, will trim the trees next week, and will sell the cuttings. These cuttings will grow like willows, and farmers who are desirious of starting fast growing groves will do well to take advantage of this opportunity. The price will be 25c a hundred.

SEED WHEAT

We have selected some very choic seed wheat, that we will sell or exchange. We have both pure Scotch Fife any Blue Stem, and it is free from all foul seed, cleaned ready for a seeder. This wheat was raised in the bottom lands near the Red River of the North, and is about as fine a sample of wheat as we have ever seen. We have tested samples of the wheat that has been damaged by rain and find that about only forty of fifty per cent of it will grow, and when it does grow it makes a very puny and inferior straw. As a matter of fact there are very few farmers who appreciate the value of a change of seed. They will go on year after year seeding the old, run out, cockly seed, when a good strong seed gives them from 2 to 3 bushels per acre more and it does not cost any more to plow, harrow, seed or harvest, and they would have a good seed wheat of their own the following year. Sample of this seed wheat can be seen at our office or at the Crompe Elevator.

WILD CAT FOR A CHUM.

British Columbian Who Is Intimate with an Assortment of Wild Beasts.

With bear, deer, wild cats, wolves and cougars as his companions, George Greevy, who two years ago left Williamsport, Pa., and went to the Klondike, is now in the wilds of British Columbia, where he is keeping a lonely vigil over property belonging to the Lemon Gold Mining company, of which his brother, M. J. Greevy, of Omaha, Neb., is president, says the Philadelphia North American.

"A wild cat comes to my cabin every night," he says in a letter to his brother, W. J. C. Greevy, of Williamsport. "I used to throw food out to it, and the other night I coaxed it into the cabin, where I fed and petted it. Now it comes in every night, and I give it something to eat. Then it goes out, and I don't see it again until the next night. There is a big cougar around the camp, and nearly every evening it gets up on a big cliff opposite my cabin and cries like a baby. I will send you its skin before very long. The other day, while down the wagon road, I turned a bend, and saw walking toward me, less than 20 feet away, a big, ferocious-looking gray wolf. My ax was the only weapon I had. I was afraid to turn my back and run, for fear it would pounce upon me. So I put on a bold front and, with my ax ready for any emergency, I gave his wolfship half the road. The bluff worked, the wolf scarcely giving me more than a casual glance as he passed."

WHY NOT HERE?

LARGE PAPER-MILL SECURED IN A WISCONSIN TOWN.

Stevens Point, Wis., April 15.—Dr. H. E. Horton has purchased the McDill water power on the Plover river and plans for improving the power will be made in the near future. It is planned to erect a large paper mill upon the site, to employ 100 men.

Will Organize a Class.

Miss Nettie Gleason, of Crookston, who will be remembered as having rendered several vocal selections at the Crookston Band Concert last winter, was in the city Friday, with a view to organizing a class in vocal music. Miss Gleason is the charming daughter of Ex-auditor John Gleason, of Polk county, and is well qualified to give instructions in vocal music, having taken a course at the famous Boston Conservatory of Music.

Advertised Letters.

Mrs. Albert Charles, J. B. Bruelt, F. W. Buell, Ralph Coad, Andrew Morin, Albert Omer, Ed O. Peterson.

If not called for in two weeks these letters will be sent to dead letter office as prescribed by law. In calling for the above please say "advertised."

E. F. Marshall, P. M.

M. B. A. Ball.

The members of the M. B. A. and their friends enjoyed a social hop on Monday evening. Even the disagreeable weather did not dampen the enthusiasm of the invited guests who availed themselves of the M. B. A. hospitality, anticipating a good time and they were not disappointed. Like everything connected with this society it was a grand success.

At midnight a delicious lunch was served, after which those present were entertained with some fine vocal and instrumental music.

Dancing was resumed for a short time. When the participants finally departed they were more than ever convinced that the M. B. A. is the coming lodge of the 20th century.

West Bound.

Last evening's train from Thief River way had on board about twenty former residents of that town, who had pulled up stakes up there and are now on their way west. Everett, Wash., is the destination point of most of the party, but some of them may go still further and a few of them will locate at Seattle and Tacoma.

Among the west bound party we noticed Fletcher Cary, K. K. Gullickson, Paul Kolzknecht, James Douglas, Phil. Zeh and mother, the father mother and wife and a brother of Fletcher Carey, and others. If the prospects of the new country meet the expectations of the new homeseekers there are others in the northern part of the state who will follow this advance colony from that section.—Crookston Journal.

MARCH BROS.

FIRM OF PIERRE, S. D., CATTLE MEN, ENTER RED LAKE CO. FIELD.

NEARLY SIX THOUSAND DOLLARS PAID OUT ON SATURDAY.

Saturday was a big day in Red Lake Falls business circles, and the merchants had more business than they could attend to during the day—a result of the big cattle business. On March 13 Joe Baril, the local buyer, made a contract with March Bros. to deliver a bunch of cattle at the N. P. corral here, and in thirty days he had bought just three hundred head, which were delivered here Saturday by farmers from different parts of the country, the field taking in the southern part of Rocksbury, River Falls, Polk Centre, Black River, and the townships to the east and south of the city, and a large number coming from Grove Park, in Polk county, just south of Terrebonne township. The farmers were paid by checks on the Merchants State Bank, and no less than $5,500 was paid out. The fact that one buyer could gather such a bunch in so short a time shows that the stock industry in this section is on the gain. Of course it is a matter of regret that the farmers can not keep their growing stock at this time of the year, after they have wintered them, and when the grazing season is at hand, but in most cases the sale represented only a small percentage of the total amount of stock on hand. March Bros., who made the purchase, are an old and well known firm, and have extensive ranches in western Dakota where the stock will be turned out to graze for the summer. This is their first deal in Red Lake county, and they were so well pleased with the good work done by Joe Baril, their local representative, that they will probably continue here for some time. The prices paid averaged over $16 per head.

Sunday night the cattle stampeded about nine o'clock, and for a time it looked as if there would be a general break. Sixty head got away, and Mr. Baril put in all that night, all day Sunday, and until Monday night without sleep looking them up. He succeeded in getting back all but twelve head, which still remain at large.

The special train left here Monday for Pierre. There were seven carloads. At Fertile, Twin Valley and Lake Park some thirty-three carloads will be added, making a train of forty carloads.

RAPP IS HOME

REPRESENTATIVE RAPP MOVED FROM ST. PAUL MONDAY.

Dr. N. M. Watson went to St. Paul Saturday to give counsel and assistance to his friend Representative Rapp, who has been so ill, but who was desirous of returning home. It was not at first thought feasible to have him undertake the trip, but after the Doctor had looked into the matter he concluded it was the best thing to do and accordingly Mr. Rapp was brought home to St. Hilaire on Monday. He stood the trip well and is doing nicely—in fact he was able to walk from the train to Hotel Crookston and back, and is now strong enough to be up daily. The doctor says there has been a wonderful improvement in the past three weeks, and "Charlie's" hosts of friends are hopeful that this will continue and become permanent.

Astray.

Twelve head of stock broke loose at the N. P. corral Sunday night between 8 and 9. Steers and heifers, from one to three years. Please notify me or return, when a liberal reward will be given.

BEST OF ALL.

W. W. PRICHARD THINKS RED LAKE COUNTY HAS A WONDERFUL FUTURE.

W. W. Prichard, who purchased the Scandia State Bank at Thief River Falls last week, was in the city Monday getting acquainted, and expressed himself as very much pleased with his investment, and with this section in general. He had traveled, in company with several other Iowa capitalists, all over the Pacific Coast, and the Southwest a total distance of over eight thousand miles, looking for business openings. Some heavy purchases of Oregon pine lands were made, but Mr. Prichard says after looking over the filed in this county, they concluded to locate here, considering the business openings and prospects far and away ahead of anything they had run across in all their travels. As he sees it, the only drawbacks are the lack of railroad facilities and drainage. The latter is an easy matter to overcome, as drainage ditches can be put in at comparatively light cost. And with the development of our vast resources, the improved railroad facilities will follow. Besides the banking institution which will be changed to a National Bank, a land company will be organized. Associated in this company, which will be incorporated, will be W. W. Prichard, and E. J. Skewis, of Inwood, Iowa, and G. E. Hilsinger of Falmia. The latter two gentlemen are lawyers, Mr. Hilsinger now representing his district in the state legislature.

SELECTS ORGANIZE

WILL HAVE A CRACK BASEBALL TEAM—NO SUNDAY GAMES.

The Selects will be on the turf again this summer better qualified than ever to cope with the best that goes in the way of a baseball nine in this neck of the woods. The boys re-elected J. B. Armstrong manager, and appointed as a committee that gentleman and W. A. McIntyre to further the interests of the club. It was decided to give a dance at the opera house Friday night next, but this date conflicted with that set for St Mary's church concert, and they very generously decided to postpone the dance until the following Friday—May 2. The sentiment of the meeting was against Sunday base ball and no games will be played on the Sabbath by this club the coming season.

Another County Ditch.

A new county ditch is proposed, to run from Sec. 22 Lake Pleasant township, north, along the well established highway and terminating in the coulee north of the Bottineau residence in this city. The move is a wise one on the part of the owners of land along the route, and if successful will add many dollars to the value of the farms, and many bushels of grain to the annual crop.

Died.

Mrs. Pierre Raymond, who settled in Louisville township twenty years ago, died Tuesday night, having been stricken with paralysis in the morning about 11 o'clock, this being her third attack. The family came here from Hennepin county. She leaves a husband and 11 children, all grown—six sons, Frank, Henry, Silas, Peter, George, Joseph and Cyprien, and 6 daughters, Miss Silase and Mesdames Joseph Derocher, M. Robarge, John Baril, Xavier Clement.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membrances causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.

State of Minnesota }
County of Red Lake } ss
In Probate Court
Special Term
Feb. 20th 1901

In the matter of the estate of Isidore Theriault deceased. On reading and filing the petition of Benjamin Dolbec, executor of the estate of Isidore Theriault, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell the real estate of Isidore Theriault in said county.

And it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said Executor to pay said debts, legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary, for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 18th day of March A. D. 1901, at two o'clock p. m., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Benjamin Dolbec to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Gazette, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

BY CHARLES M. SHELDON,

Author of "In His Steps," "The Crucifixion of Philip Strong," "Robert Hardy's Seven Days," "Malcom Kirk," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1896, BY CONGREGATIONAL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL PUBLISHING SOCIETY.

"Yes, Miss Vasplaine. It comes natural for me to call her 'Una,' of course. We were girls together, and besides," added Louise, with a short laugh, "since her recent engagement to my brother Stuart it seems more natural than ever. Well, I'm sorry you cannot come. We would have enjoyed hearing you sing."

"You are kind to think of me, and I am grateful for it," replied Rhena. The closest observer could not have detected any special emotion in her voice and manner. She impressed even Louise, with that lie about Stuart warm on her lips, as possessed, even in those dingy surroundings and in the army garb, of a grace and refinement that very few persons could equal. Louise felt like making some commonplace remark about the hardship of Rhena's life work, but something in Rhena's manner forbade it, and she went out of the room with a conventional "Good evening, Miss Dwight. So sorry to think you cannot favor us."

Out on the street Louise murmured to herself, "I was pretty sure she would refuse to come, and I don't think she is the person to lead Stuart on after that little bit of previous information about Una." She smiled and set her face for home, walking briskly through the now fast falling snow.

To any one familiar with the character of Louise Duncan her call on Rhena Dwight and her falsehood as to Stuart's engagement were perfectly easy to understand. It measured the extent of Louise's petty, narrow ideas of life and all its meaning. She had observed enough of Stuart's manner of late to feel sure that his feeling for Rhena had become more than sentiment, and it was the last thing in the world that she wanted. If she could prevent any attachment with a Salvation Army leader, she would do it in any way short of being found out in deceit: hence her lie to Rhena. How would she ever know? To be sure Rhena was an experienced woman in the ways of society, and she might have been on her guard if she had known Louise. But the sister of Stuart had left an impression of kind heartedness with the former society leader, and Rhena felt, as she said, grateful for the apparent sincerity which would recognize her present position in Champion as entitling her to a place still in polite society.

Rhena did not light her lamp after Louise went out. She sat by the window, looking out on the falling snow. When the time came to go out for the meeting, which was held regularly in the hall instead of the street now that the nights had become stormy, she shivered with the cold. Her lips moved in an audible prayer that some one going by the passage heard. "O Lamb of God that takest away the sins of the world, pardon me and help me!" There were very few out that evening. A great storm grew with the night, and in the morning all Champion, with its setting of pine covered hills, was deep in the snow that swept past Rhena's windows in drifted billows high up against the old storage room door.

That afternoon Stuart came down through the drifts to meet with Andrew and Eric, as the three had agreed, to talk over the matter of relief for the miners and also to arrange for something more permanent than a plan of local relief for the immediate distress of Champion. Eric managed to get through the snow and insisted that the struggle did him good. Andrew welcomed them in his hearty fashion and began to talk roses the first thing.

"Look at that! If that isn't a beauty, I don't know what it is. Just let me cut that for you, Mr. Duncan."

"I won't take it—not with the 'mister.' You have forgotten the bargain," replied Stuart, smiling.

Andrew looked a little confused, then he said: "I did not know how Vassall here might take it. He is a prior attachment."

"Eric," said Stuart, laying a hand on his old friend's shoulder, "do you object if Burke here calls me Stuart and I call him Andrew? It seems absurd that when a man saves another man's life he should continue on such terms of formality as are used by ordinary acquaintances."

"My name is Eric, then," replied Eric frankly. He was a man of many faults, but littleness of soul and petty jealousy were not among them.

"That settles it, then. It's to be Andrew, Eric and Stuart to the end of the chapter," assented Stuart eagerly. He was enthusiastic this afternoon. He had begun to be caught up in the passion of a great idea, and he felt able to do almost anything. It is true that, woven into all his thoughts of consecrated money and its wonderful power, there was in Stuart the glowing image of Rhena Dwight, and his love for her was growing in strength and meaning every moment. He had not seen her to speak to since that night in the army hall. But he did not know how strong a hold his feeling had upon his whole being until now, as he began to face a great opportunity, perhaps the greatest in his life, the slight form and pale face of the Salvation Army leader seemed to occupy a very prominent place there.

Andrew was cutting off two of the choicest roses. He gave one to Stuart and one to Eric.

"Say, it seems too bad to cut 'em off the plants that way," said Eric as he took the blossom and stuck it awkwardly into a buttonhole.

"That's what I grow them for," replied Andrew.

"How's your church work going on?" asked Stuart, pulling himself out of his brown study after thanking Andrew for the rose.

"Oh, I don't know yet. I'm slow to get acquainted, and this is a new field for me. If I can succeed in making the people believe they like me, I think we shall have a good time together. I never saw so many characters as there are up here."

"Do you count us in?" asked Eric.

"You're the very first ones. If I knew how, I'd put you two into a book."

"Anybody else?" asked Stuart.

"Dr. Saxon—that is, if he would stand still long enough to be put."

"Yes, the doctor would have to go in sure," replied Eric. "Is that all?"

"The Salvation Army would have to come in, led by Miss Dwight," replied Andrew. "Then I would throw in some specimen miners and mix them up in various situations, and my book would be very interesting—that is, it would if I didn't mix them up so that they never could get unmixed," added Andrew frankly. "I never wrote a book in my life, but I believe Champion is full of material for it."

"Perhaps some one will put us into a story some time," said Stuart contemplatively. "Meanwhile, my dear friends, to the realities of our present conditions. Every man could probably write one good story if he had to. At any rate, we live a story in our own lives, and I am beginning to learn that every human being is a tragedy—a possible one, I mean. Since I became a Christian"—Stuart spoke with a dignity that could be called nothing less than reverential—"I see a new world. I understand Paul's statement: 'If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature. Old things have passed away. Behold, all things are become new!' And among them all nothing is so new to me as human beings."

"They seem pretty old and commonplace to me sometimes," said Eric. "But I believe I know what you mean."

"I don't believe you do wholly. But I'll let you think you do. Now, we are going to see if three men of brains and willingness, with an interest in humanity, can do anything to help solve some of the questions that have been thrust into some of our own lives. First, say, there is the money part of it."

Stuart paused, and Andrew looked thoughtfully over at him. All three men were now at a point where the conversation and their object in conferring together had shut out everything but the most intense and absorbing interest.

"Well," said Eric at last, with his usual bluntness, "you're the only one that has any money. It's for you to say what can be done on that line."

"As near as I can figure out," continued Stuart as if he had not heard Eric, "the property left by father is worth in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. Half of it is in the mines and their equipment. Father had full control of the property at his death and practically operated the mines as the company. You know, Eric, how father managed. While the other ranges went into the hands of stockholders, leaving a few men in control with a surplus of stock, father worked along from the time he was a captain in the Rency mine, running all the business by himself. It is practically in the same shape now. I could sell out in ordinary times for $2,000,000. The mines turned out under father's management wonderfully remunerative. Then there is nearly $1,000,000 that I hold in trust for Louise. That of course is hers to do with as she chooses. The remaining $1,000,000 is in such shape that it could be converted into cash at any time and is entirely under my control."

"Then you have $1,000,000 to spend?" asked Andrew simply.

"Yes; it amounts to that. Of course the mines pay for themselves while they are running. This $1,000,000 represents savings, accumulations in the business, profits. Most of it was made in less than five years."

The men were all silent again. There was a good deal of hard thinking going on. Stuart spoke first:

"The question now is, 'How can this money best be used to the glory of God?' How would you use it if it was yours, Andrew?" He asked the question suddenly, turning to the minister, who sat close by the table with one arm resting on it close by one of his favorite plants.

Andrew stared at Stuart and did not know what to say. At last he exclaimed: "That's a very hard question to answer. In my wildest dreams I never approached the edge of a thought of a million dollars to spend. I never had over a thousand dollars a year in my life. I should think a million dollars would buy up all the hothouses in the United States, and as for rare specimens—well, it takes my breath away to imagine what a million dollars would do! But I'm off the track. Yes, I know what you mean. It isn't a question of what I could get for myself, but what I could get for other people, and I am inclined to believe it is harder to spend money for others than for yourself."

"I don't know about that," broke in Eric. "I have always believed if I had a million dollars to spend in Champion I could make good use of it."

"Go on, Eric; tell what you would do," said Stuart, turning to him.

"Well, for one thing," spoke Eric, his dark eye glowing under the impulse of his idea, "I would build a house or hall dedicated to the cause of labor. I would have it in the center of every useful and inspiring idea that could elevate and enlarge a man's mind, sensibilities and affections. I would have a platform there on which the best speakers, singers and preachers could bring their messages to the people. I would put two of the greatest joys of the world within easy reaching distance of every workingman in Champion—I mean music and flowers. They would be under the roof of this building dedicated to the common people.

"Oh, I have lain awake many a night planning out the spending of other people's money for my people," said Eric, with a smile that was sadder than tears. "The heartache, oh, the heartache, I have felt at the wasted music and perfume of God's rich earth! And if I had money to use I could bring some of these things close to the lives of these men and brothers whose lives are spent underground, who live like animals, as if God had never made the birds to sing and the violets to bloom. I almost hesitate to say to you two what I have felt as I have known of the rich and petted men and women of society wasting their money by the millions on their own narrow, selfish pleasure while thousands of the children of the street and the mine never heard any sound sweeter than a coarse note from an untrained voice or felt the beauty and perfume of anything better than a dusty weed by the roadside. These wants, these differences between the rich and the poor and the miracles of pleasure for my brethren and my own consciousness of helplessness in the matter have almost made me at times a hater of men, a blasphemer against God and all the universe. Money!" cried Eric as he clinched his hand on his knee, while the face pale and worn from the recent injury glowed with the fire of its inward spiritual agony. "If I had just what will be wasted in this town this winter in wicked display and foolishness, I could make a thousand children happy for a lifetime and save hundreds of souls from cursing God for ever having been born into a world of such inequality. I have thought sometimes I already lived in hell instead of earth. But— Well, excuse me. I didn't mean to get started this way. I'm mistaken and narrow and one sided and unreasonable and all that, and no one knows it better than I do. All the same, I am sure that as there is a God who rules and judges there will come a day of reckoning for the men and women who have spent his money on their selfish pleasures regardless of God's children who have gone through life starved and parched for the lack of the beautiful gifts of their Father which he intended all should enjoy."

There was a silence in the room. Andrew went over to the window and looked out. He came back to the table at once and without a word cut half a dozen of the choicest roses from his plants, hastily rolled them up in a paper and without a word of explanation rushed out of the room. Eric and Stuart could hear him tearing down the stairs three steps at a time. They looked at each other in silence and then rose and went over to the window.

Crossing the square by one of the diagonal paths cut through by the snowplow was Mrs. Bluney, the wife of the injured miner, the woman who had come in to see Dr. Saxon the day before Stuart and Eric had been caught in the mine. She was carrying a basket on one arm and was on her way home after having been down to Champion from her house up on the hill. Andrew had been up to see Jim several times.

Eric and Stuart, looking out, saw Andrew wade through a snowdrift that reached almost to his neck and stop the astonished Mrs. Bluney just as she was turning off to go up across the railroad tracks. He gave her the roses in the paper. She put them in her basket and bowed her curiously shawled and bonneted head. Andrew rushed back, darted up stairs, pulled a broom out of the closet, retired to the hall, brushed himself off and, coming back, said, panting: "Excuse me! I am sometimes taken that way. It is not dangerous."

"It would be a good thing if it was—that is, if it was catching," said Eric significantly.

As for Stuart, he had gone back to his seat and was very thoughtful, in a great study over many things.

"I am wrestling with a problem greater than any that ever challenged me," he said at last as the others remained quiet. "I need more wisdom and more knowledge. I believe, as Eric says, that money can create miracles of a certain sort in Champion, but shall I say: 'Go to, now! Behold me! I am Stuart Duncan, the mine owner. I have a million dollars. I am going to spend this money for your benefit. My friends, how will you have it? In libraries, soup houses, music, flowers, lectures, preaching, art or what not? I am ready to Christianize, elevate, improve and lift up, to bridge over the chasms that lie between rich and poor and educated and ignorant. You just keep quiet, and the million dollars will do the rest.' Is that the idea? Given, a million dollars to bring in the millennium. Is that the relation between a million dollars and a million years of paradise? It is not so easy. I can see the hall dedicated to labor. That is a possibility. And the music and the flowers and all that. Good. But there is a good deal more behind and within [illegible] very certain[illegible] I must see for myself what the needs are in Champion. I know in a general way, but I want to know in detail."

"There's one person can tell you all about it," said Andrew.

"Who's that?"

"Miss Dwight."

Stuart flushed. From where he sat he could see the front of the Salvation Army hall. Rhena was just going in with one of the women belonging to the army.

"I'm told that she is familiar already with nearly every case of suffering in Champion," continued Andrew. "She has even been out on the hills as far as Cornishtown. It's a pokerish place in winter, full of pit holes and abandoned prospecting shafts. I wouldn't want to get caught out there and lose my way after dark with this new snow covering up bad places."

Stuart did not answer. He was looking from the window and saw Rhena and the woman come out of the hall with bundles. They crossed the street and disappeared behind the engine house, going in the direction of the Cornishtown path.

"What did you say?" asked Stuart suddenly as he came back from his little journey with Rhena. Andrew and Eric were sitting where they did not see what Stuart had seen.

"I said that in case you ever fell into a hole in Cornishtown it might be just as well to leave the spending of that money to Eric and me," replied Andrew, nodding at Eric. "That is, leave it before you fell in. For the chances are that no one will be prospecting around at this time of the year with a rope to pull you out."

"I beg pardon," said Stuart. "Let us get at the subject again. It's very evident we cannot settle this matter offhand or in a hurry. But I'm sure the Lord will lead us to do something right. He hasn't given us brains and hearts and then left us to make fools of ourselves, especially when we don't want to."

We do not need to give in detail the afternoon's discussion. The plan for using the money was not fully shaped in any definite way. It could not be.

Even Eric was obliged to confess that the element of time was necessary to help in the solution. They were not planning for a day or a month or one winter, but for a good many years to come.

So Stuart finally went home after running into the office and leaving word there with a clerk to supply certain families that were known to be in want with fuel and food for the immediate time and also leaving word to send for him in case any special demand came in later on in the evening. The miners had recently made several personal requests for help, and Stuart, in his growing eagerness to know as much as possible of the facts in the town, had determined to go himself at the next pressing call and satisfy his desire for the truth.

After supper that evening Louise and Aunt Royal were discussing the coming party or "affair," which had been fixed for the following week. Stuart was sitting with them in the drawing room. There was a beautiful open fire in the grate. The mantel and tiling were handsome pieces of imported marble. The lights had not been turned on yet. It was not quite 7 o'clock.

"Horrible!" Aunt Royal spoke as if she had not understood her nephew.

"What have you decided to decorate with?" asked Louise. She had great respect for Aunt Royal as an authority in all matters of society or entertainment and deferred to her opinion without debate or dispute.

"I think we had better have Nyphetia roses in the front room and small ferns with pearl roses in the dining room. Smilax and carnations will be the proper trimming for the library and lilies of the valley for the music room. The last reception I attended in New York the Dupreys decorated the entire house with lilies of the valley. The effect was lovely."

"What did you say it cost?" asked Stuart, rousing himself to take part in the conversation. He had heard only a part of what Aunt Royal had said. She looked over at her nephew in surprise.

"I didn't say. I heard that it cost about $1,000. That is a small item for flowers in the Duprey receptions."

"It must have been lovely," said Louise, clasping her hands so that her diamond rings were the most conspicuous part of her in the light of the fire.

"I think it must have been horrible," said Stuart quietly.

"Horrible?" Aunt Royal spoke as if she had not understood her nephew.

"Yes; not the flowers, but the use of that much money to decorate for pleasure any man's private residence for the enjoyment of people who could see lilies of the valley any time they wanted to."

"Well, well!" Aunt Royal could not get any further. Louise broke in with a laugh.

"Oh, Stuart's been converted lately

NEW GAME LAWS.

Under the new game laws a man who wants to dine on wild duck, goose or venison must go out and kill the game or have a generous friend, for the sale of water fowl and deer meat is prohibited under the laws passed by the late legislature. The law, which regards any man as a hunter who goes out in the fields with a gun and a dog, will undoubtedly work to great advantage in the protection of game, inasmuch as the law makes it a misdemeanor for a man to be caught in the field during the closed season with a gun and a dog. Heretofore men have gone hunting during the closed season and secured a bag of game, but eluded the game wardens and those who seek to protect the game out of season because the latter could not prove that the hunter actually did any shooting. Under the new law it is taken for granted that a man is a hunter who is seen in a field between seasons with a gun and a dog, and can be prosecuted, whether he actually shoots anything or not.

Through the passage of the Melicke bill the duck law is changed, as it stops the sale of ducks, geese and other water fowl at any time, preventing also their being shipped out of the state by hunters or dealers. The season remains the same, from September 1 to January 1.

The bill of F. F. Ferris stops the sale of venison, moose and other kindred game in Minnesota, besides preventing their meats being shipped out of the state. It pushes the season ahead ten days, it now opening November 10, instead of November 1, and closes November 30.

The trout season now opens on April 15 instead of May 1, and closes as before September 1. The season for fishing black bass now begins June 1, instead of May 15, and remains open except during the months of March, April and May.

State Printer Whitney and the Northwestern Newspaper Union have broken the record on publication of the laws. The legislature closed at noon Friday. Monday morning at 5:30 o'clock the last of the twenty pages was ready for the press, thereby insuring the publication of the laws in the entire country press of the state the following week after adjournment. The Gazette will have the laws next week. Preserve the supplement for reference

DENSE SERI INDIANS.

Tribe of Mexican Savages That Are Incapable of Learning.

Do Not Even Know the Uses of the Ordinary Hunting Knife—Lack the Saving Qualities of Other Aborigines.

"The Seri Indians," said Prof. W. J. Magee, who has recently returned to Washington from an ethnological expedition into Mexico, "are in the scale of civilization a few degrees above the Cocopah Indians, whom we set out to visit; they do make their own bows and arrows and boats and show some cleverness in primitive navigating, but they still lack the knife instinct."

This commentary, says a Washington paper, called forth a question as to the meaning of the "knife instinct." The ordinary man in a civilized community, the professor explained, is so familiar with the knife and its purposes that its use has become practically automatic. At the table be cuts his food with his knife without going through any conscious mental process. It is as natural for him to do this as it is to take his drink from a cup or other vessel for holding liquor. If he wishes to open a package tied with twine in a hard knot or to whittle a bit of stick or to split an apple into two parts, down goes his hand instinctively into his pocket for his knife, and he can be talking or thinking about other things while he uses the knife for cutting.

Not so the Seri Indian. If he obtains a knife in barter he thrusts it into his belt as he has seen the Mexican frontiersman do, but in a meaningless way. It is a matter of imitation and not reasoning with him, for he has no idea of the common uses to which the Mexican puts the knife. If a deer crossed his path while his knife was in his girdle and with the aid of his dogs he were able to capture and kill it it would never occur to him to use his knife for cutting up the carcass. He would tear it, like a wild beast. If he kills a pony for food and hangs a quarter near his door to be eaten as needed he will bite into the meat and pull it apart with his teeth and nails, striping the sinews and tendons gradually till nothing but the bones are left. To cut the flesh away would be the last thing to occur to his mind and the most difficult thing for him to accomplish. Civilized man, with whom the knife habit, pursued from early childhood, presently merges into instinct, can have no idea of what it means to be without this rudimentary training. It is as hard for him to understand as it is for a person who has never been without the normal complement of faculties to understand the feeling of one born deaf and dumb and blind. The knife instinct is a sort of milestone on the road to civilization —one of the means by which we may measure the progress of any primitive people.

Speaking of the condition of the Seris as regards bloodthirst, Prof. Magee says that it still remains very deplorable and the visitors must not only be prepared, but visibly prepared, for trouble at any hour of the day or night. The one question on which the Seris' treatment of him hangs is that of opportunity; it makes no difference whether he be a Caucasian or a mixed-blood, a Yankee or a Mexican, or even a member of another tribe of Indians: the sole consideration is that he is an alien, wherever or whenever found. If the alien is well-equipped with means of protection, so that it is plainly inexpedient to attack him boldly, he will escape trouble as long as his vigilance remains acute. The night, which would naturally be considered the most dangerous time for the stranger, is really his safest time, for by doing careful watch duty by turns a party of visitors can avert an attack. But in the daylight there is apt to be a perilous sense of security and it is then that it behooves every alien to be individually on his guard. The Seris seem to have none of the sense of hospitality or honor which marks many Indians of a higher type. They have some notion of loyalty to each other, but the rest of the world is always fair game.

Another thing differentiates the Seris from the Indian tribes conventionally familiar to newspaper readers, namely, their treatment of their dead. As far as is known, they have no respect for the bodies of their warriors, leaving these unburied wherever they happen to fall, but the funeral of a woman is an occasion for great pomp and ceremony. There may be some relation between this and the fact that the Seris, like most other Indians, trace descent through the maternal line. Indeed, in the Seri tongue the women have no word signifying "father," though they have one for "mother." Men only can speak of their fathers. The reason for this distinction is not manifest.

Mrs. G. Koke returned to-day from a two weeks' visit at Thief River Falls.

Rufus Poirier has accepted a position with the Thief River Falls Lumber Co. as yard man in this city.

Chas. T. Grace, manager of the Elwood Land Company's branch at this place, returned to-day from a business trip.

Adam Schmitz has had the interior of his business house touched up by the artistic hand of E. Schlesinger. Fresh paint and new paper have wrought a great improvement.

Mrs. Wm. P. O'Brien returned Saturday from Crookston, where she had spent the week, a guest of relatives. Friday night Mrs. J. R. McKinnon entertained a company of friends in her honor.

Miss Grace Hussey, a graduate of the Winona Normal school, has been retained to fill the vacancy caused by Miss Renquist's illness, and arrived Saturday to take up her work in our schools.

Dr. John Paris, of Thief River Falls, who bought the practice and residence of Dr. Grundy was in the city Monday, looking after a large real estate deal in which he is interested. Dr. Grundy will move to the Pacific Coast.

E. S. Engesetter, the Gully hustler, was in the city Monday on his way to St. Paul, where he will gather up a bunch of homeseekers for whom he has farms picked out at a safe distance from the underground cavern of the Lost river.

Mrs. W. Zeh, who has been visiting relatives in this city and Thief River Falls, left Monday for her home in Missoula, Mont. She was joined here by her son Philip, of Thief River Falls, who goes to Montana with a view to locating.

Sheriff Sampson started out for Red Lake Sunday to place a lien on logs gotten out in the Moylan camp this winter to satisfy the claim of Joe DeMontette for wages, alleged to have been earned in the camp this winter, and which he is unable to secure.

Peter Morrissette came up from Cass Lake Saturday to visit a couple of days with his children before starting for Portland, Oregon, where he intends to take a pine claim. He started for that point Tuesday via the Great Northern, and was joined at Crookston by others from Cass Lake.

E. S. Bryant, assistant at the G. N. depot, Saturday received the sad intelligence of the death of his mother at Kansas City, Mo., and immediately left for that point, to be present at the funeral. His place is filled during the meantime by Ab. Fletcher, who is familiar with the duties of the position, having graduated from the berth several seasons back.

Nick Eckstein, the prominent Wylie merchant who was burned out some time ago, was a caller in the city last Thursday, and states that his new store building, which is to be 22x40 is well under way. The upper story will be fitted up for a hall, a luxury which Wylie lacks at present. Mr. Eckstein is one of the successful kind and his new store will be better than the old.

Remi Fortier, who owns six quarter section farms in Gentilly, was in the city Saturday. Besides farming successfully, Mr. Fortier has time to represent his district as county commissioner, and to participate actively in the management of the cheese factory and the Mutual Fire Insurance Co. He is not too engrossed with his own affairs, however, to be interested in the welfare of his neighbors, and is lending his influence toward pushing our creamery ahead.

H. H. Zaiser, the popular assistant cashier of the First State Bank, returned Friday from a ten-days' trip through the southern portion of Minnesota, where he visited, among other towns, Faribault, Owatonna and Waterville. Mr. Zaiser says while in the Twin Cities he heard from well authenticated sources that the Northern Pacific was about to build a line from Red Lake Falls to Bemidji, to connect with the Brainerd & Northern, and another line from Red Lake Falls to Roseau and War Road. In event of these extensions being made, Red Lake Falls would be made division headquarters.

JAIL BIRDS ESCAPE

DESPERATE ASSAULT MADE ON THE TURNKEY OF STEARNS COUNTY LOCKUP.

Movement to Increase the Assessed Valuation of Iron Properties—State Tax Commission Returns From an Eastern Trip—Northern Pacific Contemplates Immense Expenditures. General State News.

St. Cloud, Minn., April 16.—The most sensational jail delivery ever effected in this section of the state was successfully accomplished in this city Sunday night, when six men assaulted the jailer of the Stearns county jail and gained their freedom, two of them to be recaptured within a few moments and returned to their cells, four to escape capture, though probably one of them was wounded by the bleeding but still plucky jailer.

The delivery occurred at 10 o'clock, when the turnkey, Frank Greven, went into the jail corridor upon hearing suspicious noises from within. He had no sooner opened the iron door than he was struck several savage blows by the prisoners and felled to the floor. Over his prostrate form the men jumped and ran through the offices of the jail and into the street. The turnkey regained his feet, and although blood was flowing from the wounds on his head and shoulders he ran to the door and emptied five shots from his revolver after the fugitives. He then gave chase and overtook Julius Miller, who was charged with burglary, and, assisted by another man, returned him to jail. Ignatz Greven, father of the turnkey, captured John Stephens, an Indian sent up from Kanabec county on the charge of assault, and he was also returned. The other four, two of them said to be desperate criminals, escaped and thus far eluded capture.

RAISE THE TAX

Assessments on Iron Properties Said to Be Too Small.

Duluth, April 16.—In a short time another tax measure will be agitated in Minnesota, and that is the increase of the assessments on the iron properties. Complaints will be made to the governor that the mining property is being assessed at grossly inadequate rates, and under the law he must appoint a commissioner to look into the matter. The present assessments amount to less than $10,000,000, while it is proposed to raise them to $75,000,000. The sale of the Lake Superior Consolidated iron mines to the new steel trust furnishes a good basis on which to work. The terms of the offer for Consolidated stock makes the value of the mines owned by that corporation about $60,000,000, and they shipped last year two-fifths of the total ore shipments from Minnesota. At that rate, the total would be $150,000,000, and at the prevailing assessment rate of 50 per cent the mines would have to pay taxes on $75,000,000. One prominent mining authority says that the Consolidated properties alone are worth $200,000,000.

IMMENSE EXPENDITURES.

Northern Pacific Will Spend $10,000,000 This Season.

St. Paul, April 15.—President C. S. Mellen has authorized an announcement relative to enormous expenditures which the Northern Pacific will make the coming season. The expenditures will aggregate $10,250,000.

It sounds almost inconceivable, but the sum of $5,250,000 will alone be spent for rolling stock and similar equipment. It is the largest equipment order placed by a railroad company west of the Mississippi, and few Eastern roads can duplicate it. The other $5,000,000 will be spent in permanently improving the roadbed from St. Paul to Portland, in order that the line from end to end will be in perfect condition to bear the heavy strain of an ever-increasing volume of business.

These expenditures are the logical result of the rapid development of the Northwestern and the extreme Western country.

TAX COMMISSION RETURNS.

Much Information Obtained in Regard to Laws of Other States.

St. Paul, April 15.—H. W. Childs, William J. Hahn and Gideon S. Ives, the members of the Minnesota tax commission, have returned from their trip through the East.

Mr Childs says the commission found Michigan has made great advances the past three years, and by the enforcement of all tax laws brought additional millions into the treasury. Chicago has effected a revolution in establishing a tax board of review. Officials in New York concede their tax system unsatisfactory. Massachusetts taxes very little personal property. In Pennsylvania jobbers, merchants and manufacturers are exempt, and corporations and franchises are taxed heavily.

Three Miners Injured.

Duluth, April 10.—Frank Carlson, Erick Erickson and John Bell, three Biwabik mine miners, were seriously injured by the explosion of a can of black powder. The accident occurred while they were opening the can for blasting. All are expected to recover.

Minnesota Legislature Adjourns.

St. Paul, April 13.—Both houses of the state legislature have adjourned sine die, the morning session being given up to closing routine, voting gratuities to clerks and doorkeepers and the signing of bills. No legislative business was transacted.

PURCHASED FOR IOWANS.

Sale of Seventy-two Thousand Acres of North Dakota Land.

St. Paul, April 15.—A large immigration of farmers to the uncultivated prairies of Central North Dakota, to occupy lands purchased by Ed R. Moon of Burdette, Ia., of the Hackney-Boynton Land company, will take place within the next few days.

Mr. Moon has been in the city several days consummating a deal whereby he gained possession of 74,201 acres of land which formed a portion of the 1,200,000-acre tract which the Hackney-Boynton Land company recently acquired of the Northern Pacific. He will now turn his attention to the transportation of his tenants to their new homes. The land which they will cultivate is situated in Burleigh, McLean and Kidder counties, N. D.

SHOT HIS WIFE AND FLED.

Joseph Beauchane of Duluth Causes a Sensation at Crookston.

Crookston, Minn., April 15.—Because of her refusal to live with him Joseph Beauchane of Duluth shot his wife at the residence of her mother during the day. The couple were married six months ago.

Beauchane became ill and has spent two months in a hospital. He reached Crookston Saturday and his wife decided she would rather care for herself than to return to him. The ball entered her stomach and passed through her body. Beauchane fled and has not been arrested.

Mrs. Robert G. Evans Dead.

Minneapolis, April 15.—Mrs. Robert G. Evans, wife of United States District Attorney Evans, died at 10:30 p. m. For more than a year Mrs. Evans has been in failing health and it was the decision of her physicians that no operation was necessary. This was performed a week ago and for some days it was thought she would recover from the shock. She showed much improvement and her friends were led to believe she would be restored to health soon. Mrs. Evans was 43 years of age and a native of Indiana.

Big Sawmill Destroyed by Fire.

Milaca, Minn., April 15.—Fire broke out in the big Foley-Bean sawmill here and in a few minutes the plant was nothing but a smouldering ruin. The fire probably originated from an overheated pulley or steam feed pipe on the upper floor and had gained great headway before being discovered by the watchman. The sawmill, which is the chief manufacturing industry here, had just started up for the season Thursday and employed 300 men. In all probability the company will rebuild at once.

Northwestern Flour Output.

Minneapolis, April 12.—According to The Northwestern Miller the flour output at Minneapolis last week was 322,050 barrels, compared with 306,904 barrels for the corresponding week last year. Duluth and Superior ground 2,450 barrels. The volume of sales for the week was considerably larger than the output, though some mills did not sell as much flour as they made. Most was done in domestic markets, foreigners being largely out of the market.

Increase of Smallpox Cases.

St. Paul, April 12.—The threatened epidemic of smallpox is not yet completely under control. The last two fortnightly reports of the state board of health show an increase in the number of new cases that is far from reassuring. During the two weeks ending April 8, 424 new cases of that disease were reported, 63 more than existed during the two weeks ending March 25, and 96 more than were reported for the fortnight ending March 11.

Stone Pile for Tramps.

Faribault, Minn., April 16.—Tramps are becoming so numerous and troublesome in Faribault of late that Mayor Ruge has decided to start the stone pile in operation and give them all employment. The stone pile has not been in use for the past three years. Prior to that time it was very effective in ridding this city of tramps.

Minnesota's New Capitol.

St. Paul, April 9.—The house has passed the senate bill increasing the limit of cost of the new capitol building to $3,000,000 with amendment requiring that all contracts must be let before April 2, 1902. Senate promptly agreed to the amendment and passed the bill as amended and it now goes to the governor.

Muster Out Fourth Regiment.

St. Paul, April 15.—The refusal of the state legislature to appropriate the $15,000 asked for the state national guard will result in the Fourth regiment disbanding. There are only three companies now in existence and Adjutant General Libbey will very soon muster them out.

Mad Dog Scare in St. Paul.

St. Paul, April 15.—Mad dogs are beginning to be frequent on the streets of St. Paul. Several have been killed after biting other dogs and a number of horses, and a number of cases of rabies are expected to develop in the next few weeks.

Children Run Down by a Car.

Minneapolis, April 13.—Lillian Rodall, aged 7, and Armond Bixby, aged 2, were seriously hurt in a street car accident here. The little girl was terribly mangled, both legs being broken in half a dozen places. Her injuries are probably fatal.

Appropriation Bill Passed.

St. Paul, April 10.—With a few minor amendments, changing the total not more than $9,000, both houses passed the general appropriation bill carrying $2,700,000. This will fix the tax levy at about 1.3 mills.

WYLIE GAZETTE.

Edited by H. P. JOHNSON, WYLIE, MINN.

Fisher, a nice little town, beautifully located on the Red Lake River, whose districts tributary constitute the foremost space in the golden grain belt has just been visited by your correspondent. Going on the fast Wylie Flyer, we were taken, seemingly, through prairies dotted with small lakes, for with the destination yet ahead, the scene was shallow sheets of water—reflecting mirrors near and yonder.

Fisher is a place which has a history of good old times well marked. It remembers the days when from great distances, the welcome farmers would arrive with their precious products. Railroad cars and store buildings, they would fill with cereals; in return their purses would be well stuffed with the medium of exchange which would thence circulate to encourage local business. The village bears marks of the good old times, when it stood as a great magnet capturing constant business from the new homesteaders, drawing without interference the well filled kernels brought forth by the rich soil around, and recalls to memory the cheerful and encouraging street scences, when bright hopes were yet entertained for its future.

But, as the great net of railroads was woven and spread over our continent, the day came when that net seemed too course in that part, and additional cords of steel were made to zigzag one another, thus limiting the territory of its trading center; and today you hear, from the villagers as a result, "Fisher is on the decline." The railroad branches with the many new towns have put Fisher in the shade, and business there is paralyized. The boomy spirit prevails no more. Village property has gone down in value, for no one finds it wise to invest money there. But as the country around shows footprints of hard-working and industrious people—well improved farms and delightful homes, the fruits of their efforts, so is demonstrated that the village has had existance in a passed flourishing age of rich harvest, for the men at the helm of business are well-to-do.

Fisher has a full-page illustration in its history; that of a distructive fire which so brilliantly illuminated the air of a recent night. The foremost business corner is turned into ashes, and tongues of the merciless flames licked the wall of buildings around, threatening to lay the whole town waste.

Your correspondent has an uncle there, who is an old resident of Fisher, having been in the flour-mill business there for many years, and since wheat agent for Northwestern Elevator Co., he has handled thousands of bushels of No. 1 hard Red River Valley wheat, and can tell of times when wheat loads would come in long caravans, and form long columns at the place of its disposal. It is so no more.

Our country permits no standstill; either go forward or backwards. The excellent train service, the strong energetic people, and the matchless quality of the land, all that of high order should take a hold of the benumbed arms, and lead their village forward to new life, nurtured by a new and irresistible business current.

COFFEE. My trade in Gas Roasted Coffee is increasing daily, which goes to show that these brands are giving good satisfaction. If you are a lover of good Coffee you must try my FANCY BLEND for satisfaction. It will pay you to use this grade as one pound will go a good ways further than a cheaper grade.

The MORNING STAR is a medium grade and has already gained a hold with my customers. The OLD GLORY is a cheap grade and for the price has no equal. Judging from the great demand, it has an established reputation. Remember these are gas roasted coffees and contain one-third more strength than those roasted by the old process.

Axel Erickson went to St. Hilaire Monday to look for employment.

J. P. Larson made business trips to the Saintly City Tuesday and Wednesday.

John Peterson, his wife and daughter, Alida, braved the muddy roads to Red Lake Falls Friday.

Chas. J. Johnson, one of our prominent young men, and the foremost of our pedagogues left Friday for Tabor, Polk Co., where he will teach a four months' term of school. Mr. Larson is a valuable member of the Ebenezer Young People's Society, which will feel the loss of his help during the summer.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that had for many years made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praise throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at W. A. Schreiter's drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my left arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parsons & Co., druggist of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

LEGISLATIVE DOINGS

Monday, April 8.

The senate cleared the calendar by passing 42 bills and killing 1. Among the measures passed were the bills relating to the dispute between the state and the Little Falls and Dakota Railroad company. The bill appropriating an additional $1,000,000 for the new capitol also passed.

The house passed the Butler bill regulating the business of street and electric railways by subjecting their annual report to the railroad and warehouse commission. The Larson legislative reapportionment bill also went through, but the Chilton bill prohibiting the marriage of idiots, etc., was defeated.

The omnibus appropriation bill was introduced in both houses. It carries a total appropriation of $2,737,000, an increase of $600,000 over that of two years ago.

Tuesday, April 9.

The house passed the omnibus road and bridge appropriation bill under suspension of the rules. The bill disposes of $32,000 in the various counties of the state. The vote by which the Demlog parole bill was killed was reconsidered and the measure again sent to the governor. Senator Snyder's bill, advocating the adoption of the Torrens law in the conveyance of land titles, was passed.

The senate defeated two much discussed bills, the Reeves text book bill and the Snyder civil service bill. A bill providing for the enforcement of payment of taxes now remaining delinquent for 1895 and prior years in certain counties was passed. The memorial to congress favoring the national park reserve was adopted after a long debate.

Wednesday, April 10.

The Smith bill to raise the salaries of representatives to $750 per term and senators to $1,500 passed the house, 52 to 40. The speaker of the house and president of the senate will receive $1,000 for the term. The omnibus appropriation bill, carrying $2,744,000, was passed after brief debate. The bill fixing the tax levy at 1.3 mills was introduced and passed under suspension of the rules.

The senate passed the Miller resolution instructing the attorney general to investigate the consolidation of the Duluth and Iron Range road with the Duluth, Missabe and Northern. The tax levy bill and the omnibus appropriation bill were passed. The Wilson sugar bounty bill was killed—18 to 36.

Thursday, April 11.

The last day of the session ended in the house at 10:10 p. m., with practically everything cleaned up. Many bills were reported adversely from committee and promptly killed. The Leyhourn resolution to censure Messrs. Jacobson and Washburn anent the bribery charges was not recalled and the Miller resolution to investigate consolidation of iron roads was defeated.

The last day in the senate was marked by the passage of a large number of bills, important, for the most part, to the members who were their sponsors. The house substitute for the senate national park memorial was called up and defeated after a lively debate. Bills passed were: Adding two house members to the Hennepin delegation; Hillary log lien measure; reducing interest on school loans from 10 to 7 per cent; Armstrong 8-hour bill.

Friday, April 12.

Both houses of the legislature adjourned at 12:30, after being in session 79 working days. A total of 738 bills was introduced in the house and 553 in the senate. Of these 220 house bills and 152 senate bills were passed by both houses.

The last day of the session in the house was devoted to passing resolutions of thanks and congratulations were showered on many persons. Gratuities were voted to nearly every employe.

In the senate a last fight was made for the park memorial but objection promptly killed it. A long list of appointments sent in by the governor were confirmed. Senator Stockton was re-elected president pro tem.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

COUNTY NEWS NOTES.

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS.

Emardville.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. Ingebretson April 8.

A few days more of dry weather and seeding will keep the farmers busy for a time.

Miss Grace Tousley, of Red Lake Falls, opened a three months' term of school in Dist. No. 228 last Monday.

You cannot enjoy perfect health, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes if your liver is sluggish and your bowels clogged DeWitt's Little Early Risers cleanse the whole system. They never gripe. W.A. Schreiter.

Voting members of Imanuel Sw. Luth. church had a meeting for the purpose of electing a deacon in place of A. E. Lorenson, resigned. Anders Lee was elected, and other important business transacted.

'Tis said a creamery will be started in the near future in connection with Mindrum Bro's. store. The gentlemen are from the creamery belt of the state and are enthusiastic advocates of creameries.

Mindrum Bros. of Fillmore county, are building a house opposite the Lutheran church, with the intention of starting a store. They are also figuring on the Lost postoffice. Mrs. Huseby, the present P. M., having resigned in favor of one of the firm.

You will waste time if you try to cure indigestion or dyspepsia by starving yourself. That only makes it worse when you do not eat heartily. You always need plenty of good food properly digested. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the result of years of scientific research for something that would digest not only some elements of food but every kind. And it is the one remedy that will do it. W. A. Schreiter.

Black River.

Seeding has begun on ridges: oats being first on the list to put in this year.

Swan Anderson who sold his farm sometime ago has been on an extended trip to Washington to look up a better place than Red Lake county.

A carload of machinery and stock was side tracked at Wylie last week. On arrival here the parties were informed by the land agent that the land they had in view could not be had. They are now looking for other land.

A number of land seekers were up to Wylie last week, with the intention of looking over land, but owning to the bad condition of the roads and the poor accommodations they were compelled to go to St. Hilaire where they could get livery teams.

Rocksbury.

Rocksbury land is on the boom, and it will soon sell for higher prices.

Fishing is good at the dam near Geska's and men with dip nets are seen there by the dozen every day.

Those famous little pills, DeWitt's Little Early Risers, will remove all impurties from your system, cleanse the bowels, make them regular. W. A. Scheriter.

The Geska boys have commenced seeding. Their land near the river bank is high and dry, when the rest of us will have to wait at least a week before our land is dry enough to seed.

Bernt H. Wold sold his farm to J. Meehan last week. Consideration $1,400. M. H. Seeland sold his farm to the First State Bank for $2,000, and A. Melo sold his to S. Svenson for $1,200.

Hill Top.

Farmers have commenced seeding in this vicinity.

D. J. Gerlach was doing business in Dorothy last Thursday.

Hilltop will soon have another wedding—if nothing happens.

E. H. Gerlach and Jake Schwalenberg visited with the family of M. E. Todd last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Gerlach have gone housekeeping in their new home near Red Lake Falls.

Farmers in this vicinity are all trying to sell their farms, they say Minnesota is a duckpond but not a wheat country.

Farmers had a soft snap Saturday, wading through the mud, taking their stock to town which they had sold to Joe Berry.

Rev. Val Kern has gone to North Dakota, where he will attend the preachers' conference. He will be absent about a week.

Skin troubles, cuts, burns, scalds and chafing quickly healed by the use of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is imitated. Be sure you get DeWitt's. W.A. Schreiter.

Sanders.

Henry Eliason and family visited Halvor Hanson Sunday.

Albert Severe and Ed. Nerveson left for Keystone to-day.

Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Banken called on Mrs. Engebretson Sunday.

The spring work is not yet begun on account of it being too wet.

Ole Thorson and Nels K. Anderson were in St. Hilaire Monday on business.

Services were held in the Norwegian Lutheran church Easter Sunday by Rev. Lunde.

A meeting to discuss the creamery question was held at the school in district No. 149 recently.

H. F. Anderson was sick, with a very bad cold last week, and Miss Christina Aaseby took charge of his school.

Taken this month keeps you well all summer. Greatest spring tonic known. Rocky Mountain Tea, made by Madison Medicine Co. 35c. W. A. Schreiter.

Nurden.

Miss Mary Bergh, of St. Hilaire, is visiting with her parents here.

Farmers are beginning to look over muddy fields, to see if seeding is possible in the dryest parts.

Miss Laura Anderson who accompanied O. Johnsrud from Dugdale, returned to Maple Bay last week.

Two auction sales took place here this week. One at A Remmem's, the other at Fred Olson, who intends to leave soon for Canada.

A movement for farmers to erect and run a creamery is being made and meetings to further the matter have recently been held in several places.

O. Johnsrud and Geo. Anderson, of Dugdale have purchased a farm from Jas. Meehan in this neighborhood, and will take possession in a couple of weeks.

"I have been troubled with indigestion for ten years, have tried many things and spent much money to no purpose until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken two bottles and gotten more relief from them than all other medicine taken. I feel more like a boy than I have felt in twenty years." Anderson Riggs of Sunny Lane, Tex. Thousands have testified as did Mr. Riggs. W. A. Schreiter.

Lambert.

Conrad Lajambe began seeding Monday.

Loui Falardeau sold has his farm to Tololf Torgeson. Consideration $1,600.

Menegile and Polinare Hince both have erected new barns on their farms.

Adolph Carpenter went to Black River last week and purchased a fine Norman stallion.

Alexander Daoust returned Friday from Clearwater, where he has been engaged in the construction of a bridge at Lacombe's crossing.

"I had piles so bad I could get no rest nor find a cure until I tried DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. After using it once, I forgot I ever had anything like Piles." E. C. Boice, Somers Point, N.Y. Look out for imitations. Be sure you ask for DeWitt's. W.A. Schreiter.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Mandor are the happy parents of twins, a boy and a girl, born Friday, April 12. The babes were christened Sunday, and the occassion was observed with considerable eclat. The god father and the god mother for the boy, who was christened Joseph Albert, were Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lacoursiere, while Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lacoursiere were sponsors for the girl, who was named Mary Louise. Messrs. Lacoursiere are both uncles of Mrs. Mandor.

River Falls.

Roads are getting better now.

Spring work is progressing very slowly.

L. T. Bergh is home with his family for a short visit.

Wash Adams lost the three head of stock as stated in last week's paper.

So far as known Carl Dahl is the first to start seeding in our township this spring.

The remains of the 17 year old daughter of R. Skorstad, of St. Hilaire, were interred in the Swedish Lutheran cemetery on the East Side on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Brevick and his two sons went to St. Hilaire Sunday to attend services in the United Lutheran church where the two boys were confirmed, the pastor, Rev. Lund, officiating.

Workingmen are passing through here from the eastern part of the country at a great rate, bound for St. Hilaire as the saw mill started the night work Monday and is now running at full speed day and night.

The schoolboard of Dist. No. 178 had a meeting at the treasurer's office for the purpose of hiring a teacher for the spring term which opens the first Monday in May. Miss Eva Johnson of St. Hilaire was engaged.

"Last winter I was confined to my bed with a very bad cold on my lungs. Nothing gave me relief. Finally my wife bought a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure that effected a speedy cure. I cannot speak too highly of that excellent remedy." Mr. T. K. Houseman, Manatuway, Pa. W. A. Schreiter.

Dorothy.

J. F. Mathews has erected a neat little barn with all modern improvements.

Very late spring. Apparently seeding will be done late in this neighborhood.

Ben Gayette is in bed with some trouble that the physicians have not been able to solve as yet. He may die.

Land seekers are not as common through the country since they have to use Norwegian skis to travel the soft prairie.

Wheat Magnet Mathews of this place has shipped out all of the wheat he had stored for the Thorpe Elevator Co. All graded well.

School commences in District No. 48 on the 22d of this month with Miss Anna Sutter as teacher—a letter A among our Red Lake county teachers.

Octave Bairieu has accepted a position with J. F. Mathieu for part of the season. Mr. Bairieu has attended the St. Hilaire school the past winter.

Bronks.

Miss Alice E. Beaudry opened a term of school in the Hebert district Monday.

Thos. Morreau, of Gully, has come back from Gully to stay with us. Welcome, Thomas.

A large number of our citizens attended the funeral of Mrs. Remi Cote of Terrebonne, who died Thursday, April 11. Deceased was sixty-four years old and is mourned by many friends.

"Have you any doubts remaining?" said Mrs. Jones. "No Marinda, I have not. I took Rocky Mountain Tea last night." 'Twill remove any impure blood in the human family. 35c. W. A. Schreiter.

SEED WHEAT

We have selected some very choice seed wheat, that we will sell or exchange. We have both pure Scotch Fife and Blue Stem, and it is free from all foul seed, cleaned ready for a seeder. This wheat was raised in the bottom lands near the Red River of the North, and is about as fine a sample of wheat as we have ever seen. We have tested samples of the wheat that has been damaged by rain and find that about only forty of fifty per cent of it will grow, and when it does grow it makes a very puny and inferior straw. As a matter of fact there are very few farmers who appreciate the value of a change of seed. They will go on year after year seeding the old, run out, cockly seed, when a good strong seed gives them from 2 to 3 bushels per acre more and it does not cost any more to plow, harrow, seed or harvest, and they would have a good seed wheat of their own the following year. Sample of this seed wheat can be seen at our office or at the Crompe Elevator.

TERREBONNE DITCH.

'TWILL BE SIX MILES LONG AND DRAIN THOUSANDS OF ACRES.

THE DITCHING JOBS WERE LET MONDAY---WORK TO BEGIN AT ONCE.

Monday was a lively day at the court house and Auditor Zeh had his hands full waiting on the would be ditch contractors. The result of the bidding was that eight contractors got the work, and the amounts paid and the average cost per cubic yard come very close to the original estimates made by Engineer Ralph. There are 7,775 cubic yards of dirt to be removed, and the average cost will be from 9 to 10c per cubic yard. Some bidders went as low as 7c, others got the maximum 11½c. Those who received contracts were Joe Patenaude, A. Perusse, X. Sauve, E. A. Moran, Louis Ducharme, Dan Linnihan, W. W. Barnard, of Moorhead, and Thos. Smith, of Crookston. The jobs are let by stations of 100 feet each. The ditch will be six miles long and an average of 3½ feet deep. The mouth will have to be completed first, before the first of July, while the contractors on the upper portion will have till Nov. 1st.

Auditor Zeh is to be congratulated on the way the matter was handled. The interests of the taxpayers along the route of the canal were always made paramount, and it is gratifying to note to local bidders and farmers secured the greater share of the work. Jos. Pigeon got the contract for a slice of the work, and will also build three bridges, at $170 each. Let the good work go on. Drainage will add 50 per cent. to the value of our lands.

Astray.

Twelve head of stock broke loose at the N. P. corral Sunday night between 8 and 9. Steers and heifers, from one to three years. Please notify me or return, when a liberal reward will be given.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

Brainerd is to have a new and modern opera house.

The National Grain Growers' convention will be held in St. Paul June 11 to 15.

J. J. Hill's special train made the trip from Seattle to St. Paul in 45 hours and 50 minutes.

Rabies is general throughout St. Paul, six cases being reported from all sections of the city this spring.

Mrs. Martha Ames, mother of Mayor Ames of Minneapolis and a pioneer resident of this state, is dead, aged 83 years.

The business men of Kenyon have started a movement to try and get the state training school for girls located at that place.

The P. L. Kimberly-A. E. Humphrey property near Virginia, is reported sold for $1,000,000, presumably to the United States Steel corporation.

The Duluth, Misabe and Northern railroad has stopped all work on the extension to its Stevens mine, notwithstanding the fact that $150,000 has already been spent upon it.

The Wisconsin Central is planning $100,000 worth of improvements in St. Paul. A portion of the money will be spent in the erection of a modern warehouse, to cost about $75,000.

Ellis Kling, aged 77 years, a resident of St. Cloud since 1851, is dead. He was one of the well known pioneers of that section and for years was employed by the American Fur company.

At Fergus Falls Judge Amiden sentenced Spire Bisazza to eight months in jail. Bisazza was convicted of concealing $10,000 worth of goods from his creditors, but the jury recommended mercy.

RESIDENT OF POLK

TELLS A STORY WHICH, THOUGH A TRIFLE MIXED, IS INTERESTING.

Saturday's Crookston Journal says: A rather unusual case of land contest came up in the U. S. land office in this city today. The story of the matter in question runs about as follows:

It appears that in 1897 Mr. W. C. L. Demann made entry for certain lands in the extreme eastern part of Polk county as it now exists. When Red Lake county was established and set off from Polk, the governor appointed as one of the commissioners for the newly organized county, W. C. L. Demann. It was not known that Mr. Deman was an entryman in Polk, nor a resident of this county, but such was the fact. Mr. Demann qualified and served as county commissioner and at the last election over his protests he was again nominated and elected as commissioner of Red Lake county. Mr. Demann did not even attend the polls to vote. He again qualified and has since acted as one of the commissioners. Mr. Demann and his family have resided upon the lands covered by their homestead entry in this county and in all respects fulfilled the requirements of the law, hence when it was learned that a contest for abandonment would not lie against the entryman, and the case was abandoned by the plaintiff, and today the contest was dismissed. Mr. Demann has one of the best improved farms in the reservation in eastern Polk county, and will make proof of his claim in the near future. The question is, what have the people of Red Lake county to say about its Polk county commissioner?

We always knew that Red Lake county could not get along without the backing of Polk, and this incident bears us out in the belief.

We know of no like circumstance in the history of the country.

Nat Campbell represented Mr. Demann in the premises.

NEW LAND FOR SETTLERS.

Red Lake Reservation in Minnesota May Be Opened.

Washington, April 20.—In connection with the consideration of plans for the opening of ceded Indian lands on the Chippewa reservations, the attention of the secretary of the interior has been directed to unceded portions of the Red Lake reservation, for the opening of which a demand comes from that section surrounding Thief River Falls, Minn. Representative Eddy has been in conference with Secretary Hitchcock on this subject and the secretary seems to be favorably disposed toward the idea. The land referred to embraces 11 townships on the Red Lake reservation. It is adjacent to Thief River Falls, and while title is vested in the Chippewas, the secretary of the interior is authorized in a general provision of the last Indian bill to take steps for its cession to the government. This provision, incorporated in the Indian bill on the recommendation of Representative Eddy, is to the effect that the secretary may negotiate through an inspector for the purchase of unallotted Indian lands. The townships embrace an area of more than 253,000 acres of desirable agricultural lands.

Word from Pittsburg says that F. E. House, general manager of the Bessemer and Lake Erie road, is the man upon whom the United States Steel corporation has settled to manage the two consolidated roads in Minnesota—the Duluth, Misabe and Northern and the Duluth and Iron Range.

Captain C. S. Barker, the Duluth dredging contractor, has given an option on his plant to the dredging combine that is being formed on the lakes, and he believes that eventually the combine will include every plant on the lakes. E. T. Williams & Sons have also given an option on their Duluth plant.

The recent law authorizing the Torrens system of land transfers in Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties is held by some lawyers to be unconstitutional. It is claimed that the legislature had no power to limit operation of the law to certain counties. Advocates of the law allow that it will be expensive in its inception, but that many thousands of dollars will be saved in its final operation. It is probable that a test of the law will be made.

THE CONCERT

WILL COME OFF AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

The Sacred Concert for the benefit of St. Mary's church will be held Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, opening each evening at 8:30 sharp. At exactly 8:30 the first number will be rendered, and there will be no deviation from this schedule under any circumstance. The price of admission is 35c, children, 25, reserved seats, 50c. Reserved seats are now on sale at Schreiter's drug store. The same program will be rendered each night, with the exception that Friday night Miss Toupin will sing "Calvary" accompanied by Miss Josephine Kaus, while Saturday night she will sing the beautiful "Haec Dies," in which she has made such a popular hit. Miss Eva Marchildon will play the accompaniment for this selection. The tickets for the two nights will not be interchangeable, as the same seats are sold to different parties, in many cases, and the two night plan was adopted to prevent overcrowding.

SUCCESSFUL PROMOTER.

Mark D Stoner Clears $25,000 on Blackduck Village Lots.

Mark D. Stoner, county surveyor of Beltrami county and proprietor of the townsite of Blackduck, is spending the day here selling a few lots to Crookston friends and looking up some matters at the U. S. land office.

As a promoter of townsites, Mr. Stoners's first experience shows that he is possessed of rare ability. He does not talk of his success in a tone that would attract general attention, but some of his friends who have seen the records of sales of Blackduck property are unable, after allowing for all discounts, to figure out less than a profit to Mr. Stoner of $25,000 on the deal.

A portion of his business here today was to confer with Manager Peterson of the Water Works company concering a feasible and practical plan for affording fire protection to Blackduck business men. It is impossible now to secure any insurance upon buildings or stocks there owing to the lack in this direction.

Work on the railway extension from Bemidji to that point is progressing rapidly, and arrangements are being made to work night and day shifts in the heavy cuts. There is nothing from an engineering point of view to prevent the completion of the road to Blackduck in 10 days, and it is confidently expected that the people there will celebrate its arrival on the Fourth of July.

It is settled that the extension of the Red Lake logging road will connect with the new line a mile north of Turtle River.—Crookston Times.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

PHILIPPINE NEWS.

The transport Lawton, with the Thirty-ninth infantry on board, has arrived at San Francisco.

General MacArthur signalized the issuance of Aguinaldo's peace manifesto by releasing a thousand prisoners of war.

General MacArthur has cabled the war department that the reports of commissary frauds have been greatly exaggerated.

Fifty insurgent riflemen attacked the town of Bay, on Bay lake, in Laguna, southeast of Manila. They were quickly routed.

Washington officials express the belief that Aguinaldo's manifesto will have great weight at home as well as in the Philippines.

A thousand troops in the island of Cebu are unable to accomplish the surrender or capture of the 200 insurgent riflemen, who are still out.

It is believed that Mgr. Chappelle will recommend to Rome that young American priests be sent to the Philippines to take the place of the friars.

The war department has chartered the transport Tartar, now at Hong Kong, to bring home discharged men of the regular army from the Philippines.

Adjutant General Corbin authorizes the statement that no material changes will be made in the army in the Philippines until after the war department has heard from General Chaffee on the subject.

Aguinaldo has finally issued his manifesto to the Filipinos. He declares without reserve his allegiance to the American government and resolutely proclaims to the world that he is unable to refuse to heed the voice of his country, which declares unmistakably in favor of peace. A majority of his countrymen have already joyfully embraced peace, and he believes that this best serves the interest of his beloved country. In conclusion he admonishes the insurgents to follow his example.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

to some of the communistic socialistic ideas. Didn't you know that, aunt? The next we know he will begin to object to our using roses for decoration next week here in the house."

Stuart did not say anything. He was thinking of Eric's speech that afternoon, and his heart beat heavily as he thought of all the wasted music and flowers of the earth. Who was getting the best of these two great and beautiful gifts of God?

Was it not the very people who were able to pay the highest prices for them? Where was the right in squandering a thousand dollars of God's own money to enjoy the beauty of flowers when people were dying of hunger and misery in the nearest tenement? If it was God's money and if men were only trustees of the funds, would God probably consider that a right use of the money? It was only one phase of the doctrine of stewardship which Stuart had lately begun to believe in.

But Aunt Royal was not the person to remain silent after Stuart's use of the word "horrible" in connection with her decorative ideas as they were connected with social functions. She asked, sharply for her:

"Do you mean to say, Stuart, that you think we have no right to use flowers in giving pleasure to our invited guests?"

"No; I did not say that," replied Stuart dryly.

"What do you mean then?"

"I can't make you or Louise understand me," said Stuart after a pause.

"No, Stuart talks in riddles of late. He thinks we are too aristocratic and un-Christian," said Louise. There was a sneer in her voice which hurt Stuart keenly.

"Why do you say that, Louise? You know I am thinking of the poor families who are beginning to suffer at this time. Surely we ought to do as much for them as for ourselves. If we spend a hundred dollars to decorate the rooms with flowers for a party, we ought to give twice as much to help feed the hungry. The better way would be to take the money spent on the flowers and spend it on food."

"What!" cried Louise angrily. "On the people who have brought their condition on themselves by their own foolishness! Who is to blame for their being hungry and cold if not themselves?"

"The women and babies are not to blame, and they are the ones to feel the suffering most," said Stuart quietly.

"Well, you can use your money that way if you want to, but I don't waste mine on people who don't know when they're well off."

Stuart rose and stood with his back to the fire. He was agitated with all the new ideas that had crowded into his life since the day God had spoken to him. He felt that the revolution in him would cut square across all the traditions and usages of polite society, especially in the matter of money and its personal expenditure.

Finally Louise and Aunt Royal took up the subject of the coming party and began discussing the families who were invited.

Stuart still stood silently engrossed in his own thoughts and hearing only now and then a word. At last he was roused by Louise.

"Stuart, will you sing with Una next week? You remember that duo you sang before you went abroad?"

"Yes; I'll sing if I am here that evening," replied Stuart, with a feeling that he was fast losing all his interest in the things that once amused him. He had a splendid baritone voice and was a favorite singer with all his friends.

"Why, are you planning to be away?"

"No. I did not know what might happen under the condition of the strike and all."

"We've invited the Meltons and the Vaspdaines. They would be very much disappointed if you were not here," said Aunt Royal.

"I shall probably be here," said Stuart briefly.

Louise rose suddenly and went up to her brother.

"And I invited Miss Dwight, Stuart. She refused to come, but don't you think I am too aristocratic for anything to invite her?"

Stuart looked at Louise in astonishment. The words sent the color to his cheek and set his pulses beating.

"You knew she would not come," he said in a low voice.

Louise stared as if she had been caught in her lie to Rhena. She went back to her seat and was silent. It was at times a mad freak with Louise to say or do the unexpected thing. She was not original, but she sometimes took a malicious pleasure in startling people.

"I am glad she refused," said Aunt Royal, who sometimes forgot her diplomacy in her gratification at things. "She certainly would have felt very much out of place among us."

"Yes, that's so," said Stuart, provoked into a statement he could easily have made before his conversion. "She would have been out of place among your other guests because most of them are uneducated boors and clowns in comparison with a lady like Miss Dwight."

Aunt Royal was speechless. She could not find anything to say at first. Finally she began in her usual gentle voice:

"I am surprised, Stuart, to hear you speak that way of a common Salvation Army"—

That was as far as Aunt Royal could get. Stuart interrupted with an emphasis that petrified both the women:

"I will not allow you or any one to speak a disrespectful word of the woman I love and who, if God is good enough to me, will some time become my wife!"

With the words Stuart walked out of the room, leaving his aunt and Louise gasping as if a pail of ice water had been thrown over them. And what they said when they recovered history saith not, and Stuart never knew nor cared.

He went away to his room and sat there without turning on the lights. He knew that he had precipitated matters in the home by his brief but outright declaration of his purpose. He did not regret it, but he was a little afraid he had shown the un-Christian spirit in his words or manner. The old Adam had a place in him yet? No, he said to himself; he was a new man. The very best evidence of it was his present action. He knelt and prayed to be forgiven if he had spoken wrongly. He was still praying when a servant brought word that he was wanted at the telephone.

He went down and was informed by the clerk in the office that two of the miners had come in, and, acting under instructions, the clerk had called up Stuart to come and see them. Stuart told the clerk to hold the men until he could get down. He went out at once and drove into the town.

The men who had come to the office were residents of Cornishtown. They had come for help in a case not their own, but that of a miner who lay sick and in need at the farthest limits of the settlement.

Stuart hastily loaded his cutter with necessaries, and with one of the men to direct the way he started out. The night was dark, and a fine snow was falling. The drifts were piled high on either side of the road. Stuart knew he could drive only part of the way. As he went by the Salvation Army hall he stopped a minute to speak to one of the men standing on the steps. The hall was lighted, but there was no meeting going on.

"Miss Dwight went up to Cornishtown this afternoon with some clothes to distribute and is not yet back," the man said in answer to a question of Stuart's.

He drove on with a great feeling of uneasiness at his heart. He recalled Andrew's words about the abandoned pits and prospecting holes all about Cornishtown and on the side hills. The thought that Rhena might be in peril there quickened the stir of his blood. He drove his horse with a reckless disregard of the speed or the danger. The miner who was with him in speaking of it afterward said, "Tell you, boys, I thought most I was with the doctor, and I kept saying my little prayer, as everybody does who rides with him."

When they reached the limit of the road, Stuart left the horse and cutter in a shed behind one of the cottages. The people in the cottage there had seen Miss Dwight come up that afternoon. She had stopped a minute to warm herself and then gone on.

When Stuart reached the house at the end of the miners' path, it was snowing furiously. Rhena had been there before him. She had left her bundle of clothing, and that was the last that any one had seen of her. Stuart rushed out of the miserable cabin and down the path to the next cottage of the settlement. Nothing had been seen of Rhena on her supposed return to town. She could not have passed the two men on their way up. Stuart stood in the little path listening, with his heart trembling. The great pines sobbed under the rising wind. Far below the lights of Champion gleamed here and there through the falling snow. And never had Stuart Duncan loved Rhena Dwight as at this moment, when the terror of the fear possessed and choked him that she had wandered out into the treacherous pits and was perhaps even now lying at the bottom of one of them dead or dying. He prayed as he stood there. "My God, my God, save her, for I love her more than my life!"

CHAPTER VIII.

COMPLICATIONS.

Stuart had known every foot of Cornishtown as a boy and was familiar even now with most of the curious little lanes and paths that cut it across and tracked up and down the side of the great hill like the marking of some gigantic game. There was probably no other place just like it in America. The prospecting holes were of various depths. Some of them had caved in at the sides and were shaped like old cellars or cisterns with masses of rubbish at the bottom. Others were wells, anywhere from 50 to 100 feet deep, and especially dangerous in winter, when the snow, lodging on bushes growing about the shaft's mouth, artfully concealed the locality of danger.

It was Stuart's first thought when he calmed himself to think and act that Rhena had attempted to make a short cut by one of the miners' paths from the upper part of the settlement of Cornishtown to Champion and in the dark and confusion caused by the change which snow makes in the appearance of old landmarks had stumbled into one of the shafts. Under this conviction he ran back to the house where Rhena had been and from which he had just come himself, and, begging a lantern, he started out on a path which at first in his terror he had forgotten. He had followed it but a little way when the lantern revealed a small black object right in the center of the path. He stooped eagerly and picked it up. It was a lady's winter glove trimmed with fur at the wrist. He recognized it as Rhena's. He had seen her wearing that kind of a glove a few days before. He placed it in his pocket and went on as fast as he dared, eager and yet dreading with a horror he never felt before the possible discoveries he might make. The miner who had come up with him had gone down to the settlement at Stuart's suggestion to rouse others to come out and join in the search. So he was alone up there in the mysterious shadows of the pine covered slope. Every step he took over the small, barely defined trail was like a step into an unknown land, and yet he was conscious, even as he dwelt with terror upon the strange adventure so suddenly thrust upon him, of going over that very path one warm summer day when a boy only 10 years old, and the smell of the balsams as they gave out their peculiar pungent odor in the warmth of the sun seemed to be in his senses now. Several persons had evidently been over the path that very day, for the snow was trodden down, and the marks of feet were not yet wholly covered by new snow.

Quite a long distance from the place where the glove was found Stuart came to an old stump which marked a giant pine of many years before. The path turned about the foot of this stump, and on the other side of it as he strode up, praying in his heart for mercy and safety to be shown this woman, he saw her lying so still and white that he dared not think what it might mean. She had fallen over a mass of ore that had rolled into the path, and one hand and arm lay stretched out directly over one of the most dangerous pits on the hill. So near had she been to instant death!

With a cry Stuart caught her up. Still, he dared not question whether what he held was alive or dead. He said to himself he would not ask. He knew she was not conscious. He moved now with more of instinct than by sight or reason, feeling his way down the hill. He seemed to feel confident that he would not fall into any of the shafts with this burden, and with a strength and purpose that moved him with even more than his usual determination he went on down, keeping before him the glimmering light of the nearest cottage. Finally he had reached a cross path to the one he had first entered and in which Rhena had met with her accident. The light from the cottage had disappeared. He was now in a hollow or depression of the slope which had sometimes been used by the miners for a rough roadway to one part of the Davis mine, and as he entered it he thought that he could feel rather than see that tracks had recently been made through the hollow. He went down very cautiously. Rhena was still unconscious.

Suddenly a sound came to Stuart from above. He stopped and listened. It was the sound of sleighbells. He could not trust his hearing and listened more intently. Yes, that was too common a sound in Champion every winter to be mistaken. As he listened and looked up into the opaque space filled with snow which fell straight down in the hollow where the wind was cut off a horse emerged like a great shadow and a vague rough outline of something behind.

He saw her lying so still and white.

Stuart shouted, and the next instant he knew that there was only one man in all Champion or De Mott, or for that matter in the entire range, who would dare drive up or down Cornishtown hollow to Davis hill at night and in winter. It was Dr. Saxon, and he had been out to see Jim Binney and taken the old road up the hollow to save time. It was a common saying in Champion that the doctor would calmly have taken a short cut through the infernal regions rather than go around, especially if there was a patient in great danger on the other side.

The horse was like his master and could pick his way over the hills and through the rough trails like a mountain goat. He had a great gift for getting through snowdrifts, and one of the miners said that he once saw the doctor's horse help his master right the cutter when it tipped over by sitting down on the shaft that was uppermost, while the doctor pushed on the other side. Certain it is that never did a lighthouse gleam on a lost mariner with its saving light more joyfully than did the familiar horse and cutter appear to Stuart as they plunged right out of a great hole and tumbled down almost over him as he stood there holding his precious burden.

"Whoa! Steady there, Ajax!" cried the voice of the doctor from the cutter which bounded out of the hole all right and came to sight again, like a snowplow on an engine just after plunging out of a drift.

"Doctor!" cried Stuart. "Thank God! Quick! Miss Dwight! She is dead or dying! I found her unconscious on the upper trail!"

He crowded through the snow up to the side of the cutter and placed Rhena on the seat beside the astonished doctor.

"Well, well, if this doesn't beat the Salvation Army drum all to pieces! I can't escape from practice even in Cornishtown hollow. You take the prize for furnishing material on the spot. Are there any more of the army dead or wounded or dying around here?"

"Hurry, doctor! Save her! Say, is she dying? Is she seriously hurt?"

"Humph! Well, I tell you, Stuart, she's a plucky lass, and it's ten to one that she's dangerously hurt. No; she's not dead." All this time the doctor, who never wasted any breath talking and doing nothing, had been examining the condition of Rhena. "We'll get her right down to the town as fast as possible. Come, jump in and hold her. I can't drive and tend to her too."

Stuart did as directed, and the horse lunged forward at the doctor's word. It seemed to Stuart that the doctor was mad to drive at such a pace.

"Do be careful, doctor! You'll kill us all! Go slower!" Stuart gasped as he held Rhena and breathlessly braced himself against the back of the cutter.

"You've got your hands full without driving," was all the satisfaction Stuart could get, and before he could utter much more remonstrance they were out of the dangerous part of the hollow and had struck into the beginning of the road that led down to Champion. From that point the two men did not speak until the doctor reined Ajax up in front of Rhena's lodging. He had chosen to go right on instead of stopping at any of the cottages where the accommodations for help were so meager. The doctor carried Rhena into her room and left Stuart outside with the cutter. When Saxon finally came out, he was able to bring Stuart good news. It was a case of unconsciousness from a bad fall, but he did not fear any serious consequences.

They were standing by the cutter talking together, when one of the women looked from the door and called the doctor.

"Oh, doctor, will you see if Miss Dwight's glove is out there anywhere? She's lost one of them."

"Shake that robe, Stuart," said the doctor as he flashed the lantern around on the sidewalk and about the cutter. "Like as not it's down in the bottom somewhere. Don't you find it?" he asked, not noticing what Stuart was doing. Getting no answer, he shouted back: "It's not here, ma'am! Must have dropped it on the way down." The woman shut the door, and the doctor said, "Get in, Stuart, and I'll take you home."

Stuart climbed into the cutter without a word. As the doctor seated himself and Ajax was about to make his usual wild plunge up the street Stuart said, "I have Miss Dwight's glove in my pocket, doctor, and I am going to keep it."

"What's that!" exclaimed the doctor. He was nearly twice Stuart's age and had known him all his life. Stuart did not know any one to whom he felt like telling his secret more than to the doctor.

"But what's the good of one glove, Stuart?" The doctor was not quite sure that Stuart wanted to tell him all.

"I mean to have them both," replied Stuart frankly, looking right into the doctor's face. "Old friend, can't you see that I am in love with her and at the very highest point of my life already because of it?"

Stuart spoke louder than he had meant to, forgetting that persons were passing along the sidewalk. Several of the Salvation Army people had gone up to Rhena's lodgings to inquire about her. It is not probable that any heard Stuart, but the doctor suddenly struck Ajax, and the cutter whirled into the square and darted across one of the diagonals. Close by the band stand the doctor pulled up as suddenly as he had started and said abruptly, "I'll wait for you."

"Wait for what?" exclaimed Stuart, astonished.

"Why, I thought may be you might want to go up into the stand and tell all Champion that you were in love with Miss Dwight."

Stuart laughed softly. "I am not ashamed of it. Indeed, doctor, I do feel like shouting it out at times. No, no!" he added as the doctor started Ajax on again and they came out into the main street. "It is a matter of great pride with me. And at the same time I shrink from making it too common. There is no danger. Doctor, will you say, 'God bless you, Stuart,' as you used to sometimes when other events in my life came on?"

"God bless you, Stuart! Aye, aye, 'that belongs to 'e,' as my Cornishmen say when they mean it ought to be so. You've chosen the best, pluckiest and most character endowed woman in all Champion, or the state for that matter. Well, well, I knew it all the time! You and Eric think I'm so busy that I don't have time to notice anything. But that's because I see so much more than you do in a given time." There was a short pause. "If I were you, Stuart, I wouldn't keep that glove very long. It isn't just fair this cold weather."

"Thank you, doctor. I have been thinking of that," replied Stuart.

He had grown very thoughtful suddenly. His life had opened out into another possibility with this new experience. He was conscious of its bearing upon all the rest of the problems that knocked at his heart and mind for answers, and when he bade the doctor good night he went into the Red Lake Falls Gazette.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER
—BY—
POIL. A. KAFFER.

Published weekly, Thursday evening, and entered as second-class matter in the postoffice at Red Lake Falls.

Subscription, $1.00 per Year

☞ All matter for publication in THE GAZETTE must be handed in on or before Tuesday 6 p. m.

OUR NEW LAWS.

Ignorance of laws won't excuse you. With this week's issue of The Gazette we present to our readers a complete publication of the general laws of this state passed by the legislature during the session just closed. When you receive it, don't throw it aside. neither would we advise you to undertake reading the publication form beginning to end, but look over the index on the last page of the supplement, find the different acts you are interested in and when you have the time, post yourself on the new wrinkles. Above all keep the supplement for future reference.

The legislative session of 1901 passed more good bills and killed more bad ones than any session in the history of the state. It elected two of the oldest men in Minnesota to represent the state in the United States senate. It reduced the term of its own service by twelve days, which means a saving of probably $15,000 unless it is found necessary to call an extra session. It indulged in less junketing and consequently less loss of time than any predecessor, and it was for this reason that it cut twelve days out of its time and yet disposed of every important measure which it had to consider.

And it should be noted that within 24 hours after final adjournment every bill that had passed was acted upon by the governor, attested by the secretary of state and placed in the hands of the printer for publication. Such a record is unparalleled in the state's history.

Not only was the legislature active and effective in its manner of procedure, but it was notably free from lobby influences. Railroad, telegraph, telephone and express companies, as well as other corporations, found themselves being forced into line on new and increased rates of taxation, and, from all that could be seen, made no great resistance. The express company's gross earnings tax was increased from 5 to 6 per cent. and there was comparatively little opposition to the bill. The gross earnings tax of railroads was ordered increased—subject to the vote of the people—from 3 to 4 per cent. Many members of the house, particularly, thought this matter should be referred to the tax commission, and so voted by a majority, but when the passage of the bill was insisted upon by its friends the bill was passed. The senate did not even consider the reference to the commission but passed the bill with practically no opposition. Whether the law is a good one or not; whether it is constitutional or not, it was perfectly clear that the people wanted a chance to vote on it, and the legislature heeded the voice of the people.

The primary election law is another that was passed in direct response to the expressed will of the people. The newspapers of the state, almost without exception favored the bill and the governor had given it his endorsement. There was, of course, some opposition, but this opposition came mostly from country districts, whose members feared that it was too long a stride to take. The cities were, almost without exception, in favor of it, and it received a majority which conclusively showed that the public was behind it with a vote of approval.

And now comes the annual allotment of seeds, sent out by the Agricultural Department, via the Senators and Representatives, via the chairmen and local leaders. 'Tis said the seeds for Minnesota would have been several days or perhaps weeks later had it not been for Congressman Eddy's formal call at the Agricultural Department, where he told them a few straight truths in regard to the weather and conditions generally prevailing about this time in this district, and of course the seeds were sent out immediately after that—another of the many instances where the people find occasion to be thankful for good deeds done. And by the way, these homesteaders on the Red Lake reservation who are proving up, find it pretty convenient to get their land free instead of paying $1.25 an acre for it, as they would of necessity be doing if the free homes bill had not been enacted into law, the credit for which is Congressman Eddy's.

RUNG BY ENGINES.

Chimes in New York That Are Operated by Electricity.

Closing Hours of the Nineteenth Century Were Made Melodious by the Use of a Modern Invention.

When the great 6,000-pound bell of St. Patrick's cathedral, answering the chimes of Grace and Trinity, boomed out the closing hours of the last century and ushered in the new, it rang down the curtain on the melodramatic and picturesque occupation of the bell-ringer as he is known in literature. The shadows that veiled those somber inhabitants of the belfry, the phantoms and elfin creatures of the bells, have all been banished, and in their place now a heartless mechanical genius, with a switchboard, compressed air, and electrical power hired from a street-lighting company, has with mathematical precision reduced bell-ringing to a business basis, says the New York Post.

The chimes of St. Patrick's, which consist of 19 bells weighing from 270 to 6,000 pounds, with the names of the various donors on them, came from the great Paccard foundry in Paris three years ago, and cost $30,000. They have a musical range from lower "F" to upper "D," with the accompanying sharps and flats. Immediately upon their arrival the trustees advertised for an original device to ring them, and, after a public competition R. C. Champ, of Brooklyn, was awarded the contract. His plan called for a small keyboard 18 inches long, fashioned like that of a typewriter, to be placed in the sacristy, and which could be operated with ease by anyone with a knowledge of music. Champ worked for three years at his device, aided by the trustees, who not only called in well-known experts to advise him, but when the sum of his contract was exhausted made a further contract with him. They had the satisfaction of knowing on the night of December 28 that the installation was perfect, and three nights after, the chimes played "Adeste Fideles," "O, Father of Light," "The Harmonious Blacksmith," and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," at the dawn of the new century. The other day the automatic clock mechanism which is to render the "Angelus" and "De Profundis" four times daily was successfully installed.

William F. Wynn, consulting engineer to the trustees, in describing the plant, says: "It is an adaptation of the compressed-air cylinder adopted by the Union Switch and Signal company. Mr. Champ in following their idea constructed 19 bell engines, corresponding to the number of bells. These bell engines are bolted to wooden seats, which in turn are bolted on a system of steel beams inserted in the walls of the north tower. These engines consist in their working parts of a fine grade of bronze composition metal, so as not to rust or corrode. The engines practically consist of three main parts, two cylinders and a piston, which fitted to a clip hung on the clapper of the bell above it. On the engine there is an adjustable clevis, so that the stroke can be arranged to a nicety, and, once so adjusted, it cannot change its position.

"The engines are operated from the sacristy by means of a key-board. A key being depressed, a current of electricity is sent along its wire to the belfry, where, by means of an air-valve operated through an electro-magnet, the compressed air is admitted to the bell engine, and the air pressure delivers the blow, which acts upon the clapper and rings the bell."

Siberian Tiger in New York Park That Is Impervious to Intensest Cold.

At this season of the year great pains are taken to protect the majority of the animals in the Central park menagerie from cold, particularly the members of the cat family. There is one member of the cat tribe, however, who stays in an exterior cage of the lion house even on the coldest days. He is the Siberian tiger. Such is the climate of his native land that he need not fear anything in the way of cold that this city can produce.

The Siberian tiger is probably the largest member of the cat family and some claim for him the added distinction of being the most ferocious, says the New York Mail and Express. In the winter the Central park exile is one of the most attractive features of the menagerie. The colder the weather the more animated does he become; he paces the cage all day long with eyes glowing and head erect, longing no doubt to feast on the rosy children who gather in crowds before his prison.

It is in hot weather that the other members of the cat family have the laugh on their handsome cousin, as the saying is. The Siberian tiger has no winters of discontent; he has summers. It is pitiable to see his suffering when the sun begins to warm things up. At such times the poor beast lies on the floor of his cage from morning to night with his tongue hanging from his mouth.

STORY OF A ROYAL DEBT.

Berlin Paper Says King Edward VII. Owes the Kaiser 24,000,000 Marks.

The Vorwaerts (socialist organ) lately printed a remarkable story to the effect that Emperor William's sudden departure for England was not only due to a desire to bid farewell to his dying grandmother, but still more to the prince of Wales' urgent wish to settle a private debt affair in the emperor before ascending the throne. This debt the Vorwaerts asserted, amounted to 24,000,000 marks, which Emperor Frederick, immediately after beginning his reign, loaned the prince of Wales in order to place the latter in a position to pay accumulated debts to the amount of 24,000,000 marks. The loaned money it was further asserted, was part of the savings, amounting to 56,000,000 marks left by Emperor William I. Count von Stolberg, then minister of the imperial household, the Vorwaerts also said vainly opposed the paying out of the 24,000,000 marks, and thereupon resigned. In official circles here the Vorwaerts' story is characterized as a gigantic hoax.

From the most trustworthy source it is ascertained that there is no foundation whatever for the rumors, frequently appearing in the German press, that Emperor William is largely indebted to Herr Krupp and other German capitalists. On the contrary, the kaiser is not only without debts, but he is saving money yearly for his children.

CHAOTIC PENAL SYSTEM.

Ten-Day Prisoners Are Frequently Mixed with the Condemned in Delaware.

The whole penal system of Delaware is in more or less chaotic condition, and this, as well as the pillory and whipping post, may be attributed to lack of public thought or study along corrective and charitable lines, says Theodore Dreiser in Ainslee's. The state jails have the qualities of old-time colony prisons. There is no penitentiary. There is no system of prison labor. There is no reform school. For important crimes the county jail at New Castle is selected because it is the hardest and much the strongest; for the most trivial offenses the same prison is made to serve. Prisoners with ten-day sentences are mixed with those awaiting execution and those who have a lifetime to serve. Young and old, boys and gray-haired men, negroes and white, all are jumbled together, and the discrimination made is one which lacks import. It is that the short-term prisoners are allowed to do the small labor, such as cleaning, cooking, coal-carrying, rock-beating and the like in the open court or jail-yard, where stands the pillory, while the long-term convicts are not allowed to do anything at all. This is considered a fairly satisfactory arrangement, although a more modern workhouse is sometimes talked of.

STRANGE WOOING OF LUCK.

Italians Make Gruesome Selections of Numbers in the National Lottery.

Ever since the assassination of King Humbert hundreds of Italians have been trying to win prizes in the national lottery by playing those numbers which correspond with his age, says a London paper. These numbers are 56, 10 and 49, the king having lived for 56 years, 10 hours and 49 minutes. If these three numbers should win the player would receive 4,250 times the amount of his stake. Some unusually optimistic gamblers have tried to win even more than this by playing a fourth number (73), which is the symbol of a regicide. If this combination, 56, 10, 49 and 73, were to win the government would have to pay 60,000 times the amount of the stake.

The last drawing was held in Milan a few days ago, and, singularly enough, the winning numbers were 56, 10, 48 and 72. These came pretty close to the mark, and as a result Italian gamblers are more determined than ever to keep on playing their favorite combination until it brings them good fortune.

CHANGE THEIR OLD NAMES.

Many Foreigners Begin Life in This Country Under New Aliases.

The clerk of the city court, says the New York Evening Post, lately made public the names of 70 persons who changed their names in legal form in the year 1900. Most of the original names are of palpably foreign extraction. As a rule all reasonable requests for change of name are granted. They are then filed away, the petition giving the avowed reasons for change and the judgment passed upon it by the court. A glance at the records and the various name changes gives rise to considerable speculation as to the real cause of dissatisfaction. Why, one wonders, should a name of such aristocratic twang as Waldemar Ruthyar be cast aside in preference to the hackneyed title of Henry Smith? On the next page of the records is the reverse of the question of high-sounding names, where one finds the somewhat plebeian cognomen of Gumbinsky changed to Von Tilzer. What evidence of nationality remains in the name of Jay, unless it is discovered to be a corruption of Jacobowsky? There scarcely could be any greater effacement of a family name than to substitute the noncommittal Blank for Polanger.

Sebastian Bibn is lost entirely in Frank Walter and Ruzicka becomes the Americanized Rose. Many changes result from family quarrels, when another family name is taken in place of the legitimate one. Often the wills of eccentric relatives demand a change in the name of the beneficiary, without which no legacy can be obtained. Occasionally debt or imprisonment has brought the name of some person into such disrepute that a new name is sought for which a new reputation may be built.

In the case of foreigners who have become American citizens the stiff consonants of Russia, Bohemia or Poland prove too much for our Anglicized tongues and a change is really necessary. Under this reason come such changes, no doubt, as Chmelicek to Luhan, Nengroschel to Rochelle, Yuzukjinn to Yuzuk, and Rochmovitz to Rockmore. By far the larger part of the list of changed names belongs to those ending in ski or sky. The terminal here is generally dropped, leaving the parent stem. The dropping of this ending results often in names that bear not the slightest trace of the nationality of the changers. Kempinski becomes plain Kempin; Jampolsky is reduced to the Dickenslike name of Jampole.

New Member's Blunder.

A brigadier general or major general is entitled to the keep of three horses at Uncle Sam's expense; a colonel, lieutenant colonel, major or captain to two only. The forage allowance is often commuted by turning over the same to the quartermaster, and this practice once betrayed a suspicious new member of the house into a curious blunder. He announced that he had discovered that "officers of the army are selling the forage allowed to them, and one such case I am prepared to cite from the records of the war department—a case in which the oats and hay were transferred, doubtless for a consideration, to a person named Q. M. Corral." There was an exchange of looks and winks among his astonished hearers, and then an old member kindly rose and said: "I presume, Mr. Speaker, that the memorandum referred to by my distinguished friend refers to a transfer of forage, in the ordinary course of business, to the quartermaster's corral."—Troy Times.

Had the Best of It.

Tommy Atkins had taken a Boer prisoner, and, the two getting friendly, talked about the prospects of the war. "You may as well give it up; you will never win," said the Boer. "'Cos why?" asked Tommy. "Because we've the Lord on our side," said the Boer. "G'arn," said Tommy, with great contempt, "why, we've three lords on our side, and one of 'em's made a bloomin' hass of 'imself!"—Chicago Chronicle.

Miss Della Wilkins will be married to Wm. Frederick Kirk, next Wednesday, at the home of her parents in Grand Forks. Miss Wilkins was formerly a resident of this city.

Remember the first number of the program at the Sacred concert will commence at 8:30 to the minute. If you want to hear the opening number you must be there at that time.

Nick Eckstein, of Wylie, wheeled to the city on his bike Tuesday. Mr. Eckstein is certainly a man of courage to undertake the trip in that way in the present condition of the roads.

Remember there is one point about Heidgerken & Reichert's wall paper that you should look into—the prices. They are so low that you will be surprised if you take the trouble to investigate.

R. J. Montague was up from Crookston Friday on business. Mr. Montague is considered a congressional possibility in the ninth district, along with Myron, Grindeland, Comstock and Steenerson.

John Rice, one of the progressive young farmers of Wyandotte, was in the city yesterday patronizing our merchants, and was so well pleased with the treatment accorded him, that he will no doubt come again.

The W. C. O. F. gave a very successful card party at the hall Tuesday night. A lunch was served shortly before midnight, and the prize awarded to Miss Albina Lemieux, who was the lucky one out of four cutting for the prize.

The Sacred concert Friday and Saturday nights of this week will open at 8:30 sharp. This schedule will be strictly adhered to, and anyone coming after that hour can not expect to hear the opening numbers of the program.

Mrs. J. A. Hendricks, nee Miss Esther Johnson, arrived in the city Monday from Fargo. She will remain until the family remove to Lake Park, sometime in May. Mrs. Hendricks' health is giving her relatives considerable alarm.

To accommodate our customers we have opened a flour and feed store on Main St. and will be pleased to meet our old customers as well as new.

Don't forget the baseball dance at the Opera House Friday night, May 3. The best music available will be secured, and every effort is being made to carry out the affair as a "marker" for future events of the kind this season—the boys will sell tickets in advance, and all should patronize them whether disciples of terpsichore or not, for the good of the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Ralph came up from Crookston Monday.

Eve troughs put up in city or country. Leave orders at Hunt's Hardware.

Attorney Thos. Germo took the train for St. Hilaire yesterday, where he had a case in justice court.

Prof. Syney Lyle, a piano tuner, was doing the city Friday and Saturday—and the barbers looked on vainly with longing eyes.

The work of finishing up Levack & Normandeau's new blacksmith shop is progressing rapidly. It will be ready for occupancy in the course of a week.

A crew of fifteen men, under the foremanship of Little Joe Cyr, went up to the Tamarack River today to get out logs for the Red Lake Falls Lumber company.

M. F. Howe who came up from Slayton, Minn., three weeks ago departed for his home Thursday and expects to return shortly with his wife to remain here the rest of the summer, and look after the farms which he purchased last fall.

The Lafayette Club of the public school will give a play, "Mischievous Bob," also a ball tossing drill, a cake walk, costume songs and other numbers, at the Maccabee hall on the evening of May 2nd. Admission, adults 15 cents; children, 10.

Harvey Cox, of Hawarden, Iowa, who wisely invested in a farm three miles east of this city last fall, is here and has leased the place for a year. Mr. Cox says his only regret is that he did not buy several other farms at the time he acquired this.

Geo. D. Williams, the Hawarden, Iowa gentleman, who bought a half section of land in Poplar River last fall, is in the city, having come up to make a lease of the place to a neighboring farmer. Mr. Williams ordered The Gazette sent to his address for a year.

W. Junkin, of Thief Lake, drove a bunch of cattle numbering 32 head down to this city Monday for shipment to Dickinson, N. D. Mr. Junkins says the country around Thief Lake is all settled now, and the price on farms there have caught an upward trend.

John Patenaude, the contractor, came down from the lumber camps, just in time to put in a bid on the Terrebonne ditching jobs. Mr. Patnaude had eight horses at work in the camps this winter and these will now go on the ditch job, he having secured a slice of the work.

Mrs. Gideon Champoux left Monday for North Yakima, Wash., with four children. Mr. Champoux went out in February and purchased a 10-acre ranch near Yakima for which he paid $57.00 per acre. Before leaving Mrs. Champoux sold seven acres of land in the city limits of Crookston for $600.

The order of Judge Watts in the Chayer case vs Kaufer et al was received Sunday. It grants a new trial unless the plaintiff consents in writing within twenty days to have the verdict of $375 reduced to $200. The defendants are not satisfied, and will probably serve notice of appeal to the supreme court.

Knute Steen, of Wyandotte, says the new Scandinavian Lutheran church, which is being erected on Sec. 17 in his township, will soon be completed. The people of Red Lake Falls assisted materially in making the undertaking feasible, by a subscription of $65, which is considered very liberal by the people interested, who desire to express their appreciation through The Gazette.

Sheriff Sampson returned Monday from a trip to Shotley Brook, where he served a summons and complaint on Pat Maylan for Fred Schwenicker, Alderic Dumotelle and John Pensonault, who are making an effort to collect their winter wages. Sheriff Sampson says his mileage was three hundred miles, and it broke his record for long-distance service. The ice is still solid in Red Lake, and the roads are about as bad as they can be.

Today Mike McNamara shipped his nine teams of horses, together with a supply of grub that will last twenty men three months, to Malta, Mont., where he has the contract to excavate one mile of irrigating ditch for the Milk River Irrigating Company. The ditch will be six miles long, 26 to 28 feet wide at the top, about 7 feet wide at bottom, and ten feet deep. He purchased his camp supplies from Theo. LaBissoniere of this city. Mr. McNamara reports that he has word from Rock Lizee, formerly of this place, to the effect that he is just finishing up a railroad grading contract there on the Great Northern Chester cut-off. Mr. Lizee is a heavy contractor, with sixty head of horses, and a grading outfit to match.

Duluth has made a contract with a local electric lighting company to furnish street lighting for five years at $53 per year for each light. This disposes of the plan of building a municipal plant for the time being.

Preliminary work has begun on the Duluth, Virginia and Rainy Lake railroad, that is to run northward from Virginia to tap a large tract of timber and to open the country between the Mesaba range and the international boundary.

The board of education of St. James held a special meeting and issued a call for an election to vote on the proposition of issuing $10,000 more bonds for building purposes. In February $25,000 was voted, but this was found insufficient for the improvements.

CUTTING OF TIMBER

MUCH ILLEGAL WORK UNEARTHED BY GOVERNMENT INSPECTOR.

Big Acreage Deal in Northern Minnesota—Minneapolis Stonecutters on Strike for Higher Wages—Mining Property at Virginia Sold to the Trust for $1,000,000—News of the State in General.

Minneapolis, April 23.—The Journal prints a long report of its investigations into the depredations on the Chippewa Indian reservations this winter by logging contractors under the "dead and down" act. In almost every camp quantities of green timber have been cut. In many instances the logging contractors openly admitted illegal cutting. The special government inspectors found that out of 40,000,000 feet cut this winter 3,600,000 feet has been illegally cut.

Joseph R. Farr, the special inspector sent to investigate by Indian Commissioner Jones, has forced the lumbermen who buy these logs of the contractors to pay for them at $11 per 1,000, thus securing for the Indian fund $[illegible] extra.

Captain W. A. Mercer, the Indian agent at Leech Lake, has closed up several camps entirely. He and Mr. Farr have gone to Chicago to report to Commissioner Jones.

BIG ACREAGE DEAL.

Eastern Parties Make Some Heavy Investments.

St. Paul, April 17.—It is reported that Indiana and New York parties have purchased 300,000 acres of land in Marshall, Polk, Itaska and Cass counties in this state and that they desire to purchase 200,000 additional acres. A very large percentage of this land is said to be swamp lands, but if properly drained will be excellent for agricultural purposes.

At the last session of the Minnesota legislature a drainage commission was created and $25,000 a year appropriated for digging ditches and draining the low lying lands of this state, so as to reclaim them for agricultural purposes. The Eastern parties, it is believed, are buying on the strength of this action, being convinced that when the land has been drained they will be found to have made some very profitable speculative investments.

Another large acreage deal is being conducted in this city and involves the purchase of about 200,000 acres of land in Crow Wing and Cass counties. The completion of this deal will probably be announced within the next few days.

H. E. HOUSE IN CHARGE.

Appointed to Administer Two Northern Minnesota Roads.

Duluth, April 20.—A special to The News Tribune from Pittsburg, Pa., says that H. E. House, general manager of the Bessemer and Lake Erie, has been selected by the United States Steel company to administer the Duluth and Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroads. W. J. Olcott, vice president of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern, will have charge of all the trust's ore properties on the Missabe range, while Joseph B. Cotton, the local attorney for Rockefeller's mining interests, will retain a similar position. N. E. Cole of Ironwood, Mich., general superintendent of the Oliver Mining company, has been chosen to have charge of all the trust's mines in Minnesota; Dr. H. P. Hulst of Milwaukee, general manager of the same company, will occupy a relative position with the steel company.

STONECUTTERS ARE OUT.

Minneapolis Employers Refuse Demand for Increased Wages.

Minneapolis, April 23.—Labor troubles in Minneapolis have been still further augmented by a disagreement between the stonecutters and their employers, which has resulted in a lockout for the former. The union has made a demand for 50 cents an hour, instead of 45 cents paid last year, which has been refused. Formerly the stonecutters worked under the 50-cent schedule, but during the period of financial depression they agreed to reduce the price to 45 cents, providing that after "good times" had returned the old schedule would be resumed. The stonecutters contend that the employers can well afford to pay 50 cents an hour this year and embodied a demand for that wage in the contract for this season.

TRUST BUYS A MINE.

Property Near Virginia, Minn., Reported Sold for a Million.

Duluth, April 22.—Reports are rife of a number of important mining deals, but they are negotiated with unusual secrecy. The P. L. Kimberly-A. E. Humphrey property near Virginia, Minn., is reported sold for $1,000,000, presumably to the United States Steel corporation. Another deal was the sale of a lease on property containing 8,000,000 tons of ore by J. G. Brown, Jr., for $75,000.

BIG DEAL IN PINE.

Duluth Men Buy a Tract Containing 17,000,000 Feet.

Duluth, April 22.—Cook & Turrish of Duluth have just completed a purchase of the White & Friant tract of pine in the northern part of St. Louis county. It contains about 17,000,000 feet, and the consideration was about $500,000. The pine is on the line of the proposed Duluth, Virginia and Rainy River road. It is the biggest deal in pine in the state this year.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.

Ex-Congressman Baldwin Commits Suicide in a Fit of Despondency.

Seattle, Wash., April 17.—In a fit of despondency over business reverses and aggravated by the depressing effects of la grippe, Melvin R. Baldwin, an ex-congressman from Minnesota and former state superintendent of Indian affairs under President Cleveland, took his own life.

The ex-congressman's body was found lying on his bed in his apartments at 2018 Fourth avenue with a bullet hole through his brain at 7:30 p. m., and from the condition of the body it is estimated death had occurred fully two hours before. Tightly gripped in his hand was a 32-calibre revolver. D. McKinley, a friend of the deceased and former business associate, discovered the body when he went to visit the ex-congressman at his apartments. Entering the room, McKinley spoke to his friend, the outline of whose body could be seen in the darkness of the chamber, and, receiving no response, summoned assistance only to find that Baldwin had sent a bullet crashing through his brain and lay in a pool of blood, which had accumulated upon the bed clothing and which was yet flowing freely from the wound in his right temple.

Melvin R. Baldwin, who was 62 years of age, came to this city about three years ago from Duluth, Minn., after having relinquished his position as Minnesota superintendent of Indian affairs, to which office he was appointed by President Cleveland, after the expiration of his term in congress. He was elected to the lower house from the Duluth district as a Democrat in 1892 and served one term. He secured the position of superintendent of Indian affairs a few months later and was one of the few Cleveland appointees who refused to resign, necessitating his removal by President McKinley.

NEW LAND FOR SETTLERS.

Red Lake Reservation in Minnesota May Be Opened.

Washington, April 20.—In connection with the consideration of plans for the opening of ceded Indian lands on the Chippewa reservations, the attention of the secretary of the interior has been directed to unceded portions of the Red Lake reservation, for the opening of which a demand comes from that section surrounding Thief River Falls, Minn. Representative Eddy has been in conference with Secretary Hitchcock on this subject and the secretary seems to be favorably disposed toward the idea. The land referred to embraces 11 townships on the Red Lake reservation. It is adjacent to Thief River Falls, and while title is vested in the Chippewas, the secretary of the interior is authorized in a general provision of the last Indian bill to take steps for its cession to the government. This provision, incorporated in the Indian bill on the recommendation of Representative Eddy, is to the effect that the secretary may negotiate through an inspector for the purchase of unallotted Indian lands. The townships embrace an area of more than 253,000 acres of desirable agricultural lands.

INTERSTATE WARFARE ON.

Smallpox Quarantine the Cause of Serious Trouble.

Browns Valley, Minn., April 20.—An interstate warfare, growing out of smallpox conditions at Sisseton, S. D., is on at this point. More than 100 cases of the disease exist at Sisseton, and Browns Valley authorities forbid persons from there who had been exposed from entering this village. This enraged the Sisseton authorities, and under the pretense of having quarantined Roberts county they placed armed guards on the state line one-half mile from Browns Valley, who forbid farmers from this side to come across. Many of the farmers have broken through the guard line by running their horses, while some have been arrested, handcuffed and taken into Sisseton, 14 miles distant.

There is great excitement over the affair, and unless the state authorities of the two states take a hand and bring about an adjustment of the matter there will undoubtedly be serious trouble.

TELLS A PECULIAR STORY.

Duluth, April 17.—Joseph Beauchamp, who shot his wife at Crookston, arrived in Duluth during the morning and about 3 p. m. walked into the police station and asked if he was wanted. He said that a friend had told him that he had dangerously injured his wife. Beauchamp tells a peculiar story. He says that while walking with his wife she noticed that he had a revolver in his coat pocket and appeared so nervous about it that to satisfy her he decided to change it to his hip pocket. In making the transfer the trigger caught in some manner and the gun was discharged, the bullet entering his wife's back. She did not fall or grow white, he says, and he asked her if she was hurt, to which she replied no. They continued their walk until about an hour later, when he took the train for Duluth. Beauchamp is 22 years old and his wife 18. Her parents live in Duluth.

Caused a Loss of $75,000.

Owatonna, Minn., April 20.—Owatonna suffered the worst fire in its history during the morning. Fire destroyed James W. Connor's Modern Method dry goods store and spread to the First State bank building, which was almost totally wrecked. The total loss will aggregate over $75,000.

O. T. Romsos made a business trip to St. Hilaire Friday. He went on the train in the morning, but walked back. He says it was a tiresome job to count the ties.

Swan Anderson returned home last Monday from a trip out West. He said be likes it there, the climate being the same there now as it is here in midsummer. He has not yet decided to move his family there.

The Ebenezer Y. P. Society met last Friday night, when a good program consisting of music, song and extemporaneous speeches was rendered. The paper read by O. T. Romsos was very good. Mr Romsos always stand on the look-out for all occurrences and local current events. Special credit is therefore due him for his acuteness in gathering his local news. A new vice-president was elected, John Naplin taking the office. An amendment was voted upon and passed. It amends the article in the constitution, which admits only those that have been confirmed to enter as members of the society. and specifies the age as not younger than twelve years. We know that a great deal of good could be accomplished for the society by some new young members and would welcome them into our midst.

ALWAYS WILLING TO OBLIGE.

Accommodating Chap in Texas Who Was Ready to Postpone Shooting.

It was a Texas town and a long-limbed Texan was making across the public square toward the courthouse with a revolver in his hand when he was stopped by a man who asked:

"Are you on your way to the courthouse?"

"Yes, sir; I am," was the reply, relates an exchange.

"Going to shoot anybody?"

"Yes, sir—lawyer Johnson. If it hadn't been for him, I shouldn't have lost my case yesterday. Yes, sir, going to fill him full of lead."

"Are you in any great hurry about it?"

"No special hurry, but when I have shooting on hand I like to get it off my mind as soon as possible."

"Of course, but you see Lawyer Johnson is now arguing a case for me and won't be through for 40 minutes. He's going to win it for sure if not interrupted, and if you will only hold off for awhile you will do me a great favor."

"Why, certainly—glad you mentioned it. No hurry about the shooting, so as it comes off to-day, and you can count on me. Have a drink with you? With the greatest of pleasure, and if Johnson is a particular friend of yours I'll shoot him as softly as I can and give him every show to die like a gentleman."

He Lacked Something.

"I wish," said the old man to a fellow passenger on the rear platform of the street car, "I wish I had the gift of what they call repartee."

"Can't you talk back?" was the query.

"Not to amount to anything. Just now when I left home my wife called me a slink, a sneak, a fool, a liar and a villain, and all I could say in reply was to tell her to shut up. Lordy, if I could only talk back, how I would make that woman's heart ache from Monday morning to Saturday night!"—Washington Star.

GOOD GOODS AT POPULAR PRICES.

COFFEE. My trade in Gas Roasted Coffee is increasing daily, which goes to show that these brands are giving good satisfaction. If you are a lover of good Coffee you must try my FANCY BLEND for satisfaction. It will pay you to use this grade as one pound will go a good ways further than a cheaper grade.

The MORNING STAR is a medium grade and has already gained a hold with my customers. The OLD GLORY is a cheap grade and for the price has no equal. Judging from the great demand, it has an established reputation. Remember these are gas roasted coffees and contain one-third more strength than those roasted by the old process.

That Throbbing Headache

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and strong nerves and build up your health. Easy to take. Try them. Only 25 cents. Money back if not cured. Sold by W. A. Schreiter, druggist.

Stops the Cough and Works off The Cold.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, no Pay. Price 25 cents.

To Cure a Cold In One Day.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that had for many years made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help. but she says of this Royal Cure—"it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praise throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at W. A. Schreiter's drug store; every bottle guarenteed.

Get What You Ask For!

When you ask for Cascarets Candy Cathartic be sure you get them. Genuine tablets stamped C. C. C. Never sold in bulk. A substitutor is always a cheat and a fraud. Beware! All druggists, 10c.

A Testimonial from Old England.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best in the world for bronchitis," says Mr. William Savory, of Warrington. England. The Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my left arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parsons & Co., druggist of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." For sale by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

H. and F. C. Leppert are enjoying a visit from their mother, who has made her home at Crookston for some time.

C. P. Swanson, the prominent Postmaster at Bray, went to St. Hilaire via the G.N. last week Monday returning the same day.

Fred Leppert, a prominent business man of our little town, said in a conversation with your correspondent the other day that he would go out on the road again, but that business here is pretty good. Yes, Leppert Bros. are doing good business here, which we are pleased to see. They are honest and reasonable in their prices, and manage their affairs on a good plan.

Shoes and floor were polished Friday night when there was a dance, dedicating the new Eekstien building. A large crowd was present to enjoy themselves to their heart's content.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at W A. Schreiter's drug store.

PRESERVING THE BIG TREES.

Efforts to Prevent the Destruction of the California Forest Giants.

The women's clubs of this state are persevering in their efforts to save the Calaveras grove as a legacy to posterity. Mrs. Emma Shafter Howard has opened correspondence on the subject with many influential men in Washington. Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, suggests in a letter written on the subject that California ought to have intelligence and public spirit enough to save her wonderful trees, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The suggestion is pertinent, but the nation as well as the state has an interest in their preservation. The senator adds that his state would not ask any help of the federal government if she had them, which is probably true; but Massachusetts has a larger permanent population and greater wealth than California, while the proximity of the grove to a national park in this state naturally suggests their union and their subsequent care under one patrol. Mr. Hoar promises, however, to aid the senators from this state in their efforts to secure favorable action by congress.

Another letter of special value on the subject has been received from the secretary of the American Forestry association, in which the cooperation of the women's clubs of California with that organization in all kindred projects to that of the preservation of Calaveras grove is cordially invited. In this letter there is a friendly intimation that heroics should supplant hysterics in the work of saving the forests of the country from destruction, and the hint will probably not be thrown away.

McGregor, Minn., Jan. 15, 1900.

Lightning Dyspepsia Cure Co.

Dear Sirs: I wish to inform you that the one bottle of Dyspepsia Cure which you gave me last fall has entirely cured me of my trouble, after suffering for several years and having tried lots of other medicine and treatments. I can now eat anything I please and any article of food suited to my condition and the hard work I have to do in my occupation as a railroad employee. So with many thanks I cheerfully recommend the Lightning Dyspepsia Cure to whoever may be afflicted with Dyspepsia and other trouble caused by it.

WHAT EDDY SAYS ABOUT THE RED LAKE INDIAN RESERVATION.

SECRETARY HITCHCOCK CAN DO NOTHING—NEGOTIATE WITH INDIANS.

Washington, April 29.—"I am receiving many inquiries," said Congressman F. M. Eddy this morning, "concerning the rumored opening of a portion of the Chippewa Indian reservation in Minnesota.

"There will be no lands on that reservation thrown open to settlement this year, no matter whether Secretary Hitchcock is for or against the proposition. The power and the authority to open the lands rests with congress alone. There is a proposition in the last Indian appropriation bill which provides that the secretary of the interior may make negotiations with certain tribes of Indians for the relinquishment of their unallotted lands to the government, such cession to be subject to ratification by congress.

"I secured the insertion of that amendment," said Mr. Eddy modestly, "and the best that we can expect is to have a special agent sent out during the summer and see what he can do. I believe that such an agent will be sent out, but, inasmuch as false impressions seem to obtain in Minnesota concerning these unallotted lands, I wish to state the situation clearly and just as it is."

BIGGEST YET.

ITS DAILY OUTPUT WILL BE 600 TONS—INVESTMENT $5,000,000.

Negotiations have just been completed between the Quebec government and a party of New York capitalists by which recent acquisition by the latter of the marvelous water power of Upper Saguenay, better known as the Grand Discharge of Lake St. John, will be utilized for operating the largest pulp mill in the world. The water power that can here be utilized is practically unlimited, and capitalists interested in the project, who will commence operations this spring, have decided to invest four or five million dollars in the undertaking. The mills they purpose to erected upon the Grand Discharge are to be much more than double the capacity of those at Grun Mere, which are principally controlled by General Alger and Sir William Van Horne and friends. The latter have 24 grinders. The other will have 60 grinders and will turn out 600 tons of wet pulp, or 30 carloads daily.

[Red Lake Falls has water power and raw material. We should get capitalists interested. The way to do this is to advertise in paper mill trade journals. Ed.]

New Mercantile Firm.

The Central Mercantile Co., Ward Nason & Hay, proprietors, is the name of the firm that on Monday took control of the Diamond Store at Thief River Falls, and will conduct the business in the future. The new firm is composed of business men, who have had years of experience in progressive cities and will give Thief River Falls an up-to-date store. They have the required means, are close buyers and will be in a position to offer the people of that section bargains in their line.

It Saved His Leg.

P. A. Danforth, of LaGrange, Ga., suffered intensely for six months with a frightful running sore on his leg, but writes that Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured it in ten days. For Ulcers, Wounds, Burns, Boils, Pain or Piles it's the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25c. Sold by W. A. Schreiter, druggist.

The First State Bank of St. Hilaire has been incorporated, absorbing the Heoney private bank.

Brickyard Deal.

Messrs. Louis Larson and Jacob Dyrhaug of this city have purchased from L. Johnson of Red Lake Falls, his brick yard property, and will at once take possession. The yards there have been in operation during the past two years, and the machinery necessary to successfully prosecute the work is already installed.

Mr. Larson has been in the employ of the Erskine Brick company for several years, and is thoroughly up in the business. The new firm will increase the capacity of the plant, and add improvements that will enable it to run out 20,000 a day. The quality is of the best, and the new proprietors have a bonanza in their new business.—Crookston Times.

NEW CHURCH EDIFICE

ST. MARY'S CONGREGATION TO ERECT ONE AT FOOT OF MAIN ST.

The Rev. Fr. Ansgar on Sunday announced that Bishop McGolrick had approved his plans for a new church and convent school, and that matters would be pushed to a conclusion at once. On Monday with but little effort he secured a sufficient subscription to purchase from Richard Adler the site, which embraces all of the "Reserve R." at the foot of Main street, a patch of ground 140x 180 feet, and including the residence.

Subscriptions have been liberal, many $100 donations having been received. The plan is for a church 42x100, with a basement containing two school rooms, a chapel and furnace room. It is proposed to bring sisters here as soon as the building is up and thus start a convent school, which will no doubt in a short time expand into a high class seminary which will attract students from all over the Northwest. The move is a good one for Red Lake Falls, and will add a valuable drawing card to our other institutions.

LOCALISMS

A new barn on the farm of M McAndress near St. Hilaire was damaged to the extent of $1000 in Friday night's storm.

Adam Schmitz yesterday disposed of his lot and business house in block 7 to J. A. Duffy. Mr. Schmitz has leased the building and will continue in business.

The lecture "Characteristics of the Scotch" by Rev. Sterling at Maccabee hall Monday night was listened to by a fair sized audience, who were well entertained for a couple of hours.

The Red Lake Falls Lumber Company have just sold their season's cut to Minneapolis parties, presumably the Shevlin interests. The mill started this morning, and Mr. Newton, president of the company, says there are sufficient logs now on hand to run without a break until November.

The remains of Clerk Brattoo, who accidentally shot himself at Erskine Friday night while hunting ducks, were brought here Tuesday, and escorted to their last resting place in Oakwood cemetery by a large delegation of Oddfellows and Woodmen, he having been a prominent member of both societies.

Mrs. E. F. Marshall has received advice from the post-office department that owing to the increased receipts of the Red Lake Falls office her salary will on July 1 be increased from $1000 a year to $1400, and the allowance for clerk hire will be raised from $50 to $360. This is a remarkable showing, and is an indication of the way our city is forging to the front.

"It is with a good deal of satisfaction and pleasure that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy", says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: "I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore, and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

RECEIPTS $110.

THE SACRED CONCERT A FINANCIAL AND ARTISTIC SUCCESS.

Owing to the storm the program was not rendered Friday night. Saturday night, however, the weather had settled to such an extent that it was considered safe to be out, and an appreciative audience listened to the numbers of the program. Although the audience was not large, the receipts were good. Owing to the fact that two nights had been set aside for the concert, many had purchased tickets for the first night who could not attend Saturday. It was the first sacred concert given in the city, and the idea of having it in the church was new to many. A large proportion of the local musical talent was represented, and those attending are happily unanimous in pronouncing the entertainment very good. Several of the soloists made a marked impression on the audience, while the quartette and duet work and the program as a whole was smooth and well balanced. $110 represent the receipts, and as there was but little expense the efforts of the participants were well repaid.

FOR QUARTER OF A MILLION.

Twenty-four Personal Damage Suits Against the Northwestern.

Oshkosh, Wis., April 29.—Twenty-four personal damage suits for claims aggregating $250,000 against the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad company are ready to be placed on the May term calendar of the circuit court here. The claims range from $2,000 to $12,000 and are for alleged damages in the Saengerfest excursion train wreck at De Pere last June. The company has already settled with scores of persons injured and these late claims represent cases that will be contested. The claimants hail from Fond du Lac, Neenah, Menasha and Oshkosh.

NEW BEAUMONT GUSHERS.

Are Allowed to Spout a Few Minutes and Then Shut Off.

Beaumont, Tex., April 30.—Two more oil gushers were brought in here during the day. The first is on what is known as the Gladys City property. It was permitted to spout only a few minutes, when, after proving itself the equal of any of the others, the valve which had been previously arranged was closed and the flow stopped.

The report that parties acting for the Standard Oil company have purchased the property of the Port Arthur Land company is fully believed here. There are 30,000 acres in the tract, and the price, according to reports, was $25 an acre, making the transaction one of $750,000. This sale does not include the wharf frontage at Port Arthur harbor.

Beware Of A Cough.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases that cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by W. A. Schreiter, druggist.

Miss Zaiser Entertains.

Perhaps one of the most elaborate parties ever attempted here was that given last night by Miss Henrietta Zaiser, at the home of her mother, Mrs. B. Zaiser, on Bottineau av. The invitations were for a trip on the Go Slow and Never Arrive Railroad. The guests upon entering the house were directed by neat placards, to the different departments—the Union Depot being divided into Ladies' and Gents' waiting rooms, etc. Decorations were in yellow, red and black, and the rooms were beautifully festooned with ribbons in these colors. Progressive cinch was the amusement, and each game signified a stop at one of the stations enroute, the signal being given by a bell, attached to the electric light chandelier, and ribbons extended from this to each table making it convenient to ring the bell. Nine games were played. Miss Lorena Schreiter won eight, and was awarded the ladies' head prize, a toy trunk. Dr. Argue as usual, carried of the gentlemen's head prize, which in this case was a satchel. Miss Harriet Brown and J. A. Mucke scored for the booby prizes which were a train of cars for each. Miss Zaiser was assisted by her mother, Mrs M. A. Hennings and Miss Henrietta Hennemuth.

Those present were Misses Hunt, Owen, Newton, Fahy, Carley, Kaufer, Hickey, Costello, Schreiter, VanEtten, Brown, Benedict, Farnsworth, Kans, Hannay, Hennemuth, Swenson, and Gibson, and Messrs. Hunt, Mucke, Hennings, Thoele, Healy, Murphy, Zaiser, Freund, Padden, Poulbot, McIntyre, Germo, Wyer, Argue, Zaiser, Swanson.

Assessors Meet.

The assessors of the county met at the auditor's office Saturday to fix a basis of valuation on personal property items for this year. Peter C. Wold, of Rocksbury was chosen chairman of the meeting and O. H Peters, of St. Hilaire, secretary.

The following gentlemen were in attendance: G. K. Haavi, North; John L. Finke, Norden; Victor Sandstrom, Numedal; Emil Larson, Bray; H. F. Anderson, Sanders; Peter C. Wold, Rocksbury; Chas. Liebel; Polk Centre: Albert Anderson, Black River; P O. Nelson, River Falls; Olous Omoth, Wyandotte; J. F. Mathews, Louisville; A. D. Dufault, Red Lake Falls; F. J. Altnow, Gerals; Chas. E. Asp, Emardville; O. N Skomedahl, Garnes; C. H. Hall, Equality; Telesphore Morinville, Lake Pleasant; Louis Parenteau, Terrebonne; Moses Guerard, Poplar River; Maximillon Perras, Lambert; Thos. Crompe, Red Lake Falls City; M. V. Evenson, Thief River Falls City; O. H. Peters, St. Hilaire.

Practically no changes were made in the valuations as established last year.

Story Of A Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife had been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by W. A. Schreiter, Druggist.

Rare Treat Promised.

The teachers of the public schools are preparing two dramas, which will be presented Friday night, May 17. "The Old-Maids' Convention," in which there is 1 male character to 16 female, is said to be a side splitting affair, and not a few wagers are up on who is to be the male victim. The other farce comedy is the laughable "The Mouse Trap." The funds realized will go toward paying off the debt on the piano.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting desease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B. 578, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B. 578, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Whereas, default has occurred and now exists in the terms and conditions of that certain mortgage which was executed and delivered by Ludvig Arneson and Lisa Mare Arneson, his wife, mortgagors, to and in favor of D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, and which bears date the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1883, and is recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1886, in book 25 of Mortgages at pages 448 to 450 and is also recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota in book 16 of Mortgages at page 580, and,

Whereas, there is due at the date hereof, under and by virtue of said mortgage the sum of Thirty-four and 68-100 ($34.68) dollars for the principal and interest thereon, and,

Whereas, no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof, and,

Whereas, said D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company has changed its name so as to read D. S. B. Johnston Land Company.

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the same will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein and hereinafter described, and the said sale will take place at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon, on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the front door of the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Red Lake at Red Lake Falls in said county. The premises described in said mortgage, and which will be sold to satisfy the same are described as the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter and the east half of the southeast quarter and lot numbered one all of section numbered Two in township numbered One hundred fifty-three in Range numbered Forty-five in the county of Red Lake (formerly county of Polk) in the state of Minnesota.

Dated at Saint Paul, Minnesota, May 1st, 1901.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

BY CHARLES M. SHELDON,

Author of "In His Steps," "The Crucifixion of Philip Strong," "Robert Hardy's Seven Days," "Malcom Kirk," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1896, BY CONGREGATIONAL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL PUBLISHING SOCIETY.

house thrilled through with the most profound conviction and persuasion that his life would shape this way or that according to the response of Rhena Dwight's soul to his. He was startled as for the first time he realized how strong his feeling was and how little he knew of hers. What could she be to him with all the social difference between them? It is true she had come to a place where social differences counted for very little with him, but how could he tell what she might think now that her life moved on the plane of Salvation Army methods? And then there was his money and all. She had deliberately moved out from the world of wealth and fashion in which he still remained, of which he was yet a part. They were separated in this way by a great gulf of difference. On the other hand, he reflected, they had one great and common bond of sympathy in their Christian faith. After all, was not that stronger than anything else? What were conditions or artificial social distinctions by the side of the all powerful oneness of spirit which disciples of the Master possessed in common? It was with that last thought on his heart that he finally went to rest.

He did not speak to Louise or his aunt of the evening's adventure when he saw them in the morning. His statement of the evening before concerning his feelings toward Rhena had driven the two women into a position of hostility to him that did not find immediate expression in words, but was very apparent none the less. Louise was angry to think that her attempts to deceive Rhena might and probably would result in nothing. Aunt Royal ignored the subject definitely, but there was no mistaking her entire opposition to Stuart's present attitude. It was true she did not understand him. Stuart was too engrossed in his perplexities and plans and too much absorbed in the new life to feel all this very deeply, and yet it showed him how squarely his new life was henceforth to conflict with the old.

It was two days after that that Stuart, Eric and Andrew met again to talk over matters, this time at Eric's cottage. Rhena had recovered. She was up and doing part of her work. Stuart had called to inquire after her, but had not seen her. He could not help feeling that when he did have an opportunity to speak it would be an eventful meeting for him. He had inherited a large portion of his father's abrupt determination of conduct and action. All this faculty, intensified in another direction under the influence of his spiritual awakening, burned as strong as in the old Stuart, only for another purpose. Paul was Saul Christianized. And the new Stuart was as likely to act in matters that required decision with as much quickness as the old Stuart, only with a larger and truer vision of the meaning of the action.

The three men met with a more serious and thoughtful bearing than at the other meeting. Every day in Champion now intensified the situation and increased the sum total of suffering. There was no outward sign of the union weakening. The winter had set in definitely, and it looked very much as if the mines had closed down for the season. Stuart remembered one winter when the mines had closed for a month through action of the owners in order to force up the price of ore. That was when he was a boy. He could still remember something of the suffering at that time. Now it promised to be infinitely worse.

"Eric, you have more influence with the men than any one on the ranges. Can't you persuade the union to do something to arrive at a decision?" asked Stuart a little vaguely. He was feeling around after answers to a thousand questions, and he started the talk aimlessly because he was preoccupied.

"Well, what can I do? The owners are the ones to arrive at a decision. Can't you persuade them to agree to our demands and your own promise of $2 a day?" replied Eric, who never hesitated to say what he felt no matter how abrupt it might seem.

"No; I have no influence that way with the other owners. You ought to see some of the letters I get from Cleveland. I tell you the owners will not give in. The whole situation is horrible. Sometimes, Eric, Andrew, I feel as if the men were destitute of all sense. What right have a third or a fourth of them to keep the rest from work because all cannot get the same wages?"

"They don't look at it that way. The principle is with them all based on the right or wrong side of the demand for the $2. At the same time, as I said the other day, I look at the strike from another point of view. I am ready to acknowledge it is a miserable way to try to get justice done. The men can never make up what they have lost by this idleness. But, good God, Stuart," ejaculated Eric, hobbling to the window and looking out on the snow covered hills just back of the cottage, "what other way is there if the owners refuse to listen to appeals and arbitration? Are we to submit indefinitely to starvation wages because we can't help ourselves? Of course I look at it from a workingman's standpoint. Boiled down to its simplest terms, the men don't see anything but reason in asking that a business like the ore industry, that has made a few men princely rich, ought to divide up its profits more fairly and make a good many persons more comfortable instead of making a select few uncomfortably wealthy."

"Do you believe a man can be uncomfortably wealthy?" asked Andrew, with a smile, as if he believed it himself.

"You don't need to go outside this room to find one," answered Stuart soberly. "What good can I do with all my money in a case like this? I seem to be as helpless as either of you."

"No, you're not. You can relieve a great deal of distress. Money is a great power in that way."

"But look here, Eric. Isn't this the situation? Here are 5,000 men out on a strike. A thousand of them have been offered their demands. They have refused out of sympathy for the rest, who will never get what they ask, for I can't compel the other companies to do what I think is the right thing. Now, then, these men are faced with starvation or at least with great suffering this winter. Shall I say to them practically: 'Never mind; I have money. I will take care of you indefinitely or until the money is gone?' It seems to me that the thousand men ought to go to work if they have an offer at their own terms. What do you think, Andrew?"

"I think as you do. I regard the strike as a disaster. At the same time the men are doing as thousands of men have done and will continue to do until we have a better system than we have at present of settling the differences between men who labor with the brain and those who labor with the hand. Would it be possible to provide the men with work of any kind, so that they would not be fed in idleness?"

"Why, what can miners do except their own kind of work? Who can manufacture work in a country like this, where the whole industry revolves about one thing? Besides—well, go on, Eric, if you want to speak," said Stuart, who saw Eric impatiently biting his lips and nervously clutching his hands.

"I don't know what to say!" burst out Eric. "The whole situation is maddening. The men are right, and the men are wrong. If their methods of getting justice are at fault, the demand itself, for justice, I believe, is right. But what can you expect? Who for all these years has paid any attention to the human end of this ore producing business? What care do the men at Cleveland have for the souls or the development of the souls of these men who dig the stuff out of the ground that helps buy other men costly luxuries and fine clothes and houses, travel, education, pleasures and beauties of all sorts? What are we reaping now but the fruits of a great sowing of selfishness in the one great passion for money and what it will bring? I ask you two men, who have been reared in a finer atmosphere than mine, if it is not true that the wageworkers of the world, ignorant or mistaken or wrong and even vicious though at times they may have been and are, still have sinned according to their light less deeply or less wholly than the men of great wealth and education and social power. I am not saying that we are perfect or never make mistakes or that the selfishness is all on one side, but I do say that this present condition would not now be on us here if the men who have made their fortunes by the toil of the miners had acted like Christian men. How many of the mine owners have got together and prayed for wisdom to settle this matter right? Not one of them except Stuart here. And yet—well, when I get started I feel as if I could break all bounds. There is a fire in my bones over this problem. I don't believe there is a man living who can devise a thorough remedy. If he can, he stands guilty before God for keeping silent. And this much is certain: No man or nation or form of government known to civilization is free from these differences between the men of muscle and the men of money. Why, only this morning the papers had telegraphic dispatches announcing tremendous strikes in five different countries—England, France, Germany, Australia and the United States. There are more than 100,000 men out on strikes this very minute. I know there is great discontent, and men say great foolishness, on the part of the men of labor. Grant it. The fact is we live in an age of unrest. But at the bottom the whole secret of the trouble lies in a disregard of humanity in a passion for getting wealth first of all. The love of money has wrecked empires, and it will smash our civilization unless"— Eric stopped abruptly and buried his face in his hands.

Stuart stepped up to him and laid his hand on Eric's shoulder. "Well, Eric," he said simply, "God will triumph in the end. Let's hold fast to the great truths that have always been true."

"There is no solution of these difficulties, I am sure," said Andrew after a moment of quiet in the room, "except as it comes along the religious lines. I believe the next great factor in what is called the labor question will be the religious factor. I see no possible hope for a better condition unless it is brought about by the appeal to and a belief in Christianity as the real source of final adjustment of men's relation with one another in the social compact. In reality the problem consists in getting men on both sides to act like Christians. There could be no possible clash, for instance, between you two men if either one worked for the other, because you love each other. Love for one another, therefore, is, after all, the greatest thing in the world, because it is the great and final adjuster of all social problems and differences."

"I believe that, too," said Stuart, pacing up and down the little room. "I don't question the final triumph of love and right. But we don't live in the millennium yet. And we have our own questions local to us right here and now."

"There can't be any doubt about our duty to the suffering women and children," said Andrew. "And I can tell you there's a lot of it beginning. One of the worst things about it all is the way the men are beginning to drink. What little savings many of them had are going this way."

"Curse the saloon! Oh, curse that hell on earth!" cried Eric suddenly. Stuart and Andrew started at the vehemence of his tone. "We go into our churches on Sunday and pray and preach for peace and purity and forgiveness and love and blessing on little children and all that, and then on election day we go and vote with all the rum fiends on earth to perpetuate a system by local option that damns with its infernal breath every pure desire and every upward reach of humanity, and the prayers of the nation ought to come back into its homes and down upon its religious altars as curses, as they are coming, until we learn how horribly foolish and wicked we have been not to act our prayers out in our votes against this devil. The saloon has done my people more harm than any one thing in our civilization."

Stuart was silent. For the first time he felt the force of Eric's passion in the matter. He remembered that the last time he and his father voted they voted for license. So did nearly every church member in Champion. So did every one of the 40 saloon keepers there at present.

"Well, we can't drive the saloon out this winter. It's a legalized institution so far as it has a right to sell to those who want to buy," at last Stuart said sadly. "It's one more factor in the problem. Let's face it like men and hope for better things to come. Of course Andrew is right about the relief of suffering women and children. I have a plan, too, that I believe can be carried out to a certain extent in getting the men to work instead of receiving aid in idleness. I need more time to work it out. Meanwhile we ought to consult with the doctor and the city officers as to the best and most effective way of"—

There was a knock at the door, and Dr. Saxon came in. "I haven't but a minute to stay. Heard you were here. Wanted to tell you that the typhoid has started in and looks like a bad job. Never knew typhoid to come this way in winter before, but all the streams are poisoned. Jim Binney is going with it. Sanders' two girls are down with it. Cornishtown is likely to be swept with it. I can't make these people obey my directions about the drainage. I find they've been drinking poisoned water all the fall. The mines ought to furnish the doctor with a company of militia with orders to stand guard over these obstinate, stupid old"—

There was a knock at the door, and Dr. Saxon came in.

The doctor choked off the next word and went on: "And if they didn't obey, shoot 'em on the spot and save expenses of medical attendance. Tell you, Stuart, I'll run up a bill against the company for all this work I've put in lately without pay. I'm tired of it. Been out on Davis hill every day now for a month. Tipped over this afternoon coming down the Iron Cliff road and got two bushels of snow up my sleeves. If there is anything I hate, it's snow up my sleeve. I'm going to quit running my head into avalanches for these ungrateful, thankless"—

Just then a loud knock at the door interrupted the doctor, who all the time he was speaking was shaking the snow off his coat upon the stove, which hissed and sputtered with the doctor's vigorous growl.

"Is the doctor here?" said a voice as Eric went to the door and opened it.

"Yes. What do you want?"

"Lew Trethven has broken his leg. Fell into prospecting hole near upper trail of Cornishtown. He wants doctor to come right up."

"Yes. Hear that, will you!" said the doctor, who was listening hard to catch every word. "Trethven has broken every leg of his body three separate times since I've been here. If he had six legs, he'd break every one of 'em. He always falls into a hole at the close of day, when I'm the farthest off and feel the least like going to see him. I've mended him so often that he looks like a bamboo fish rod."

"Say, doctor, can you come right up?" asked the man outside as he caught a glimpse of him through the opening.

"No; I haven't had anything to eat all day since breakfast. Tell Trethven to wait until morning. He's used to breaking his legs by this time. Tell him to set the fracture himself. Tell him I'm sick. Tell him"—

Eric shut the door, and the man outside walked slowly away. The doctor saw him go by the window.

"Excuse me," he muttered. "I forgot to blanket Ajax." He darted out of the room, and Stuart saw him go around the corner and overtake the man. Ajax was standing out near the street where the doctor had left him. Stuart saw Saxon rush the messenger from Trethven into the cutter, climb in himself, leaving one foot out as usual, turn Ajax around with such haste that for a moment it was a matter of doubt whether the miner would remain inside or outside the reeling, swaying cutter, and then they disappeared behind a great drift by the side of the street.

When Stuart went home that afternoon, he carried with him a burden that grew heavier as the twilight deepened. There were more questions to settle than a few about the expenditure of $1,000,000. Humanity was full of refusals to be helped. It was the same cry that Jesus made, "They will not come unto me that they might have eternal life." And these saloons! He walked past a dozen on the main street. They never had thrust themselves so conspicuously into his senses before. And as he was going by one of them, a crowd of miners noisily burst out and scattered over the sidewalk. One or two of them noticed Stuart and seemed ashamed as they slunk by. He went on past the Salvation Army hall and could not help thinking of Rhena, living her daily life in such surroundings, working with this rough, turbulent element, although the large part of the miners had so far kept away from the saloon.

He lingered a little as he walked by, hoping to get a glimpse of Rhena, but did not see her and went on home.

The next few days were days of great anxiety to Stuart. The doctor's predictions as to the typhoid fever proved correct. It broke out and swept over Cornishtown with great fury. No one could remember when such an epidemic had raged there. Stuart sent down to Chicago and had several trained nurses come up and begin duty at his expense. He blessed God for the things that money could do in cases like this. He also relieved Dr. Saxon by hiring two assistants and of course made the doctor himself understand that all the work he did while the mines were shut down would be reckoned the same as if the men were being paid.

But all this was nothing to what he longed to do. He went himself into the miners' cabins and acquainted himself with all their rough and meager surroundings. Several times during these visits he met Rhena, but she was always busy with her duties and hardly exchanged a word. Stuart fancied she tried to avoid meeting him. Her manner was different. He wondered vaguely if she knew, if she had been told, that he had found her that night and carried her down through the upper trail.

All this time he was also working at the problem of the men in idleness, and the more he thought it over the less confident he grew of his ability to solve the difficulty. Champion was a mining town, with nothing else of an industrial character to occupy labor of any kind. There had once been an attempt to put in smelting furnaces, but it had failed owing to the expense of fuel. Stuart confronted a condition of practical ignorance on the part of the miners concerning any kind of manual toil except that to which they had been born. It is of course hardly necessary to say that he daily used his influence with the men to persuade them to agree to his terms, and yet even while talking and urging he could not avoid a feeling of great unrest, and with it all went a certain admiration for the men who gave as their reason for not coming back to the Champion mines on Stuart's terms, "It don't belong to be for us to take the dollars while all the rest of De Mott men be shut out at the old wages by other companies." The whole situation was a deadlock so far as the union was concerned, and the whole problem was a complication of events and conditions in the commercial world which Stuart faced as a new thing, especially when he found himself attempting to apply the teachings of Jesus to his part of it. He was willing to act on those teachings as fast as he discovered them, but other men connected with the strike on both sides were not willing. And he was, willingly or unwillingly, a part of the commercial system, and as far as he had gone yet he saw little relief for the Champion men or little opportunity for the use of the money he was ready to give or use except to help lessen the immediate sufferings regardless of what other people might call its cause. He had not been enough in the habit of using money for other people to know how to do it either wisely or in a way to produce permanent results.

So the week went by, and it was the night of Aunt Royal's and Louise's party. Stuart dreaded the occasion because his heart was not in it at all. It seemed to him like a cruel thing somehow to be having a gay, expensive, dressy gathering, as he knew this affair would be, at a time when little children were dying and rugged men and women in those wretched miners' cabins were tossing in the fever of that scourge which laid its bony knuckles of death against nearly every door in Cornishtown and grimly called one by one out of the burning heat within to the cold embrace of the messenger outside. Stuart spent the day in a round of visits. At different

BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY.

O. C. F. Saylor, of Iowa, the special agent in charge of the beet sugar investigation of the Department of Agriculture, is in Washington and has submitted his report to Secretary Wilson. He says this year shows a very active tendency towards the institution of new beet sugar enterprises.

Next autumn, he says, Michigan will have three new factories, and Ohio, Indiana, New York, Colorado, Utah, South and North Dakota and Illinois will install new factory enterprises, making thirteen throughout the United States now in contemplation. A conservative estimate, he says, is that there will be forty two beet sugar factories in operation throughout the United States by the end of next autumn.

Everything indicates that the industry is thoroughly established throughout the country. Mr. Saylor says: "Even in the incipiency these factories have shown good profits. They have maintained themselves without any apparent real contest with the sugar trust."

Mr. Saylor says no other feed is so valuable and so cheap for the dairy and stock feeding interests as beet pulp. The factories turn out from 45 to 50 per cent of the original weight of the beets worked in the form of the refuse or biproduct. Sugar beets seem to respond especially to cultivation in the arid region, where they have given better results than any other crop.

No broader distinction can be made between men than that which divides them into two classes. To the first class belong those who always have a good excuse why the thing required cannot be done. The second class is composed of those who manage to DO. Foremost in this latter class stands out the figure of General DeWet. Allen Sangree, who has just returned from the Transvaal, draws a vivid picture of the character of this most remarkable general of modern times for the May Cosmopolitan, and the article is illustrated with the most complete collection of photographs and drawings yet published.

Crookston is undergoing a real hot school fight. Thursday last the board held a meeting and hired C. F. F. Selleck, of Austin, Minn., as superintendent, in place of R. W. Hitchcock. A. D. Stephens, a brother-in-law of the latter, who has been superintendent for two years past, had had petitions circulated asking the board to retain him. These were filed away by the board unopened, although they are said to have contained 700 names. There was a large attendance at the meeting and interest is at white heat. The salary of the superintendent has been raised from $1600 to $1800 a year, which helps some in the way of adding fuel to the flames.

The president and Secretary Root have decided that 76,000 shall be the maximum strength of the regular army, unless some new trouble in the Philippines makes it necessary to enlist a larger number of men, and that the full number of officers authorized shall be appointed. There will be just as many companies as though the full number of men authorized were enlisted, but there shall be fewer men in each company. The number of soldiers to be kept in the Philippines will be decided by circumstances, but no great reduction of the present number is looked for in the immediate future. The fighting over there is thought to be about over, but the presence of the troops is best as a reminder to any restless Filipino that peace and quietness is desired.

"The True Citizen" is another of the famous Eclectic School Readings published by the American Book Co. This is a book that will prove a valuable ethical instrument in the hands of the girls and boys of the higher grammar grades. Teachers generally appreciate the necessity of cultivating the moral powers or natural attributes of the mind, and the idea of ethics and civics going hand in hand has been, to some extent, disregarded by the partisan spirit of the day. The influence of one with great intellect will be for the general good if there is gathered with knowledge a firm and ideal character. Such a book as The True Citizen, with its teachings illustrated and made acceptable by interesting anecdotes, will add an immeasurable influence in forming young ideals. The range covers childhood, youth, and manhood—bestowing on the periods of each, suggestions valuable to development. Nothing can impress the plastic mind so much as living examples and anecdotes of persons who have become famous by right living. The book is receiving favorable attention from teachers at large. Of the seven prizes and medals awarded to school-book publishers at the Paris Exposition, the American Book Company secured five, covering text-books in elementary, secondary, and higher education, also text-books in agricultural, industrial and commercial education. They may feel very much gratified in knowing their publications are not only received as standards at home, but were accepted as such by the International Jury of the Paris Exposition.

The milk in the Cuban cocoanut is, it seems, not the Platt amendment but the tariff. Although the members of the committee from the Cuban Constitutional Convention have been guarded in their talk, it has become apparent that their object was to use the Platt amendment to dicker for tariff concessions on sugar and tobacco, and that the Convention would swallow the Platt amendment at a gulp if assured of the tariff concessions. They have, of course, been informed that it is Congress, and not the executive branch of the government, that controls the tariff. The president could, if so disposed, promise to recommend tariff concessions in his message to congress, but there are numerous reasons why he is not likely to do so, chief of which is the strength of the interests in this country that would be effected by any tariff favors shown to Cuban sugar and tobacco.

While the Cubans are not making any headway in the official object of their visit to Washington, they have no cause to complain of their welcome or of their entertainment. The president and Mrs. McKinley gave a state dinner in their honor, at which they met the most prominent men in Washington. Gen. Wood says there is no doubt that the Platt amendment will be adopted, and that the information gained by the Cubans in Washington will result in hastening action.

The old wrangle about the free distribution of seeds by the Department of Agriculture was given a fresh start this week by the publication of charges made by the Wholesale Seedmen's League, alleging irregularities in the distribution and that the government was being defrauded by the use of smaller packages than had heretofore been used. Secretary Wilson denies most positively either that there is any irregularity or that the government is not getting all it pays for He says that the seeds are bought in bulk by the government and that the packages are made smaller so that a greater number of persons could be supplied, and that the only reason for the charges is opposition to the free distribution of seeds by the government.

County Auditor Zeh is in receipt of a letter from Messrs. Gideon Ives, W. J. Hahn and H. W. Childs, the Tax Commission of the state, to the effect that they will hold a meeting at the court house at Crookston on May 8, where they would be pleased to meet the assessors, county officers and others from Red Lake county interested in improving our system of taxation. It is believed by an interchange of views the commission will acquire many valuable suggestions worthy of consideration in framing a tax code. The subject is of so much importance that the interest of taxing officers and the general public should manifest itself on the occasion by attendance and co-operation.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

The policies of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company are the simplest, clearest, most liberal and desirable insurance contracts obtainable. F. A. Whiteley, agent for this section, would be glad to furnish rates, sample policy and full information regarding this splendid old company.

Mrs. Louise Durand and family started Tuesday for North Yakima, Wash. Lambert Benoit, of Gentilly, a son-in-law of Geo. LaBissoniere, joined the party at Crookston with his family. Mr. Lambert is shipping a carload of stock and several of the boys in the party took passage with the stock train.

Peter Beantrow, the contractor and builder, is putting up a new store room for A. Horovitz, adjoining the Healy Land Co. office. The building will be 22 x 60, one story. Mr. Horovitz has a branch store at Fosston and being forced out of the Lemieux building and no other store room being available here, he concluded the only thing left was to move his stock to Fosston. Later he concluded rather than leave the best business point in the Red River Valley, he would put up a new building himself.

A meeting of the Red Lake Falls Co-operative Creamery Association was held at the city hall yesterday afternoon, and despite the busy season, there was a representative gathering of enthusiastic farmers, who are determined to make a success of the the creamery. It was decided to open the creamery on May 15. Frank C. Johnson, a buttermaker of 14 years experience, has been engaged by the officers of the association, and everything is in readiness for a good season's run. All the farmers in this vicinity should arrange to bring milk to the creamery whether members of the association or not.

ACCUSE INSPECTORS

CHARGES FILED AGAINST SEVERAL GRAIN DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS.

Absorbtion of Iron Ore Roads to Be Investigated—Big Timber Deal Involving About $500,000—Pittsburg Concern Buys More Minnesota Iron Lands—Counterfeiter Under Arrest. General State News.

St. Paul, April 30.—A formal charge has been entered with the railroad and warehouse commission by Deputy Inspector B. F. Benson of the Minneapolis grain inspection department, alleging that the chief inspector at that point, E. W. Knatvold, and his first assistant, George H. Tunnell, endeavored to influence him to change a report on wheat graded "rejected," mixed at the Union elevator by J. Q. Adams & Co., to "No. 3," involving an increased value of 3 cents a bushel. Knatvold and Tunnell have been summoned to appear before the commission in answer to the charges.

DEAL TO BE INVESTIGATED.

Absorbtion of Iron Ore Roads May Be Prevented.

St. Paul, April 29.—It is expected that at the next meeting of the state railroad and warehouse commission Commissioner Miller will bring up for discussion the question of investigation by the commission of the deal by which the steel trust seeks to obtain control of both the Duluth and Iron Range and Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroads.

Mr. Miller, who lives at Two Harbors, is of the opinion that the absorbtion of the two roads by the trust, if effected, will do serious harm to the business interests of the Missabe and Vermillion ranges, and he favors action by the commission to prevent the successful consummation of the deal.

The other members of the commission are not convinced as to the power of the commission in the premises, as the condition of things stands at present, and Attorney General Douglas has been asked for an opinion as to the length to which the commission would be justified in going.

BIG TIMBER DEAL.

Cook & Tourish Buy 170,000,000 Feet on Ash River.

Duluth, April 29.—Cook & Tourish have made another large purchase of standing timber in the northern part of this county, making their holdings there about 350,000,000 feet and their entire holdings in this and Lake counties more than 1,250,000,000 feet. This last purchase is 170,000,000 feet from White & Friant for about $500,000 and it is located south of Kapitogama lake on Ash river. It is on the line of the proposed Duluth, Virginia and Rainy River road, on which the preliminary work is under way, and which is designed for the purpose of bringing timber to market and to serve as a general traffic line as well.

MINNESOTA IRON LANDS.

Pittsburg Concern Makes Some Additional Purchases.

New York, April 29.—At the local offices of Jones & Laughlin of Pittsburg it was stated that additional purchases of several thousand acres of ore lands in Minnesota had just been made. This, with the recently acquired ore tract of P. L. Kimberley's, was declared in Wall street to place the firm in an independent position so far as the United States Steel corporation was concerned. The Kimberley property, of course, is the best. But it is understood that much of the other lands purchased are the finest in Minnesota.

BOUGHT MESABA ORE LANDS.

Several Thousand Acres Purchased by a Pittsburg Concern.

Pittsburg, April 25.—Jones & Laughlins, limited, of this city, have purchased from Peter L. Kimberly of Sharon, Pa., several thousand acres of fine ore properties in the Mesaba region. The price paid is said to be $2,500,000. The tract acquired is regarded as one of the finest in the Minnesota region. The ore vein is from 10 to 50 feet in depth and the ore is practically unlimited. It is within easy reach of the shipping point at Escanaba, so that ore can be delivered to Lake Erie ports cheaply by way of the Great Lakes and shipped here for the Eliza furnaces from Ashtabula, Erie or Cleveland.

PASSED COUNTERFEIT COIN.

William H. Lowry, One of a Supposed Gang, Arrested at New Ulm.

New Ulm, Minn., April 29.—The police have arrested William H. Lowry for passing counterfeit money here. The officers found $1 and 10 nickels on the prisoner. In his possession was also a letter written last September by his sister at La Crosse notifying him that the sheriff of La Crosse county was on his track. He is supposed to belong to a gang of counterfeiters who have operated in Wisconsin and Southern Minnesota for the last four years.

To Beautify Fort Snelling.

St. Paul, April 25.—Colonel Ray, post commandant at Fort Snelling, has outlined improvements on the military reservation that may add a new beauty spot, finer than any it now possesses, to Minnehaha park, and open up a series of delightful carriage ways to the public. The co-operation of the city of Minneapolis, Hennepin county, and the government will be necessary.

HEADED FOR BLACK HILLS.

Work to Begin Soon on an Extension of the Soo Road.

Minneapolis, April 25.—The Soo road has decided to build to the Black Hills, but this year's extension will be to the Missouri river. General Manager E. Pennington returned from North Dakota Monday evening, after spending nearly a week in the territory the new line will traverse, and was prepared to announce the route of the proposed line. It will be built from Wishek, which is 351 miles from Minneapolis and 38 miles from Braddock, the present terminus of the Bismarck extension, in a southeasterly direction to the town of Ashley, near the South Dakota line, a distance of 20 miles; then it will take a southwesterly course into South Dakota and terminate for the present at the Missouri river. Surveyors are now at work on the proposed route.

HISTORIC RELIC.

Old Frigate Minnesota Will Be Condemned and Sold.

Boston, April 25.—The historic old frigate Minnesota, a relic of the wars of the past, has long since passed the days of her usefulness and will be condemned. Of late years she has been a school ship and a rendezvous clubhouse for the Massachusetts naval militia, but the Boston city officials objected to her being moored in the North End Park basin, there being no place along the water front for her. It has therefore been decided to condemn her and sell her at public auction. It would seem to be a chance for some thriving city on a waterway to procure an historical relic for a house for naval militia men.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Four Hundred Routes to Be Established on July 1.

Washington, April 29.—The post-office department is making preparations for the establishment of 400 rural free delivery routes on July 1, when the appropriation for the next fiscal year becomes available. Fifteen routes from 10 distributing points will be established in Minnesota, five in South Dakota and a large number of routes in Wisconsin and Iowa.

Before he left congress Representative Spalding filed about 10 applications for routes in North Dakota and inspections will be made as soon as the weather settles and the roads get in condition to travel over.

FIRE AT DULUTH.

Zenith Paper Company Plant Is Totally Destroyed.

Duluth, April 30.—Fire totally destroyed the building and stock of the Zenith Paper company, causing a loss of about $55,000, of which $35,000 is on stock and balance on building. The stock was insured for $30,000 and the building about $15,000, and the latter was owned by C. E. Dickerman of St. Paul. Buildings adjoining were damaged by heat and water to about $10,000 additional, of which the Duluth Paper company, which had $7,000 stock in warehouse next to the Zenith company, was the principal sufferer. The origin of the fire is unknown.

No Danger of a General Strike.

Minneapolis, April 26.—The danger of a general strike among the building trades has been averted by the action of the building trades council in asking the woodworkers' union to withdraw its delegates. The woodworkers will be left to reach an independent agreement with the sash and door makers, and the building trades council and the Master Builders' association will speedily adjust their differences so that non-label material may be used.

Pioneer Minneapolis Attorney.

Minneapolis, April 30.—Ambrose Newell Merrick, for nearly a third of a century one of the best known attorneys of Minneapolis, died Sunday at his residence in this city. Mr. Merrick had been ill for several months and little hope for his recovery had been held out.

RECOLLECTIONS OF EARLY SETTLERS.

Thinking of the early days in this settlement we have many vivid recollections in our minds, and the older people have in their memories many thrilling events as well as moments of struggle and hardship.

The farthest back in the history of our living here was when residing in a rude shanty, baked on all sides, in summer by the burning sun, and, after each term, enclosed fur the night by a multitude of mosquitoes—a cloud from which seemingly, fairies were singing, and sparks (fireflies) were seen as in the time of Thor.

When the headlight of the universe had moved farther and farther South, depriving thus the prairies as well as the groves of its natural suit: When the ground was wrapped in the soft white fleecy carpet, when the wind began to whistle around the corners, then the members of the cottage were increased in number. by the chickens who got a corner for their winter lodging. As we now think of that rude way of living, we find frequent laughable instances on those days of poverty: with the chicken in the sleeping apartment, which also served as kitchen, dining room and parlor, the cocks especially were very useful, serving as an alarm clock which would be sure to go off at 4 o'clock, always assuring early rising.

Game was abundant. Now and then, a deer could be seen playing with the cattle. Prairie chicken were as numerous as crows, and rabbits inhabited the thickets—all a brave crowed not afraid of the smell of gun-powder.

It was not so much fun to go to town in those days as it meant twenty to forty miles without a stopping place. In winter it was hard to travel at all with a pair of horn slaves sent from the sugar cane district for life imprisonment. in this Siberia-like region. The young man or woman could receive letters from the distant sweetheart only at long intervals as they had such a distance to the post-office.

The long winter seemed to be almost an eternity. But, it came to an end when again the sun moved nearer toward us, spreading its golden beams in the Eastern horizon. The matting was slowly taken up from the ground thereby revealing streams, creeks and waterfalls over the whole land. The flood was soon over, and over the high North, our fairy, Spring, spread her golden wings, swaving them with a soft breeze from which influence the hibernating rose from their solemn graves, and to the before humble earthworm was given angel wings by which to soar up in the fragrance of the free air. The birds began to twitter, and the natural complexion was again gradually regained by the face of the earth.

This we have thought of as the first and hardest year of settling this country, previous to which time the buffloes were grazing the plains.

Little by little this country has since been improved. The best has been done to secure close communication with the rest of the world, good neighborhoods are flourishing, and now we rejoice in bright and cheerful homes, surrounded by large wheatfields which in the sun shine of June look like green plush, in the wind of August like the billows of the ocean.

This is the fruit of labor. Our forefathers came here for freedom, where they could live unmolested. They took possession of this great country, fought for liberty, worked up a republic, a government respected by all nations.

We may not want to go to the wild, by white men untrodden parts of our country, leaving friends behind. But, let us always remember, respect and honor our fathers and forefathers, and be proud of our being of such a noble race, the memory of whom shines like the very stars on our banner.

O. T. Romsos went to Minneapolis Wednesday to buy a new stock of good, and will hereafter handle dry good in connection with his present stock.

What! was it the roar of canons from the battle fields that we heard last Tuesday? No, it was our industrious bachelor, Charley Sandberg who was out blasting rock.

And now the land-boom must have reached the climax when lands owned by private parties and not listed for sale are being subject to speculators, and land agents send out men to buy such land owned by old pioneers and not on the market. Recently a very nice quarter of land owned by C. W. Jonnson was lookover by a load of land seekers. They decided to immediatly consult the land-agent and hired a team at Wylie for Red Lake Falls without delay. Mr. Johnson was notified in the meantime, but he said he was safe with deed and title, and would have asked them to follow the lines and not drive all over the fields, had he seen them.

GOOD GOODS AT POPULAR PRICES.

COFFEE. My trade in Gas Roasted Coffee is increasing daily, which goes to show that these brands are giving good satisfaction. If you are a lover of good Coffee you must try my FANCY BLEND for satisfaction. It will pay you to use this grade as one pound will go a good ways further than a cheaper grade.

The MORNING STAR is a medium grade and has already gained a hold with my customers. The OLD GLORY is a cheap grade and for the price has no equal. Judging from the great demand, it has an established reputation. Remember these are gas roasted coffees and contain one-third more strength than those roasted by the old process.

Nils Person transacted business in St. Hilaire Tuesday

Miss Mattie Wylie came up from Crookston Saturday to pay her folks a visit.

Farmers had a good start with their spring work and the ground was almost dry. The rain Friday night made fields very wet and farmers were kept away from the fields for a few days.

It is said that Judson & Spurr, who recently bought large tracts of land in this vicinity, will open a bank here. Wylie has been progressing steadily, and its business has ever been increasing. Wylie has been growing with the country, if it has sometimes seemed slow, it has been so much surer. There is certainly room for banking business here. All new comers says that this country has a good future.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

Charles B. Mitchell has been appointed postmaster at Alexandria.

Ambrose N. Merick, the first city attorney elected in Minneapolis, is dead.

Bishop Whipple of the Episcopal diocese of Minnesota will ask the diocesan convention which meets in June to elect a coadjutor.

From 4,000 to 5,000 people are expected to attend the convention of the Catholic temperance societies to be held in St. Paul June 17, 18 and 19.

The Crookston board of education elected W. F. Zelleck of Austin superintendent in opposition to a petition signed by upwards of 700 voters, who wished the present incumbent, R. W. Hitchcock, retained.

It is reported from an authentic source that the Standard Milling company, successors to the United States Milling company, the old McIntyre trust, will soon open headquarters for head of lakes at Duluth.

A fire broke out in the saw mill of C. Mercier, Rice Lake, and resulted in a total loss, aggregating several thousand dollars. Some logs and lumber were also burned, besides a barn, which caught fire from the sparks.

J. C. Easton, one of the pioneer railroad men of Minnesota, died at La Crosse, Wis., last week. He was one of the wealthiest and best known men in the Northwest, and had large and varied interests. His death was sudden and unexpected.

The big flour plant of the Bay State Milling company at Winona, the fourth largest in the United States, caught fire in the engineroom and for a time it looked as if the whole structure would burn. By hard work the loss was confined to $2,000.

Fire at Duluth totally destroyed the building and stock of the Zenith Paper company, causing a loss of about $55,000, of which $35,000 is on the stock and the balance on the building. The stock was insured for $30,000 and the building for about $15,000.

Governor Van Sant has received from Texas a proclamation declaring quarantine against uninspected dairy and breeding cattle from Minnesota. The reason assigned is that tuberculosis is feared. Other states are also included in the quarantine.

Two new lumber mills are to be erected in Minnesota immediately, according to an announcement in the Mississippi Valley Lumberman. The larger one is to be built at Cloquet by the Brooks-Scanlon company. The other will be built by the Foley-Benn company of Milaca.

Surveyors have started work on the line of the Duluth, Virginia and Rainy River road, to be built into the timber north of the continental divide in the northern part of St. Louis county by Cook & Tourish and their associates. It will be built at once and a number of miles will be railed the coming winter.

There are millions of logs along the St. Louis river, and a trip up the stream is a sight. For miles it is a mass of logs, many of them in the position in which they were hauled upon the ice. Many are jammed and twisted up from the bottom of the river and across the entire width, and many are coming into the sorting works at the mills.

In response to a request from the state railroad commission, made two weeks ago, the attorney general has given an opinion to the effect that the commission has the authority to investigate the joint ownership of parallel lines. The question arose over the consolidation of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern and the Duluth and Iron Range, now in the hands of the billion-dollar steel trust.

BOUGHT MESABA ORE LANDS.

Several Thousand Acres Purchased by a Pittsburg Concern.

Pittsburg, April 25.—Jones & Laughlins, limited, of this city, have purchased from Peter L. Kimberly of Sharon, Pa., several thousand acres of fine ore properties in the Mesaba region. The price paid is said to be $2,500,000. The tract acquired is regarded as one of the finest in the Minnesota region. The ore vein is from 10 to 50 feet in depth and the ore is practically unlimited. It is within easy reach of the shipping point at Escanaba, so that ore can be delivered to Lake Erie ports cheaply by way of the Great Lakes and shipped here for the Eliza furnaces from Ashtabula, Erie or Cleveland.

MINNESOTA IRON LANDS.

Pittsburg Concern Makes Some Additional Purchases.

New York, April 29.—At the local offices of Jones & Laughlin of Pittsburg it was stated that additional purchases of several thousand acres of ore lands in Minnesota had just been made. This, with the recently acquired ore tract of P. L. Kimberley's, was declared in Wall street to place the firm in an independent position so far as the United States Steel corporation was concerned. The Kimberley property, of course, is the best. But it is understood that much of the other lands purchased are the finest in Minnesota.

To Beautify Fort Snelling.

St. Paul, April 25.—Colonel Ray, post commandant at Fort Snelling, has outlined improvements on the military reservation that may add a new beauty spot, finer than any it now possesses, to Minnehaha park, and open up a series of delightful carriage ways to the public. The co-operation of the city of Minneapolis, Hennepin county, and the government will be necessary.

For the Farmer.

One of the greatest attractions for people who contemplate moving to the city is the fact that they can buy on easy terms a home of their own, says The National Stockman and Farmer. Nearly every town of any size has its real estate dealers who, as a rule, handle the most of the realty that is transferred in the town and are constantly advertising and pushing the business, offering bargains or alleged bargains on "terms to suit the purchasers." New additions to villages, towns and cities are found in places of any energy and push, and in such additions are generally found lots that can be secured at prices and terms that will suit the pocketbook of almost any one.

It is quite different in the country. A man with small capital in many sections cannot find a chance to buy a small farm. If he does, the purchase is often prohibited by the cash payment required, and the time payments are so arranged that there is but little show for meeting them by the earnings of the farm. This combination has discouraged many an honest, industrious man of moderate means from trying to secure a home of his own and has turned the faces of some of the best men in the country toward the cities where conditions are different.

This condition could be remedied to the direct benefit of all concerned. There are lots of landowners in every section of the country who are land poor. They own and control more land than they can work to advantage. They hang on to it like grim death until the sheriff comes to their relief or they are fortunate enough to find some man who has a sum of money large enough to pay one-third down and a bank account good enough to take the risk of getting the balance together in one and two years. There are plenty of large farms throughout the country which could be made to pay for themselves within a few years if divided up properly and placed in the hands of ambitious men who would appreciate an opportunity to secure and pay for a home of their own.

Satisfactory Dairy Ration.

One of the most perplexing questions for the average dairy farmer is the feed ration, says Morgan S. Joslyn in The American Agriculturist. The cost of production must be considered and also the general results. Shall it be of the finely chopped material or will it be the coarse feed? I will give below the ration used by one of the leading farmers of southern New York and his mode of giving. He arises at 5 o'clock in the morning, goes to the barn and milks, after which he gives his herd of 30 cows three quarts apiece of gluten meal. He returns to the house and eats his breakfast. Then he gives half a bushel of ensilage and after this is eaten five pounds of cornstalks. This amount is given twice a day, morning and night. At noon two quarts of gluten are fed with cornstalks, making in all eight quarts gluten meal, one bushel ensilage and 15 pounds of stalks to a cow. This, I think, is a very good ration, for it includes all those foods which go to make up a good diet, and a thrifty condition is always secured when it is used.

My own milk is delivered at the local co-operative creamery and during the past year averaged me $70 per cow, surely not a bad showing for a dry summer. Ours is one of the most successful creameries in the state. It sells its butter at the highest price, deducts the cost of help and making and uses the Babcock butter fat test in distributing the money return among its patrons. This is conceded to be the best method in use, and it certainly has been satisfactory here.

Permanent Farm Improvements.

There are some very desirable improvements that the farmer might like to make in his buildings or his surroundings that seem almost out of his reach because they cannot be made without an expenditure of ready money greater than he has at command, says The American Cultivator, and there are others that require but little more than the labor and are within the means of every one. A few fruit or shade trees or shrubs set about the house, a space made for a flower garden where seeds may be sown in fall or spring, a clearing up of the rubbish of old wagons and tools and waste lumber around house and barn or mending gates and fences will make the place seem more homelike and as if civilized people lived there and less like a Boer or an Indian camp. Then it will cost but little to set some of the bush fruits and a grapevine or two, and in a few years they will add to the table luxuries enough to make the farm more pleasant as well as more profitable. These improvements can be made even when lumber for new buildings or the paint for old ones is unattainable.

Sowing Lawns.

In seeding down a lawn in the fall winter wheat may be sown with the grass seed, and it will not only prevent the soil from washing, but give the ground a beautiful fresh green sward early in the spring, which may be kept clipped, but will remain until the grass is well grown among it. The wheat will keep down the weeds, and the change from the green of the wheat to that of the grass will be so gradual as to be scarcely noticeable.

Automobile Mowers.

Automobile mowing machines propelled by gasoline engines were exhibited at the Paris exposition this year and were pronounced a success.

DEVELOPMENT

RAILROAD EXTENSIONS MAKING CHANGES IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

NEW TOWNS SPRINGING UP, AND SETTLERS FLOCKING IN.

Northern Minnesota has made rapid strides during the past year in the way of settlement. Since the survey of the Minnesota & International, or the Brainerd & Northern extension, reached this place about a year ago, thriving little towns have sprung up along the route, and more are being planned in anticipation of the coming of the ironed thoroughfare that will make communication with the markets possible

The more rapid settlement, perhaps, began six months ago, when Tenstrike and Blackduck were platted and inducements offered to settlers. In three months from that date Blackduck incorporated as a village, having at that period had an influx of people sufficient to cover the requirments of such organization. Sawmills are located at Tenstrike, Blackduck, Turtle River and Grand Falls, all new towns started since October last, and now the town of Bridgie, in Itasca county, has been platted by Backus & Brooks, the Minneapolis lumbermen, which will enjoy an early boom. From all reports this seems assured, thirty-four lots having been sold the first week that an agent solicited such sale in the comparatively small town of Bemidji.

Settlers sufficient to warrant the establishment of a sawmill have congregated near the Big Falls, on the Big Fork river, and from all reports locaters are doing a thriving business along the proposed route from Big Falls to Bemidji.

Along the 32-miles stretch between Big Falls and this place, little settlement has as yet set in; but cruisers and timber estimators are here in abundance, bespeaking a lively interest by capitalists in our surroundings. This spring will probably witness a considerable immigration to this immediate vicinity.

To the west of us Warroad and Port Hyland have passed from towns that anticipate railway connection to thriving trading points that now enjoy that connection. Along the Rainy river, on both sides of the boundary: the settlement has been added to until it is now difficult to obtain a tract of land that has a river front. On the American side this increase in population has caused the establishment of a postoffice at Clementson (Rapid river.) and the prospective one likely soon to be in operation at the mouth of Black River.

On the Canadian side of the boundary the increase in numbers and accumulation of business factors has been even more rapid, owing, no doubt, to the fact that the railway connection was promised at an early date That section will without the reasonable question of a doubt, be traversed by the Canadian Northern railway before the snow flies next fall.—Border Budget, Koochiching.

MUST BE DIVIDED.

Beltrami and Itasca Counties Demand It.

Beltrami and Itasca counties, the great forest empires of Minnesota, will have to be divided within the next five or six years, according to W. F. Street, of Bemidji. The rapid influx of population which will follow the new railroad lines in the extreme north will make this step necessary. The McKenzie & Mann line from Winnipeg to Port Arthur will open up northern Beltrami, and the Minnesota & International line from Bemidji to Koochiching will cause the settlement of eastern Beltrami and northern Itasca. The problem of county division and new county seats will be the great issue in the two counties for years to come.

Big Month.

Register of Deeds Gibeau and his force of clerks have been kept on the jump the past month, recording documents. The volume of business has been enormous. During the month of April there were recorded:

Deeds	159
Patents	24
Mortgages	80
Satisfactions	54
Assignments	21
Miscellaneous	54
Total	392

These figures indicate the activity in realestate in Red Lake county.

A NOTABLE CASE.

Liberality of a Great Insurance Company.

On the 14th of July, 1874, the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Boston, issued a policy for $1000, on the life of Joseph H. Poursine, of New Orleans, in favor of his wife. The premium was paid twice, and then after lapse, May 29, 1879, Poursine died. The policy issued to Poursine in 1874 was under the nonforfeiture code of Massachusetts. By the law the reserve carried the policy, as in full force, to November 9, 1880. Poursine had died before that time, but his widow, not knowing of the existence of a policy on her husband's life, made no claim upon the New England Mutual for the insurance money.

Twenty years pass by. One day, not long ago, Mrs. Poursine, looking through some old books in her possession came upon a policy in the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company for $1000 upon the life of her deceased husband He had been dead twenty years and the policy had expired nineteen years before.

She took the document to the general agent, and he told the strange story to the head office in Boston. The New England Mutual decided that the policy was in force, by virtue of the Massachusetts law, at the time of Mr Poursine's death: that the failure of the widow to make a claim before November 9, 1880, the date of its legal expiration, was entirely due to the fact that Mrs. Poursine was ignorant of the existence of the policy, and that although not legally or equitably liable, the New England would pay in full, just as though proof in legal form had been received by the company.

This fair and generous treatment of Mrs. Poursine by the New England Mutual will be approved by its friends and policy-holders wherever the facts are known. Such treatment of policy-holderes is a striking illustration of the New England's way of doing things. It is a policy-holders' company, purely mutual, and its offices are managed at Boston by careful, experienced and conscientious gentlemen, some of whom have spent a lifetime in its service. The New England Mutual Life is a great company, deserving of the confidence it has enjoyed since it begun its useful career.—The "Insurance Agent," May 1899.

This fine old company has recently placed an agency in Red Lake Falls in the hands of F. A. Whiteley.

TO NEGOTATE TREATY.

Inspector Laughlin To Visit the Red Lakers for This Purpose.

Washington, May 1.—Representative Eddy has asked the Secretary of the interior to send an inspector to the Red Lake reservation to negotiate a treaty for the cession of eleven townships in that reservation, now unalotted and unoccupied by Indians. The last Indian appropriation bill authorized the secretary to negotiate treaties for the cession of lands without going through the formality of creating expensive commissions, and Inspector McLaughlin is now at Rosebud, S. D., on that work.

It is said at the department that Mr. Eddy's request will be granted, and that Inspector McLaughlin will be detailed to negotiate a treaty. As he has work planned which will take a month to complete he will not get to Red Lake until about the 1st of June. Any treaty he may negotiate will have to be submitted to congress for ratification.

Narrow Escape.

Eugene Champagne, the eight-year old son of Michael Champagne, of the Palace hotel, had a narrow escape from death by electric shock Tuesday night. Two wire cables have recently been stretched from the top of the electric light pole on the hotel corner, to the foot of the telephone pole at the alley, with a view to bracing the light pole, since the heavy sign has been suspended in the centre of the street for the Union Land & Investment Company, and it seems that these wires became surcharged with the electric current. The boy was playing about and took hold of the wires, one in each hand. He immediately began to writhe, but was unable to free himself. The lights had been turned on but a moment before. His little sister, seeing her brother's distress, and his unavailing efforts to free himself from his perilous position, ran to his assistance and by her utmost exertions, succeeded in loosing him. It seems the shock has had no serious results, merely leaving him somewhat nervous after the experience. One of the wires has been cut, thus breaking the circuit, so that there is no more danger.

Mr. J.W. Baxter of North Brook, N.C. says he suffered with piles for fifteen years. He tried many remedies with no results until he used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and that quickly cured him. W. A. Schreiter.

A Word to the Public.

For the next two or three months PEDDLERS will canvass every part of Red Lake County to sell steel ranges. Before deciding to patronize these peddlers we would ask you to consider several points:

The prices on the peddlers' ranges run from $13 to $18 higher than our prices. You know the MAJESTIC—it is a larger range, and as good as the best made. We sell it for $18.00 less than the price of the peddlers' range. Remember, 1st, all things being equal, the business man who is permanently located, helps to pay taxes, contributes to the maintenance of public institutions, gives credit when you need it—ought to be considered ahead of the peddler, here this month away the next. He asks iron clad notes for his goods, and will never be in a position to do you a favor of any kind.

IF-- The peddler offered you A BETTER RANGE, A LARGER RANGE, A FINER LOOKING RANGE, A MORE ECONOMICAL RANGE FOR THE SAME money we ask for the Majestic, on easier terms, you might be justified in buying of him. But he does not. On the contrary, you save money by buying of us,—therefore, we ask you to turn down the peddler.

What We Offer: A 19½ x 23 inch, high warming closet; 15 gal 18 oz copper reservoir, Steel Majestic Range, with set of granite ware thrown in, for less money than the peddler asks for a smaller and poorer range. Remember we sell on 30 days' trial and easy monthly payments. You Save Money [$13 on the range and ware thrown in] by buying from us. We ask you to serve your own interests by turning down the peddlers and staying by the permanently located home dealer.

O'BRIEN BROS., Red Lake Falls.

N. B. When you hold your next church fair or pass the list for other local improvements don't forget to call on us. But remember, the peddlers will probably be far away by that time. They are a little late for the assessor too.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B. 578 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake }

In Probate Court
Special Term April 23, 1901.

In the matter of the Estate of Justus Schaper
Deceased

On reading and filing the petition of William Schaper, administrator of the estate of Justus Schaper

Setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead), of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell the all of real estate of Justus Schaper in said county.

And it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said Administrator to pay said debts, legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary, for the payment of said debts, legacies, or expenses, to sell all of said real estate at private sale.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 20th day of May, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m. at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said William Schaper to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Gazette, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 23d day of April, A. D. 1901.

Whereas, default has occurred and now exists in the terms and conditions of that certain mortgage which was executed and delivered by Ludvig Arneson and Lisa Mare Arneson, his wife, mortgagors, to and in favor of D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, and which bears date the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1886, and is recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1886, in book 25 of Mortgages at pages 448 to 450 and is also recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota in book 16 of Mortgages at page 580, and,

Whereas, there is due at the date hereof, under and by virtue of said mortgage the sum of Thirty-four and 68-100 ($34.68) dollars for the principal and interest thereon, and,

Whereas, no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof, and,

Whereas, said D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company has changed its name so as to read D. S. B. Johnston Land Company.

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the same will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein and hereinafter described, and the said sale will take place at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon, on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the front door of the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Red Lake at Red Lake Falls in said county. The premises described in said mortgage, and which will be sold to satisfy the same are described as the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter and the east half of the southeast quarter and lot numbered one all of section numbered Two in township numbered One hundred fifty-three in Range numbered Forty-five in the county of Red Lake (formerly county of Polk) in the state of Minnesota.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

BY CHARLES M. SHELDON,

Author of "In His Steps," "The Crucifixion of Philip Strong," "Robert Hardy's Seven Days," "Malcom Kirk," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1896, BY CONGREGATIONAL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL PUBLISHING SOCIETY.

places he found Andrew and Rhena and Eric. All of them were worn and sad with the burdens of all they had done and carried. Rhena especially seemed to show the strain of her great sacrifices. Stuart came very near speaking to her once about her overwork. If he had, it is doubtful if he could have kept from telling his love in the same breath. Somehow he did not say it. And late in the evening he went home with a feeling as near the heartache as he ever knew. He seemed to have thought he must spend the day in as sacrificial and helpful a manner as possible in atonement for the evening he was to spend. But certainly if ever man was in a poor frame of mind to enjoy festivity of the fashionable sort Stuart was that man. Jim Binney had died that afternoon, and Stuart had been there just in time to see Rhena kneel by the bed and pray as the spirit went back from the rough tabernacle to God who gave it. The words of the prayer and the great sobs of the miserable wife and mother, the cries of the children, the wretched hut with its few broken pieces of furniture, the snow patches on the floor, the dirty windows, the august dying of humanity in so commonplace and for granted a manner—all this filled Stuart's heart as he came down into the brilliant rooms, decorated with their garlands and bouquets of expensive flowers and perfumed with that refinement which wealth cunningly spent knows so well how to produce.

The guests came, dressed in the latest and best that money can afford. The conversation was charming and agreeable. To hear these men and women talk a stranger never could have guessed that there was such a thing as suffering in all the world. The music was about love and flowers and beauty and sentimental phrases that had no meaning or a double one. The whole thing filled Stuart for the first time in his life with unspeakable loathing. It seemed to him like a dance in a cemetery, where the dancers might imagine they were waltzing over fragrant meadows dotted with white blossoms when in reality it was on human graves they danced, black with the freshly laid earth of new made burials. He never knew how he passed the evening. He sang with Miss Vasplaine when Louise requested it. He heard a great applause when they had finished. Una was dressed beautifully. She was handsome, with great black eyes and much color, of the type of English girls, so different from Rhena, Stuart remembered thinking at one time during the evening. He found great difficulty in conversation. He had never been very apt at the slight nothings society knows so well how to exchange. Tonight he wondered if the world was so happy and satisfied everywhere that men and women, made in the image of God, had no better way to spend their time than to meet for hours every week dressed in their best clothes, eating expensive and indigestible food, singing songs that did not contain one noble aspiration higher than a sickly sentiment, exchanging idiotic words thrown into sentences that had no throb of sacrifice or heroism or humanity in them, sitting at little tables and playing cards by the hour with a persistence and repetition never shown for any enduring needs of human suffering and then going home to sleep late next day and get up to prepare for another evening in the way of new ways of arranging flowers, card tables, menus and decorations ad infinitum ad nauseam after the manner of what pleased to call itself the "best society."

Yes, the world must be getting on very smoothly. There is no real suffering, no inequality, no need of heroism or sacrifice, no call for using human speech in any better way than to exchange compliments, no use in trying to use time except to make money and enjoy spending it, where women smile and sing, and flowers give out their perfume, and dancing feet strike the polished floor to the music of the strings behind the palms in the alcove. For the world is society. What other world is there that calls for tears and groans, and sacrifices and crosses, and bloody sweat and agony? Strike up the music faster, faster! "Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die." Surely society must be right. The Aunt Royals and the Louises are certainly very proper and correct in their estimates of what constitutes the right thing to do. It cannot be that they are mistaken in this matter. Yet if they are it is possible the great judgment day will reveal it to them. After all, death and the judgment are two disagreeable facts. We beg society's pardon for mentioning them. Strike up the music faster, faster! Let us not think too much. Thinking leads to action, and action leads to sacrifice, and sacrifice is not agreeable.

At 11 o'clock most of the guests had gone. The hour had been fixed at 11 by Aunt Royal out of deference to the recent death in the family. The Vasplaines had frequently, when at the Duncans', sent their coachman home and walked back themselves. They had been trained to the English constitutional habit of walking.

"It's an elegant night. Won't you walk over with us?" asked young Vasplaine as they stood in the hall looking out at the snow covered hills, a vision of loveliness in the moonlight.

"Yes, let's go, Stuart!" cried Louise.

Aunt Royal gave her consent, so before Stuart knew it he was serving as escort to Una, as he could not very well have refused to do without making more of the refusal than it was worth. And Vasplaine went with Louise a little way behind.

Rhena appeared on the threshold.

As they reached the town square and began to cross it they heard the Salvation Army singing a hymn. The hall was lighted up, and the meeting was still going on.

Yes, Jesus left his home on high,
Out of love, out of love;
To suffer death for you and I,
Out of love, out of love.
Our sinful sins were on him rolled;
Oh, look, poor sinner, and behold!
He shed this precious blood, we're told,
Out of love, out of love.

He had nowhere his head to lay,
Out of love, out of love;
He walked the streets by night and day,
Out of love, out of love.
Oh, sinner, will you now begin,
Take up your cross and follow him?
He's promised he will take you in,
Out of love, out of love.

Oh, sinner, will you stop and think
Of his love, of his love,
To have his hands and feet so torn,
Out of love, out of love?
Oh, will you come to him today
And get your sins all washed away
And walk with us the narrow way
Filled with love, filled with love?

The hymn was sung to the tune "What's the News?" It gave abundant opportunity for criticism as to its grammar, meter and literary character, but it struck into Stuart's heart like a blazing contrast with the whole evening spent with society in its selfishness.

Just as he and Una reached the end of the diagonal in front of the hall the door opened, and some people came out. And as he stepped his foot on the curb with Una by his side, resplendent in all her healthful beauty, Rhena appeared on the threshold. They were but a few feet apart, and Rhena's eyes caught Stuart's for one brief glance and then rested on Una. Then the door was shut, and Stuart and Una went on.

CHAPTER IX.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

It was nearly half a mile from the Salvation Army hall to the Vasplaines', and Stuart never knew what he said to Una as they walked on. Rhena's look as the door had opened revealed a part of the truth to Stuart. If Rhena had been in Una's place during that half mile, there would have been no question of his determination to decide his destiny at once. As it was Una was at first very gay in her rallying questions and remarks, and then as she neared her home she grew quiet and finally haughty and chilling in her whole attitude toward Stuart. She did not know all, but she guessed the state of Stuart's mind toward Rhena, and she was piqued, if indeed a deeper feeling did not enter into her thought, at the sight of the indifference of her old playmate to the beauty and attractiveness he had once seemed to enjoy. She bade him good night abruptly and went in at once, leaving him standing somewhat awkwardly by the door waiting for Louise.

When Louise and Vasplaine finally appeared, Stuart moved down the steps, and without waiting for Vasplaine to say good night he said: "Louise, we had better be going right back. Good night, Vasplaine."

"Good night! Good night, Louise," cried the young man, and he went up the steps at once and into the house.

For a few minutes as the two walked back neither said anything. Finally Stuart asked abruptly:

"How long has Vasplaine been calling you 'Louise'?"

"Ever since we were children," replied Louise in a mocking tone. But she was very much excited and never looked so pretty in all her life.

"But not in that tone of voice," replied Stuart. He looked at the face in the fur trimmed hat.

Louise looked back at him with just the faintest indication of a sneer on her lips. "Hal asked me to marry him," she said at last.

"And what did you tell him?" asked Stuart quietly.

"I told him I would."

The two walked on in silence, broken only by the crisp sound of the dry snow under their feet.

"Do you love him, Louise?" Stuart asked gently.

"Oh, I like him well enough! He is"—

"Stop, Louise! I can't bear to hear you speak that way of such a serious matter. Do you know what sort of a man Vasplaine is?"

Louise was at anger heat in a moment. She wrenched her arm from Stuart's and spoke with a passion she really felt. "No, no! Do you think I spy out his habits? He's as fast as most of the young men, I suppose. What difference does it make? What right have you to pass judgment on him?"

Stuart was staggered at first. Then he recovered himself and replied: "Louise, I love you. You are my sister. I speak as I do because of my knowledge, and I say to you that if you marry Hal Vasplaine you will be a miserable woman. Louise, listen to me," Stuart went on, his love for his sister for the moment causing him to forget his own condition. "This man who has asked you to marry him is—oh, Louise, he will wreck your life! He is"—

"You need not say any more," interrupted Louise coldly. "I have promised to marry him. I like him. I believe I love him even since your brutal attack on him behind his back. You claim the privilege of marrying beneath you. Let me do the same, if that is what you call it."

Stuart reeled almost as if he had been struck. He had been standing facing Louise since she took her arm from his. He passed his hand across his eyes, and then in a low tone he said:

"Let us go on. We shall never understand each other."

Louise without a word took his arm again, and they went on in silence. By the time they reached the town square most of the lights were out, except in the houses where the sick and dying lay. Everything was wrapped in the quiet of a still winter night. The Salvation Army hall looked cold and bleak, its unpainted siding black with age. There was a light shining from Rhena's room. Their way led right past the house. Stuart trembled as he went by. He feared Louise might say something.

She did not, however, and neither spoke a word until they reached home.

Aunt Royal was still up and waiting for them. "You must have walked fast," she said, looking keenly at them both.

"We did," replied Stuart. "It is a very cold night."

He went into the library, where there was an open fire burning in the grate. The rooms were still heavy with the perfume of roses and carnations.

Aunt Royal and Louise followed him, after Louise had said a few words to her aunt. Aunt Royal was as excited as she ever allowed herself to be.

"Louise tells me you object to her marrying young Vasplaine," she said, confronting Stuart abruptly.

Stuart was surprised. He did not think Louise would mention the matter to her aunt. But Louise was thoroughly angry, and small natures like hers are never satisfied to wait long before expressing resentment. It was a very natural thing for her to confide at once in her aunt, being sure in this instance of her perfect sympathy.

"Yes, I do object," replied Stuart firmly. He looked straight into his aunt's face.

"On what grounds?"

"The character of the man," answered Stuart quietly.

"His character! Do you know that the Vasplaines have held the very highest position in the best society for several generations? Has not young Vasplaine been received everywhere in society where you and Louise have been?"

"It is possible that society may have more regard for wealth and a family name than for the little consideration of character and morals. I have heard sometimes that that is the case," said Stuart, with a sad smile.

"Why have you allowed the Vasplaines to come into the house, then, if they are such dreadful people?" asked Louise as she sat in one of the deep easy chairs, with her feet out toward the fire.

Stuart did not reply. He was distracted by the events of the evening. He realized that his home life was disturbed by the conflicting factors which necessarily entered it with all his newer ideas and definitions of life. Nothing could be more certain than the fact that henceforth the lives of his sister and Aunt Royal lay in directly opposite ways from his. He felt the needless irritation of the present discussion and longed to escape from it.

Louise, however, had no intention of letting Stuart go without suffering from a blow she knew so well how to inflict. "Aunt, I told Stuart he ought not to object to my choice if I didn't object to his. I don't think, though, that we shall be disgraced by a Salvation Army alliance in the family. Miss Dwight was presented to Una and her escort this evening, and by the appearance of her face it was easy to see she thought them a very handsome couple."

Stuart clinched his hands tightly as he stood with his back to the fire. The old passion rose in him to its highest point, and nothing but the grace of God kept it from bursting out into a torrent such as in the other days had more than once terrified Louise, reckless as she was in provoking it.

There was a deep silence in the heavily perfumed room. Stuart drew a long breath. Then he looked fearlessly into Aunt Royal's eyes, and with a sudden movement he stood close by his sister.

"Louise," he said, and at first his voice was calm, even loving, "you do not know how you hurt me. I expect to ask Miss Dwight to be my wife, but I will never subject her to the humilia[illegible]g under the roof of a house where"—

He broke off abruptly and went out of the room. He felt unable to finish calmly. Aunt Royal and Louise sat up quite late talking over the whole matter. It is not necessary to enter into it. The whole situation was becoming unbearable so far as Stuart was concerned, so the two women agreed.

"What if Stuart marries her and brings her home here?" Aunt Royal would say.

"Then I shall leave the house, but I don't believe Rhena Dwight will ever marry him," Louise would reply. And there the matter rested for the time being, in the thought of the women.

The next morning Stuart did not appear at breakfast. He left word that he had very important business at the office and could not wait for the late meal to which Aunt Royal and Louise were in the habit of sitting down.

He had reached a point in his feelings where he felt the necessity of telling Rhena all. What Louise had said about that chance meeting at the hall disturbed him seriously. But the great question with him now was to know the truth from Rhena herself.

He spent the forenoon at the office. There was plenty to do. The fever and the want on the part of the miners' families were grim factors now in all Champion. The other ranges were fast feeling the effects of the double scourge of sickness and suffering. Scores of the miners' children were dying daily. To meet the emergency Stuart used his money lavishly. Everything in the way of medicines and nurses' supplies went out of the office in large quantities. He took a melancholy pleasure in spending his money this way. He could at least relieve some pain, lessen some anguish. It was a drop only in the great ocean of the misery, but he had some satisfaction in contributing that much.

A little after noon word came to him that the child in the cabin at the end of Cornishtown was dying. Stuart had no particular reason for going up there more than to any other cabin where other children were dying, but somehow he felt drawn in that direction and about 2 o'clock he drove up the narrow wagon road and left his horse and cutter at the same place where he had stopped the night he had found Rhena.

He walked on up the path over the trodden snow thinking of that night. The air was crisp and the sky clear. The whole town behind him lay in its setting of snow dressed hills, beautiful as a picture painted by a master, giving no outward sign of the anguish and sorrow that beat within the homes of the miners below.

He knocked gently at the cabin door, and Rhena opened it. She colored faintly at sight of him, but without a word beckoned him to enter.

The doctor was kneeling by the bed. It was a child, a little girl, only 10 years old, who was dying. Stuart went and stood at the end of the rude bed. Rhena seated herself close by the doctor. The father of the child was helpless from accident. He lay in the next room. The mother was kneeling by the side of the doctor.

"Is she—is she going—now—doctor? Don't say so. She be young to go!" cried the mother as she leaned over the bed and looked into the wasted face there.

"Yes, she's going. She will soon be out of suffering," replied the doctor, very, very gently. No one was ever more gentle than Dr. Saxon in the presence of the last enemy. He never relaxed his efforts until the last second of life. He looked death in the face with a frown. That was a part of his rough, abrupt character. But he looked the dying and the mourning in the face with the look of a compassionate angel.

Very fast the last great change grew now. The father cried out from the other room that he wanted to see his little girl once more. Stuart offered to bring him in. The doctor nodded, and Stuart went in where the man lay and with Rhena's help succeeded in getting him into the other room and propped up in a chair where he could see the child. Great tears rolled over his rough, coarse face as he sat there. It was not very long. The doctor made a movement as he held the slender wrist. The eyes opened full on the father as he looked. There was a faint smile. It crossed the face as the sunlight, on a day of low lying clouds when the wind is blowing hard, crosses a meadow. It was gone, and the gray shadow followed fast after. The form stiffened, there was a sigh, another, and that was all. The doctor laid the little hand down and said, "She is gone." He turned his face away from the mother, and Stuart was startled at the look. It was as if Saxon had seen the death he was continually fighting and was enraged at the victory won against his human skill. But he turned again to the mother, who had, after the manner of VACCINATION AND SMALLPOX.

The smallpox epidemic, which has extended all over the Northwest, as far east as Chicago, would have no doubt been a far graver thing had not the splendid system of the state health supervision gone hand in hand with the great preventive, vaccination. It is noteworthy that where a panic would have prevailed over the same number of cases a few years ago, today both populace and physicians look upon the situation with perfect equanimity, feeling secure in the command of the disease through the general practice of vaccination.

The smallpox panic is, in fact, a thing of the past, and we have only to contrast present condition, the control of the disease and the perfect security that is felt against it, with the epidemics of old, during which vaccination was almost untried, to appreciate the marvelous change that has been wrought by this preventive. Moreover, means for a striking contrast are furnished just now in the "Personal Reminiscences" of William Cooper Parke, who was for thirty years marshal of the Hawaiian Islands.

An epidemic started at Honolulu May 13, 1853, the first victims being two native women. The energetic white inhabitants immediately established quarantine, and the government and health board and consulting physicians seem to have acted, not only with promptness but with intelligence. But, says Mr. Parke, "the disease spread like wildfire, and the natives were panic-stricken. There had been but little general vaccination among the natives, so the disease had a clear field, and as they were ignorant of the malady and did not know how to take care of themselves they died like sheep."

At one period as many as forty or fifty corpses were buried a day, and the total number of deaths amounted to 2,485. It is more to our purpose, however, to record the number of cases, which was 6,405, most all of them being isolated on the small island of Oahu, whose population was not as large as that of a Chicago ward. This is to be set against less than a hundred cases in this great city during the last season, and we may add a particular comparison to the general one. Since vaccination became general on the Chicago police force there has not been a single case of smallpox among the men. In Oahu, where vaccination was giving no chance and where all attention was concentrated on the sick and the dead, more than fifty native constables died of the disease, and probably many more were infected with it.

Though it is not possible to prove what might have been or might not have been, it is a fair assumption that the element of vaccination very largely explains the difference between Hawaii's experience in 1853 and the experience in the Northwest in 1901. Certainly there is no other element which affords anything like an adequate explanation.

The first monthly butter exhibit held under the direction of the state dairy and food commission was an unqualified success and augurs well for the benefit that will be derived from this educational work. Altogether some 127 samples of butter were exhibited from as many creameries throughout the state; it was all of an excellent quality and after being scored was sold in the open market for the benefit of the exhibitors, at a shade above the market price. Each exhibitor was sent a statement showing him just wherein his butter fell off from perfection so that he may remedy that particular trouble in the future, and by this means the output of Minnesota creameries will be brought to an even higher plane than at present and we now lead the world. The dairy and food department is deserving of commendation for this good work, for it certainly means much for the state.

THE RANGE INCIDENT.

This steel range incident is not a sentiment, but a plain business proposition. Representatives of the Home Comfort Company are canvassing Red Lake County, selling ranges. The question arises, or should arise, with every farmer approached, will it pay me to buy this range? No one denies that it is a good range, and the fellows out with them, together with Manager Yates, are gentlemen. But that does not alter the situation. The fact remains that just as good a range as they are offering, (and our merchants assert the ranges sold here are somewhat larger and better,) can be had of the home dealers for less money—and with the granite ware thrown in. This being the case, it would be suicidal for any citizen of Red Lake county to buy of the traveling salesmen. If our home dealers sell cheaper and offer good terms, they should have the preference, not for the sake of any sentiment, but simply because it is to your interest to leave the money at home. Where would the value on your farm lands be but for the cities and villages of the county? The farms would be worthless and our farmer friends know this. They know too that when they need favors they do not go to the Range Company of St. Louis. They know that our merchants' success means a better town and a better town means more value on farm lands. Look at the increase in the value of farm lands since the cities of the county have been thriving and growing. As a mere sensible business proposition, and in the interests of the community at large, we would advise everyone who wants a range to buy it of the home dealer. Any other course is the utmost folly.

At Duluth an unanticipated enforcement of the curfew ordinance caught two small boys on the street Monday night without a chaperone and they were promptly arrested.

The idea seems to prevail throughout the country that old currency and bonds issued in the early days of the government will be redeemed in cash by the U. S. Treasury, while as a matter of fact the only value of most of these old documents is as relics. Treasurer Roberts, speaking of the idea said: "Hardly a day goes by that does not bring some old currency or bonds to the department for redemption. Obligations incurred back in the time of the Continental Congresses and in the time of the Confederation find their way to Washington from old wallets in which they had been stored for scores of years. The people who send them often think they have discovered a good sum of ready money; but the great bulk of them are valueless. Congress many years ago passed an act of limitation on the value of paper issued by the old Confederation."

The Lafayette Club gave their play Thursday night at the Maccabee hall, and the crowd was so large that scores of late comers were turned away. The entertainment was repeated at a matinee for the children Saturday afternoon, and again Saturday night, drawing crowded houses each time. Miss Nettie Gibson, who we understand had the matter in charge, is the recipient of much well merited praise from all who attended, for the manner in which she drilled the participants.

Owing to the press of work at the close of the school year, the dramatic entertainment which was to have been given on May 17, has been indefinitely postponed.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

HEAVY ORE RECEIPTS

LACK OF BOATS CAUSING CONGESTION ON THE DOCKS AT DULUTH.

Sixty Thousand Settlers Passed Through the Twin Cities for the West This Season—Chippewa Reservation Cannot Be Opened at Present—Ruling Favorable to Board of Control—State News in General.

Duluth, May 2.—The last of the ore ronds at the Head of the Lakes has commenced moving, and ore is coming to the Duluth, Missabe and Northern docks at the West End. In a few days it will be arriving at the rate of about 15,000 tons a day. The boats also are moving and will be arriving in large numbers in less than a week. At the Duluth and Iron Range docks and at those of the Eastern Minnesota ore has been coming in for some time and there are about 200,000 tons already in stock. It has been coming so fast that the docks are full, and receipts have now slackened off, for there is no more room at the docks.

Several of the larger mines of both the Vermillion and Mesaba ranges that ship to these docks have practically closed down, awaiting boats. Shovels had been started in the stockpiles and the hoists were being shipped daily, but all this has been stopped. It will commence again as soon as the first boats are reported as in Lake Superior. A season of unexampled activity is assured in the ore business, and the allotments of ore to be shipped, while not announced, are understood to be such as have never been reached in any preceding year.

SETTLERS FOR THE WEST.

Nearly Sixty Thousand People Taken Out This Season.

St. Paul, May 2.—A notable season in homeseekers' excursions has closed. Since the second week in February multitudes of settlers have weekly left for the West, and, as a result of the cheap rates granted by the railroads, nearly 60,000 souls have gone to the far West in search of new homes. The climax was seven heavily loaded trains, none of them of less than 12 cars, which left the Union depot during the morning.

The flyers of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific left in three sections, and the regular train of the Soo road was composed of 14 heavily loaded passenger cars. Officials at the depot declare that it was the heaviest day for excursion travel in the history of the station, and the figures of the passenger departments show that all previous records were put in the shade. At a conservative estimate 3,500 passengers were hauled out of the depot, and of these fully 90 per cent were bound for the state of Washington.

WILL NOT BE OPENED.

Congressman Eddy Gives Information on Chippewa Land Situation.

Washington, May 1.—"I am receiving many inquiries," said Congressman F. M. Eddy, "concerning the rumored opening of a portion of the Chippewa Indian reservation in Minnesota.

"There will be no lands on that reservation thrown open to settlement this year, no matter whether Secretary Hitchcock is for or against the proposition. The power and the authority to open the land rests with congress alone. There is a proposition in the last Indian appropriation bill which provides that the secretary of the interior may make negotiations with certain tribes of Indians for the relinquishment of their unallotted lands to the government, such cession to be subject to ratification by congress."

BOARD GETS THE MONEY.

Attorney General's Ruling in Favor of Board of Control.

St. Paul, May 6.—The board of control now has sole charge of the money appropriated for buildings and improvements at the hospitals for the insane. Attorney General Douglas has so ruled in response to a question from the board. He does not extend the opinion to other state institutions, but by inference it applies to all that comes under control of the board after Aug. 1.

The board of control will therefore assume charge of the plans for all buildings and will have control of the funds appropriated.

HILL AGAIN DENIES.

Story of a Great Railway Combine Is Ridiculous.

New York, May 7.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, denies the report that a plan was formed three years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan, the Goulds, the Vanderbilts and himself for the consolidation of the great railway systems of the country, and that it is about to be carried out. Mr. Hill, who is at a hotel here, said:

Mrs. Schilling Found Guilty.

Minneapolis, May 3.—Mrs. Bertha Schilling, the variety actress, has been found guilty of manslaughter in the second degree. She had been indicted for manslaughter in the first degree. The jury spent about an hour and a half in arriving at the conclusion that Mrs. Schilling was responsible for the death of Nellie Murphy, with whom she quarreled at the Columbia theater on the afternoon of April 1.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

A ST. PAUL FATHER MURDERS HIS FOUR CHILDREN AND HIMSELF.

William Rosenfield Beats His Little Ones Into Insensibility and Hurls Them Into the Mississippi—Family Dissensions Cause One of the Worst Tragedies in the History of Minnesota's Capital.

St. Paul, May 4.—Marshall avenue bridge on the night of April 24 was the scene of the most revolting crime in the annals of Ramsey county history. At this lonesome spot four innocent children were beaten into submission and hurled to their death in the river below by a frenzied father. His horrible ends accomplished William Rosenfield threw himself over the bridge and closely followed his murdered children into eternity.

For over a week Rosenfield's mysterious disappearance puzzled the police. Their worst fears were realized when the body of Joseph Rosenfield, the oldest child, was found floating among the logs at the St. Paul boom, about a mile below Fort Snelling.

While making his rounds at 6 o'clock in the morning, Joseph Lachapelle, an employe of the St. Paul Log and Boom company, noticed the body of a boy near the surface of the water. He at once drew the body to shore, and, hurrying to a telephone, notified the St. Paul police department. Coroner Miller ordered the morgue wagon to the scene and drove out shortly after. Forty-five minutes later the lifeless body was hauled from the water. As soon as the boy's face was turned up his battered features revealed that death had only come after a futile struggle. Blood oozed from the nose, which was flattened and broken; the left side of the forehead was dented, and over the right eye was a bruise and another under the chin. The body was carried to the morgue wagon and instantly identified by Charles Adams, the driver, who was well acquainted with the Rosenfield children.

Rosenfield was 35 years old and had been married 19 years. He and his wife had been separated for several months, relations and friends caring for their four children. On the night of April 24 Rosenfield hired a horse and buggy from a St. Paul liveryman, and securing his youngest child from a friend in this city who was caring for him, drove directly to Minneapolis. Calling at the residence of his wife's sister, with whom Mrs. Rosenfield was stopping, he tried to get his wife to return and live with him. This she refused to do.

After leaving his wife he drove to Mrs. Bigford's home and secured the other three children, saying that he was going to take them to the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Oswald, 1120 Lyndale avenue north. With the four helpless and sleepy children, who were unconsciously being driven to their death, he continued his journey to the Marshall avenue bridge, and here in the dead of night the unnatural father committed his gruesome crime and in all probability ended his own worthless life.

An autopsy over the remains of Joseph was held at the county morgue. It was found that the boy had been beaten into insensibility before being thrown into the river. The body and limbs were badly bruised. There is little doubt that the boy engaged in a hand-to-hand conflict with his father before he submitted to death.

RAIN A GREAT BEAUTIFIER

An English Woman's Recipe for the Complexion and Her Reasons for Giving It.

The English woman in the Jersey suburb kicked off her rubbers, threw aside her rain cloak and felt walking hat and entered with her face bright and glowing, says the New York Sun.

"Gracious!" gasped her friend. "Aren't you drowned Why didn't you have an umbrella?"

"More mist than rain," responded the English woman, mopping her face with a man's handkerchief. "Besides, I don't carry an umbrella on this sort of trip. I've been taking the complexion cure. I always do, every spring."

"Complexion cure?" echoed the friend. "Is it a new one? Come right in and tell me all about it. If that color you have is permanent I want to take that cure myself. You're a walking testimonial."

"It's the oldest cure in the world, my dear," remarked the English woman, settling herself to make a speech, "and the simplest. It's also free. Anybody can take it for nothing, but I'll guarantee that it's just as good as those you pay dollars and dollars for in New York.

"The materials are one nice, drizzly or misty day, which nature will provide, one good country road, of which there are plenty around here, one pair of easy shoes, light rubbers, a golf skirt and a comfortable rain cloak, and a hat that won't wilt.

"Take one hour for it anyway, two if you have good legs, and walk—just walk. It's simplicity itself. You may knead your face and rub it with a towel before and afterward if you like, but the chief things are the rain and the walking. I present you with the recipe and if you'll try it and keep it up I guarantee its success."

"It sounds well," said the friend, "but how about taking cold?"

"Bosh!" responded the Englishwoman. "Follow my directions and don't stand around and you won't take cold. On the contrary you'll be all the better for the exercise you've taken. That's part of the cure.

"You see it's as plain as the nose on your face. You American women envy the poor Irish and Scotch servant girls who come over here their red cheeks and clear complexions, and you spend most of every 24 hours for six months in the year in rooms heated by hot air and wonder why you don't have a complexion like Bridget's.

"When you go out you ride in a heated car. You have hot biscuits and ice water for breakfast, drink more ice water throughout the day, yet when you go out you are ever so careful that a little good, wholesome rain water doesn't touch your face.

"In summer it's a little better, but the air is dried for you then. Now look at the difference in the life of Kate and Mary and Bridget in their native heath. In the first place the air is nearly always moist and cool, and it rains or is misty—foggy you might call it—two days out of three for nine months in the year.

"Kate and Bridget probably worked out doors in the fields. Whether they did or not they weren't slaves to umbrellas, and while you take a car to go three blocks they would walk three miles and think nothing about it. In winter in the house they have an open fire in the kitchen, and the living room, if they have two, and cold bedrooms, so there is no warm, dry air to dry their skin and fade the color in their cheeks.

"Of course, you can't alter climatic conditions, but that isn't necessary. If you'll shut off the heat from your bedrooms except when it is really very cold, and walk out when it's good and damp and healthful, and let the rain beat on your face and the moisture soak into your skin, you'll be all the healthier and look all the better for it."

WIFE LIKES TO BE HIT.

Newly Wedded Goose Island Woman Thinks Blows of Husband Quite Proper.

Out on Goose island there recently occurred the wedding of a girl who was known as "Sweet Katie" to a teamster who was not only a widower but who was also known as a most brutal man. It was frequently reported that his first wife had died because of the frequent floggings which he administered both with his fists and his feet, says a Chicago exchange.

A motherly old soul, meeting "Sweet Katie" one day, said: "I hear you are about to be married to that Mike the teamster. It's careful that you must be. Didn't you know that Mike is a bad, bad man, who licked his other wife until she died and then kicked her body down cellar? You will be all black and blue in two weeks from his kicks."

But Katie was not frightened and she was married to Mike. A few weeks afterward the motherly old soul met her again and remarked that she was not looking well. "Ah, and I see you are being kicked to death, too."

"No, indeed, you are mistaken," replied Katie. "Nary a kick has Mike given me yet. It's his fists he has used all the time. So don't be too hard on the man."

John Peterson was at St. Hilaire Thursday.

Chas. Zutz has put up a very nice residence.

J. P. Larson spent part of last week in Crookston.

Robert Poutz and son, Otto, left for Washington Tuesday.

Miss Hedda Anderson returned home from Crookston Wednesday last.

Nick Eckstein's store is nearly completed. It will be a fine structure.

Nearly all the farmers began to do a little seeding the latter part of last week.

Prof. P. V. Malm, of Crookston, came in on the train Saturday to list some lands.

Mrs. P. A. Erickson and Mrs. John Swenson represented Bray at our burg Saturday.

Nick Eckstein is excavating a cellar and will soon commence the erecting of a dwelling.

Land seekers are driving around in the country very lively. Of course agents are with them.

Sunday school was begun in Sw. Luth. church last Sunday with Eric Adolphson as superintendent.

The late rains made Black River very high. It was flowing over the bridge approaches on most of the bridges.

Thomas Hennesy took twenty-five head of cattle to Red Lake Falls Saturday, which he had sold to Linnihan & Madden.

Swan Anderson, with his family, left for Washington Wednesday. Mr. Anderson was a good citizen and a model farmer, and we were sorry to see him go.

Rev. J. S. Ryding held services in the Sw. Luth. Church Sunday last and a very large crowd was assembled. In the afternoon he went to St. Hilaire, conducting evening services there. He also conducted services here Wednesday evening, returning on Thursday evenings train.

Story Of A Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife had been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by W. A. Schreiter, Druggist.

NOW THE WHIST FACE.

Intense Expression Showing More Commonly Among Women Who Play the Game.

We have all sorts of faces, all varieties of countenances, that get their recognized expressions from close application to some variety of straining employment. Now we have "the whist face" to add to the list. It is showing itself among the women, and comes from the whist club habit, which is rapidly growing, showing its strength not only at night, but in the afternoons, and even in the mornings, associated with tea and wafers, chocolate and bon-bons, says the New York Herald.

One expression of the whist face, though it is sad, and is told with an effort, is age. The women may shudder at the thought, but the fact remains. Intense thought and daily racking the memory to remember what cards have been played cannot but deepen the face lines and hasten what heretofore the women have left for time to accomplish without their permission.

In the whist face you will see the far-away look, accompanied by arched lines on the forehead, suddenly changing to an expression of inward contemplation, associated with a tightening of the lips. These expressions come from an acrobatic mind under training that consists in leaping from the first lead, jump by jump, over each successive play, to the ultimate effect of the next play that must be made, while keeping the mental eye on the accepted rules, not neglecting to observe and respond to signals.

Nature can recover from this sort of thing when occasionally indulged in, but when it becomes a habit, practiced almost daily, and some times for two or more sessions a day, the expression becomes fixed, and follows the wearer, no matter what her thought or occupation may be at the time.

PACIFIC COAST'S FUTURE.

Resources of the Country, Says This Authority, Will Not Build Up Big Cities.

Certain facts may now be stated affecting the future of the Pacific coast. The first of these is that, however rich it may be in natural resources, the exploitation of these will never support a very large population, or build up great cities, so long as all the new wealth produced is exported and all the finished products required are imported. The second of these facts is that, while a great trade may be built up by way of the Pacific coast with foreign countries, that of itself will not build up great cities on the coast, because modern commercial methods will prevent these cities being the sellers, purchasers and changers of this commerce, and leave them in the condition of onlookers merely, says the Engineering Magazine. Consequently, the future of the Pacific coast, if it is to have any worthy of the name, is dependent on the manufacture of the raw materials produced within its limits and drawn from outside, to supply the wants of its own population and those of the available foreign territory. In other words, the Pacific coast must have such a future as is connected with the history of the industrial, commercial and financial supremacy of Great Britain during the nineteenth century, such a future as is visibly dawning for the United States, with its center on the Atlantic seaboard, during the twentieth century—or it must remain forever in a condition of commercial subserviency.

Prevented A Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

Rosenfield's Body Found.

St. Paul, May 6.—The lifeless body of William Rosenfield, the murderer and suicide, was found at the St. Paul boom by one of the employes, not far from the place where the body of his child was discovered. This clearly shows that after murdering his children Rosenfield completed the job by drowning himself.

WILL NOT QUIT WORK.

Action Taken by the Derbyshire Miners' Association.

London, May 5.—There are further indications that the coal owners and merchants are wavering in regard to the advisability of urging the miners to close the pits. The divisions among the men, too, are becoming more marked.

The Derbyshire Miners' association, the membership of which is 30,000, unanimously passed a resolution against the export tax on coal, but by a small majority decided not to stop work.

On the other hand the Northumberland delegates, at a meeting at New Castle, unanimously decided to support the strike. Durham miners, at a meeting, agreed to abide by the decision of the national conference. The Lancashire and Cheshire miners took up a similar attitude, while those of Yorkshire voted against the strike, the feeling being expressed that if the men agreed to a shut-down of the pits the owners should continue paying their wages.

"It is with a good deal of satisfaction and pleasure that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy", says Druggist A. W. Sawtells, of Hartford Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life this past summer while at the shore, and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure For The Liquor Habit

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B. 578 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

COUNTY NEWS NOTES.

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS.

Nerden.

Mrs. Carrie Banken, of Sanders, is staying with Mr. and Mrs O. Lillegard.

A large bunch of cattle was delivered at Tweet last Thursday, to a Montana rancher who will take the stock west to fatten.

O. Monsebroten and E. Gravhe are improving the neighborhood by ditching and constructing a road between their fields.

Roads and fields are in a very bad condition, on account of the heavy rains of last week, and the seeding that was well commenced will be delayed.

Mothers of good judgment and experience give their little ones Rocky Mountain Tea this month, keeps them well. 35c. Made by Madison Medicine Co. W. A. Schreiter.

The Sunday school class met last Sunday at G. Anderson's and was attended by old and young. The children are taking a good deal of interest in the undertaking.

C. Narveson, of Sanders, has been making a run through here with his steed, which is a very fine animal, and those desiring his services, will find him at OleJohnsrud's place every Thursday.

If people only know what we know about Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, it would be used in nearly every household, as there are few people who do not suffer from a feeling of fulness after eating, belching, flatulence, sour stomach or water brash, caused by indigestion or dyspepsia. A preparation such as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which, with no aid from the stomach, will digest your food, certainly can't help but do you good. W. A. Schreiter.

Emardville.

Nels Holberg, of Red Lake Falls, was around last week in the interest of Swanson, the landman.

Jas. Powers, of Red Lake Falls, was around last week setting up machinery and talking with farmers.

Rev. Olson, of St. Hilaire delivered a very good sermon in the Swedish language at the schoolhouse in Dist. 114 last Sunday.

Rev. O. Kolstoe came here Friday (Bededay) the day of prayer, among the Schallu people and preached a good sermon in the Norwegian language.

"Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. I quickly secured a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure, giving her three doses. The croup was mastered and our little darling speedily recovered." So writes A. L. Spafford, Chester, Mich.

Some farmers had a sad experience with mud holes last Saturday night, when returning home from the town of Emardville. Two teams with loads got stuck and were compelled to leave wagons and loads where they were and seek shelter for the night in the neighborhood.

Bismarck's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. They develop every power of brain and body. Only 25c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

Skin affection will readily disappear by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Look out for counterfeits. If you get DeWitt's you will get good results. It is the quick and positive cure for piles. W. A. Schreiter.

C. G. Gerlach drove to Red Lake Falls on business Sunday.

A crowd of young folks surprised Mr. and Mrs. Dan Gerlach Sunday.

Misses Augusta and Louisa Gerlach, of Red Lake Falls, attended church here last Sunday.

Frank Grenier took the N. P. for Grand Forks Wednesday, where he will work with the bridge crew.

Miss Mary Sutter, a popular young lady of this place, has accepted a position in the court house at Red Lake Falls.

The N. P. is having bad luck with their road between this place and Red Lake Falls, it takes from three to four carloads of gravel every day to keep the road fit for travel.

Carl Gerlach has just received his nursery stock from the Lake City Nursery Co. Among the lot are apple trees, plum trees, straw berries, raspberries, rose bushes and willows.

"I have been suffering from Dyspepsia for the past twenty years and have been unable after trying all preparations and physicians to get any relief. After taking one bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure I found relief and am now in better health than I have been for twenty years. I cannot praise Kodol Dyspepsie Cure too highly." Thus writes Mrs C. W. Roberts, North Creek, Ark.

You are much more liable to disease when your liver and bowels do not act properly. DeWitt's Little Early Risers remove the cause of the disease. W. A. Schreiter.

Mrs. J. No matter what causes fecial eruptions, absolute cleanliness inside and out is the only way to cure them. Rocky Mountain Tea taken this month will drive them away. W. A. Schreiter.

Kirk---Wilkins Wedding.

Friday's Grand Forks Herald contains the following account of a wedding in which a former Red Lake Falls girl, Miss Della Wilkins, figured as bride:

A large number of friends gathered at the apartments of the bride's parents in the Wisner block Wednesday to witness the marriage of Miss Della Wilkins and William F. Kirk. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. MacVey, after which a fine supper was served. Dancing was then indulged in till 3 a. m., when the guests departed wishing the newly married every happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Kirk were the recipients of many beautiful presents. Mr. Frank Wilkins acted as groomsman and Miss Cora Jerome of Crookston, officiated as bridesmaid. The bride wore a very becoming gown of gray silk, and the bridesmaid wore blue mulle, both the groom and groomsman wearing the conventional black. The newly married pair began housekeeping at once in apartments in the Gotzian block, which had been prepared for the reception of the bride.

Crop Rotation.

Fargo, N. D., May 6.—The farmers are planting more corn than usual. This is largely taking the place of summer fallowing. It has been demonstrated that the land, after being cultivated for corn, was in better shape for wheat the following year than when summer fallowed besides a profitable crop could be raised.

JUNE 11.

THE EVENT ONE WHICH SHOULD BE PUSHED HARD BY THE BUSINESS MEN.

Red Lake Falls is to be favored with a State Farmers' Institute and the date has been set for June 11. In his letter of announcement Dr. J. C. Curryer, Assistant Superintendent. says "Every business man of your city should see that his customers attend this meeting, as it means their interests as well as that of the farmers. We are anxious to do all possible for the work in your section of the state."

As a rule the business men where these institutes are held appreciate what they mean, as an educator and take a personal interest in getting the farmers with whom they come in contact interested. Here about Red Lake Falls it seems that the farmers are already interested, but that does not remove the desirability of enthusiastic co-operation on the part of our citizens.

The corps of instructors will be composed of John Gould, Ohio; Dr. C. D. Smead, of New York; Pof. Hoverstad, of Crookston, and A. A. Barberree. Mr. Gould will represent the dairyman's cow, illustrated with fourteen large, colored paintings.

Dr. Smead has been conductor of Farmer's Institutes in New York for eleven years, and is regarded as the stockman's and farmer's friend in that work throughout that state He is the veterinary editor of the National Stockman. Dr. Smead is a farmer and sheepraiser and veterinurian and it is well worth a day's time and a long ride to hear him."

Prof. T. H. Hoverstad, superintendent of the Crookston State Experiment Station, will take up corn culture in the north, rotation of crops, seed selection, and the destruction of smut, horse culture, etc. Prof. Hoverstad is conversant with the conditions of the Red River farmers and their interest in the development of the country. He feels responsible for the character of work to be done in a measure and is anxious to do everything possible towards improvement of the agriculture and stock of the Northwest.

$100,000 FOR MILK.

DE SMET CREAMERY WILL PAY IT OUT THIS YEAR.

De Smet, S. D., May 10.—The De Smet creamery, already a famous institution in the history of the development of the dairy industry of South Dakota, has been enlarged and rebuilt till its officers claim it is the largest and most complete of any in the entire northwest. A new refrigerator plant has been installed and the capacity of the creamery greatly increased. This work has been completed with the utmost care and accuracy.

The creamery was started as an experiment in the year 1895 in a building 20x30 feet. It then had but one separator, an old fashioned box churn and another old-fashioned machine for working the butter, but it has now become a thoroughly modern institution with a capacity greater than anything like it in the northwest. Notwithstanding that it was a primitive concern, it paid the farmers of this vicinity $9,811.96 during the first eight months of its existence. In 1896 it paid $22,987.18; 1897, $23,709.64; 1898, $29.846 92; 1899, $35,624.18, From the first of January 1900. to the last day of this year. it paid $68.429.71. If the business of the last three months is sustained for the year 1901, it will pay for milk the princely sum of $100.000 this year. During 1900. 8,399,422 pounds of milk were delivered, which tested 4 00 on the average. Some of it tested as high as 4.20 and none of it fell below 3.86.

This creamery's great success explains in a measure, the surprising increase in the value of lands in the eastern and central Kingsbury county. The farmers who formerly raised wheat and lost each year, are now making money selling their milk and the land which was worth practically nothing for wheat raising purposes, has become immensely valuable for dairy farming. Intelligently managed, the experience of the creamery may be duplicated almost anywhere in the northwest,

THE GAME LAWS.

Excutive Agent Fullerton Gives a Synopsis.

A Duluth man wrote to Executive Agent Fullerton for a statement relative to the game laws, and received the following:

BIRDS.

Quail and ruffled grouse, October 1 to December 1.

Woodcock and upland plover. July 4 to October 31.

Wild duck of any variety, or any variety of wild goose, brant or any acquatic fowl whatever, September 1 to January 1.

The sale, exposure for sale, or the shipment by private or common carrier, of any of the above birds is prohibited and made unlawful.

DEER.

Deer, November 10 to November 30.

Male moose or male caribou, November 15 to November 20.

Each hunter is allowed to kill three deer, one moose and one caribou.

The sale or shipment by common or private carrier is made unlawful.

FISH.

Any variety of trout, April 15 to September 1.

Any variety of bass June 1 to March 1.

The sale of bass or brook trout is made unlawful.

All other food fish inhabiting the lakes and streams of Minnesota. May 1 to March 1.

A license fee of 25 cents is required of residents and $25 of non-residents for the privilege of hunting deer, moose or elk.

A license fee of $25 is required of all residents of states that have a license law prohibiting citizens of the state of Minnesota from hunting in their respective states, to permit them to hunt any kind of game in Minnesota.

SUNDAY FIRE.

BRICK DWELLING OCCUPIED BY F. A. WHITELEY BURNED LAST SUNDAY.

The brick dwelling occupied by F. A. Whiteley before Sunday last is no more, a heap of brick ruins marking the spot where it stood. Mr. Whiteley discovered the fire up stairs, and it had already made such headway that nothing on the second floor could be saved, and in fact only a small portion of the household effects on the first floor were gotten out. The loss on clothing, books and household goods foots up to nearly a thousand dollars, while only $400 insurance was carried. Mrs. Whiteley had just completed her spring sewing, having put a great deal of time and money into a complete wardrobe for herself and the children, and all this went with the rest. A portion of the library, silverware and family relics on the upper floor shared a like fate. The family are very much broken up over the affair, and have the sympathy of all our people. Mrs. Whiteley and the children left Monday for Big Lake, Minn., where they will spend the summer with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Saunders.

The fire department did not succeed in rendering effective service with the engine, owing to the fact that it was out of order, not having been overhauled for some time. The resignation of the engineers of the volunteer department has been in to the council for some time, and a regular paid engineer will be appointed, which will obviate any difficulty in the future.

The building destroyed was the property of Sindal Brown, who lost his tailor shop without insurance last summer. He carried an insurance of $800 on the dwelling, but this does not nearly cover his loss, and it seems to have been a very unfortunate affair all around.

Excursions to Buffalo Exposition Via Nickel Plate Road.

On May 7th, 14th, 21st and 28th, respectively, at the rate of $13.00 for the round trip from Chicago, good returning five days from date of sale. Three thru trains daily, with vestibuled sleeping-cars and first-class dining car service. For particulars and Pan-American folder, write John Y. Calahan, General Agent, 111 Adams St., Chicago Depot: Van Buren St. and Pacific Ave, Chicago, on the Elevated Loop.

County Commissioners.

The board held a special meeting this week, commencing Monday and adjourning yesterday at 2 p. m.

The Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls and Lake Plesant ditches went glimmering. Objections were strong and many from disaffected land owners enroute, and legal technicalities settled their fate. Proceedings will be instituted under the new law, which makes it much easier to establish ditches.

The wolf bounty law of 1901 was adopted.

A county board of health was appointed as follows: Dr. N. M. Watson, Louis Hanson and J B. Hebert

$15,000 funding bonds were issued for the purpose of placing the county on a cash basis, at the rate of 4½ per cent. and $500 premium. The orders were drawing 6 per cent. Stoddard Nye & Co. were the purchasers. The Terrebonne ditch bonds were sold to the same company.

A large batch of bills was allowed.

Hearing was granted on the school petition of A. L. Peterson, Joe Prdvost, and A. P. Sandberg, et al at the next regular meeting in July.

Prevented A Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00 Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

VIC'S LETTER.

REPORTS HIMSELF AND SIMON PAUL SICK AND IN THE HOSPITAL.

Calamba, P. I., March 5, 1901.
Ed. Gazette:

I will drop just a few lines to let you know how we are. I have heard from Wm. Beantrow and Simeon Paul. Will is alright and in good health, but Simeon is sick in the San Isadro hospital with fever and dysintery, but in the last letter he was getting better. He has been very sick. As for myself I am in the hospital here with a fever. I have not been so very sick but could not do duty. I expect to be able for duty in a few days.

The weather is getting cooler and we seem to feel it awfully. We are now climatized and seems to us to be as cold as in the U. S., but I think if we were to return as some are doing in the dead of winter, we would find it colder there.

A great many captures are being made and hardly a day passes by but what some prisoners are taken to Manila for confinement.

In the surgical ward next to this one that I am in, lie two patients in bed No. 1 and 2, respectively. No. 1 is an American soldier who was wounded and then captured by the insurgents. While in the hands of the insurgents he was very roughly treated. His wounds were not dressed and was carried to a point on the road near town and left there to be found by the Americans. No. 2 is an insurgent corporal, in command of the detachment of insurgents who had this No. 1 American as prisoner. He was shot twice in the leg and then captured by the Americans. He was dressed in white clothes and had the appearance of a law abiding native and would not have been shot had he not been afraid to face the enemy and stop when commanded to halt. He had a bolo, or large knife, and a suit of red, insurgent's uniform, under his white clothes and also his appointment as a corporal in the 4th Co. of the 1st regiment of Manila Volunteers, under date of Nov. 28, 1898. He is quite disabled now, but the officers will not give him a chance to get away, having him locked to his bed.

This is all for this time. Vic.

Railway Construction.

Work on the construction of the Minnesota & International railway, north, is progressing very favorably now. The grade is completed to Turtle River, a distance of 12 miles, and the steel has been laid 8 miles above the Mississippi, a siding at the head of Lake Bemidji.

From Messrs. Croswell and Walsh of the engineering department, we learn that 30 per cent of grade is completed from Turtle River to Blackduck, and it is hoped to have the first 25 miles completed about July 4th. The steel gang has been laying off this week on account of work in connection with the building of a hoisting works on the east shores of Lake Bemidji, near Manger's saw mill, where several million feet of logs will be loaded for the Burlington Lumber company. However, after this week the work of laying steel as far as the grade is completed will be pushed with renewed vigor, and at an early day a new epoch in the matter of transportation will be marked in the history of the northern tributary country.

A surveying party in now at work running preliminary lines from Blackduck to Koochiching via Bridgie and Great Falls, and it is expected that with the completion of the work now under way, contracts will be let for the construction of the line to the International border.—Bemidji News.

Early Closing.

Beginning Monday May 20, and continuing through the summer, the business houses named below will close promptly every evening, except Saturdays, at 8 o'clock. The cooperation of the public is earnestly desired.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

FOREIGN NEWS.

The British house of commons has approved of the civil list by a vote of 367 to 58.

The districts of Moca and La Vega, San Domingo, are in arms against the government.

General Dewet's house was burned in June, as the railroad had been cut near his farm.

The German reichstag by a vote of 185 to 40 has decided to pay members attendance fees and railway fares.

The Duke of York and Cornwall opened the first federal parliament of Australia at Melbourne Thursday.

The London (Eng.) county council loan has been over subscribed three times and the list has been closed.

Dispatches from Madrid report that altogether 500 arrests have been made at Barcelona, but the disorders are now subsiding.

Baron von Thielmann, imperial secretary of the German treasury, admits that there will be a deficit for the next fiscal year of between 70,000,000 and 80,000,000 marks.

The Dublin police have seized Mr. William O'Brien's weekly paper, The Irish People. It is reported that the seizure was made on account of reflections upon King Edward.

A sensation has been caused by the announcement that the Chileans are fortifying the straits of Magellan, although there was an agreement prohibiting any fortification along the canal.

In the house of commons Friday the government had a narrow escape from defeat. The Scotch educational estimates were being discussed and a motion to reduce one of the votes was only defeated by a majority of 12.

According to the returns of this year's census the total population of England and Wales is 32,525,716. This is an increase over the population of 1891 of 3,525,191, or in other words an increase of 12.15 per cent. in the last 10 years.

An enormous crowd of people participated in Wednesday's rioting at Barcelona, Spain. The rioters endeavored to stop work in the factories, which resulted in collisions with the troops. A number of soldiers were among the wounded.

Germany has invited Austria, France, Switzerland, Holland and Belgium, and possibly Russia and Italy, to combine in a gigantic commercial union with the object of excluding American competition until the American duties are lowered.

The ambassadors of the foreign powers have dispatched identical notes to the porte, characterizing the seizure by the Ottoman postal authorities of foreign mail bags as a breach of international law and holding the porte responsible for the consequences.

The foreign office in Berlin strongly denies the rumor circulated in Great Britain of strained relations between Russia and Germany on account of slights upon the part of Count von Waldersee or any other cause. The relations between the two countries remain excellent.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

The Hawaiian legislature has memorialized President McKinley to depose Governor Dole.

The Twenty-ninth infantry, United States volunteers, was mustered out at the Presidio, San Francisco, Friday.

Following the recent action in the case of Russia, in which an additional tariff duty was placed on sugar receiving a bounty, the treasury department has imposed an additional duty of 10 centavos per kilogram upon Argentine sugar.

Alleged statements of General Chaffee, made at General Gaselee's banquet in Peking in honor of the Americans, expressing his inclination toward the British in case of international complication, have not been brought officially to the attention of the government here.

Minister Wu and Minister Conger have paid an agreeable exchange of visits since the arrival in Washington of the American representative in China. The meeting was purely social, the American minister paying a call at the Chinese legation and Mr. Wu returning the compliment.

On unquestionable authority the statement is made that Secretary Hay, with the knowledge and consent of the president, made an indirect offer to John Goodnow, while he was in the United States recently, of the position of minister to China to succeed Conger, and that Goodnow declined.

PHILIPPINE NEWS.

General MacArthur says that Manila compares favorably with cities of the United States in respect to morality.

Colonel Astilla, the insurgent governor of Infanta province, has surrendered, with 10 officers, 180 men, 170 rifles and 10 cannon.

Reports from the districts commanded by General Bell show that 783 riflemen have surrendered during the past month. These include all of General Tinio's men who had remained out.

Cailles, the insurgent leader in Laguna province, is being closely chased. He is supposed to have gone southward of Laguna province and is not likely to surrender, fearing paying personal penalty for his numerous assassinations.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Justice King of the Canadian supreme court is dead. He was a native of New Brunswick.

NEWS OF NOTED PERSONS.

Sir Alfred Milner, governor of Cape Colony, has sailed for England.

President McKinley reviewed a floral parade at Los Angeles Thursday.

Alarming reports are prevalent in London respecting Lord Salisbury's condition.

Mrs. McKinley is seriously ill at San Francisco and a change in the president's plans may be necessary.

J. J. Hill has confirmed the report of the engagement of his son Louis to Miss Maude Van Courtland Taylor.

Edward Strauss, the well known musician, who has been ill for some time past, at Vienna, is reported better.

The pope has confirmed the appointment of Father O'Connell, rector of the American college in Rome, as bishop of Portland, Me.

Minister Conger has practically decided to return to Peking. If Iowa Republicans nominate him for governor in August he will return to participate in the campaign.

The board of overseers of Harvard university has voted to grant the degree of doctor of laws to President McKinley. The degree will be conferred at commencement in June.

Henry M. Flager of the Standard Oil company is defendant in a suit in the New York supreme court, the plaintiff being E. C. Foote, who demands $100,000 damages for alienation of the affections of his wife Helen.

Samuel Hill, son-in-law of James J. Hill of St. Paul, arrived in St. Petersburg Friday to visit Charlemagne Tower, the United States ambassador. Mr. Hill is studying international transportation for American-Pacific railroad and steamship interests.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

Wall street has recovered its equanimity.

Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. of New York have ordered $250,000 gold for shipment to Norway.

Orders have been received at the 12 to 15 factories of the National Starch company to close down until the corn market becomes settled again.

Charles Foster of Fostoria, O., formerly secretary of the treasury, has filed a petition in the United States court as a voluntary bankrupt, scheduling his liabilities of $747,008.34 and no assets.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers will endeavor to secure the best settlement in years with the manufacturers this year. The rate to be made is known to be higher than the present scale.

Northern Pacific common sold for $1,000 per share on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday, closing at 325. The rest of the market suffered a disastrous slump and many fortunes were made or wiped out in the course of the day. A number of failures occurred among the smaller brokers.

LABOR NEWS.

San Francisco bakers are on strike.

A general strike of machinists is threatened.

The British miners have decided against a stoppage of work unless the owners should attempt to reduce wages.

The Amsterdam Seamen's union has proclaimed a general strike for an increase of wages and it is expected that other ports will join.

Eighty men employed in and about the round house of the Lackawanna railroad at Buffalo have struck out of sympathy for the Scranton strikers.

The strike of the union plasterers inaugurated at Cleveland a few days since has practically ended in a victory for the men. They demanded $3.50 instead of $3 per day. All but four contractors have conceded the demands.

Six hundred and fifty carpenters and joiners employed at the exposition grounds at Buffalo are on strike. Unless the men's demands are granted by the exposition the walking delegates threaten to call out every man employed at the exposition grounds.

THE CRISIS IN CHINA.

France is said to have agreed to support Russia's claim to Manchuria.

An indemnity claim of 450,000,000 taels has been presented to the Chinese plenipotentiaries.

A band of Chinese brigands, from the province of Kwang-Si, recently attacked the French post at Linglan, and drove out the garrison, killing five and wounding seven men.

The Americans at Peking have evacuated the districts under their control, with the exception of the Forbidden City, which they will continue to occupy until orders to the contrary are received from Washington.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Governor La Follette of Wisconsin has vetoed the primary election bill.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.

State of Minnesota }
County of Red Lake } ss

In Probate Court
Special Term
April 23, 1901.

In the matter of the Estate of
Justus Schaper
Deceased

On reading and filing the petition of William Schaper, administrator of the estate of Justus Schaper

Setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead), of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell the all of real estate of Justus Schaper in said county.

And it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said Administrator to pay said debts, legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate at private sale.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday the 20th day of May, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock a. m., at the court house in Red Lake Falls, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said William Schaper to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Gazette, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls, Minn., the 23d day of April, A. D. 1901.

Whereas, default has occurred and now exists in the terms and conditions of that certain mortgage which was executed and delivered by Ludvig Arneson and Lisa Marie Arneson, his wife, mortgagors, to and in favor of D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, and which bears date the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1886, and is recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1886, in book 25 of Mortgages at pages 448 to 450 and is also recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota in book 16 of Mortgages at page 580, and,

Whereas, there is due at the date hereof, under and by virtue of said mortgage the sum of Thirty-four and 68-100 ($34.68) dollars for the principal and interest thereon, and,

Whereas, no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof, and,

Whereas, said D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company has changed its name so as to read D. S. B. Johnston Land Company,

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the same will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein and hereinafter described, and the said sale will take place at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon, on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the front door of the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Red Lake at Red Lake Falls in said county. The premises described in said mortgage, and which will be sold to satisfy the same are described as the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter and the east half of the southeast quarter and lot numbered one all of section numbered Two in township numbered One hundred fifty-three in Range numbered Forty-five in the county of Red Lake (formerly county of Polk) in the state of Minnesota.

women among the miners, flung herself over the bed with great shrieks and cries, and lifting her up he half led, half carried, her into the other room and laid her down, sobbing and groaning, on an old couch there. And Stuart could have sworn the doctor's face was as beautiful as mercy and as full of blessing as mortal man's can ever be. When he came back after performing his office for the dead, the doctor went away. These were days when sleep and rest were strangers to him. He never fully recovered from the terrible strain of that winter.

Rhena remained a little while to do what she could, and Stuart sent a boy who had come up from a neighbor's down for the undertaker and promised all in his power. When Rhena went out, he went with her, and they were soon walking together over the very trail where Stuart had started out the night of Rhena's fall. She had other houses in Cornishtown to visit and needed to save time by the short cut which the upper trail afforded.

Stuart had not asked if he might go with her, and she had neither assented to his company nor rejected it. He had forgotten all about his horse and cutter down the other path. She seemed passive and thoughtful. The scene they had just witnessed affected them both deeply. It was not an unusual sight these days with either, but death never lost its majesty to Stuart, and Rhena was never more exalted in her feeling than in the presence of the great enemy.

There was hardly room in the trail most of the way for two persons. Stuart walked behind her. They were silent for the most part, except a question or two about different sick people, until they reached the big stump in the middle of the trail, the other side of which Stuart had found Rhena lying.

She turned her face a little as she was about to walk around the old landmark, and Stuart spoke to her. He was very pale and trembled. It seemed to him that a great crisis had come for him. When he had spoken the first word, he at once became more master of himself.

"Miss Dwight, I wish to tell you something. Will you allow me to say what I have felt I must say for a long time?"

Rhena looked startled. Her lip trembled. She seemed unable to answer.

Stuart went on. Now that he had made up his mind, he was like his father in the determination that drove him to his purpose with an iron energy that possessed his whole positive nature.

"I have been loving you almost from the first moment I saw you. You must have known it from my manner. I am a poor actor. I have not been able to conceal much, even if I had wished to. But my life has been transformed by all this. I have reached the place where I can no longer be silent. I know that I love you as a man should love the woman whom he asks with all the reverence and joy possible to him to be his wife."

He had spoken, and it was not what he had once thought he might have said. But he was not prepared for the effect of his declaration upon Rhena.

She was dressed as usual in her Salvation Army costume. The face in the army bonnet of blue, with its plain ribbons, was typical of the army faces seen everywhere. And yet while Stuart was speaking and all through the rest of the interview between them he thought, with a certain bewilderment, that it was no longer the Salvation Army girl who stood facing him, but the society woman, Miss Rhena Dwight, daughter of Allen Dwight, the millionaire of New York. And yet she was in still another way removed from him by the very circumstances of her army connections. Rhena was very pale as she spoke.

"Mr. Duncan," she said as she leaned back, with one hand on the stump as if for support, "can you speak to me—tell me—this—after what I saw last night—after"—

"What!" cried Stuart, the color rushing to his face. "Do you mean your seeing me with Miss Vasplaine? We have been old friends. We were boy and girl together. I was simply going home with her from a social gathering at my house. She is nothing to me but an acquaintance."

"I have been told that you were engaged," said Rhena after a slight pause.

"Who told you that?" cried Stuart impulsively. He stepped near Rhena.

"Your sister!" Rhena spoke calmly, looking straight at Stuart, but she was still very pale.

"Louise? She deceived you. It is not true. I never had a thought of Miss Vasplaine except that of a friend, an old acquaintance. Do you believe me when I say so?" Stuart spoke straight on and waited her answer steadily.

"Yes; I believe you," said Rhena quietly.

"Then you believe me when I say I love you? You"—

"Yes; I believe—I think you are a true man, but what you ask is impossible."

Stuart controlled himself. He felt that whatever the crisis might be which now faced him he must be master of himself. It began to grow upon him that perhaps he had not yet won the love of this rarely strong and beautiful woman, as it should be his.

"Why impossible?" he asked, with a gentleness and calmness that surprised himself.

"We live in separate worlds," replied Rhena, with an answering calmness that was possibly as surprising to her. "I have cut myself purposely and for always from the life I once lived. I have no wish to re-enter it. I have chosen my life work. It is a work so different from that of society and the world of which you are a part that to go back to your world would be to turn traitor to all my deepest and best convictions. It is impossible that I should be again as I once was."

Stuart did not reply at once. He looked off over the valley beyond the town to his own house as it stood there on the slope of the hill, palatial in its form and size.

"But I am not really in that world any more. The cause of humanity is my cause now. Do you condemn me to separation from you because I am what I am outwardly? I loathe the forms and selfishness and heartlessness of society as deeply as you do. I would give anything to be other than I am at this moment. If it is simply that which keeps you from"—

He could not finish. It was significant to her that he had not ventured to ask her if she loved him. Neither had he yet spoken her first name. He was a man of rare purpose and power in the emergency that he now faced. He would not expect what was perhaps not yet in her power to give. She was moved deeply. When she spoke again, Stuart had at first a gleam of hope.

"I believe you see the cause of humanity as I see it, Mr. Duncan. I have believed it since that night in the hall when you told me the story of your conversion. It was so like my own experience that I was startled by it. I went home from a gay party a few years ago. I was awakened by a voice. I saw and heard the divine messenger. I went out from my father's house the next day an outcast from kin and friends, and I have never regretted it. But the gulf between you and me is a deep one, even with this common experience. If I were to become your wife"—Rhena spoke the word with difficulty—"it would be at the expense of the life of service I have chosen. It would be"—

She broke off as if afraid to trust her voice. Stuart would not even then take advantage of her emotion to look at her. His gaze was still down the valley.

"Is our Christian faith nothing as a common basis for a common work together? Can we not do more thus than to go our own ways alone?" he asked, and his heart was hungry for the love of her, and still he would not take what she did not yet have to give.

Rhena answered quietly: "I cannot. It is not for me to thank you for the greatest honor a good man can give a woman. I am unworthy of it."

"No, no!" Stuart cried at last, turning to her. "I love you. Let me say it even if it may be for the last time." And then he did what he had not thought of doing when he began. But he faced the possibility of an answering love in this woman, and he longed for her too much to leave the matter without fully showing her his heart.

He took Rhena's glove from his pocket, the glove he had picked up on the trail that night. "See!" he cried, as he showed it to her. "I passed along this path one night, and it was a night of great beauty to me. I found you lying over there close by the mouth of that pit. I caught you up and carried you down to safety. And for a little while you were mine in my heart's thought, and you could not say me nay." His voice broke in a sob. A man can sob only under certain emotions. Stuart had never felt that before.

As for Rhena, she caught her breath and then stood pale and still. "They told me Dr. Saxon brought me in. Why did they not tell me the truth? Why did he not tell me? I owe you my life."

It was both a question and a statement. Stuart would not even now anticipate the love that might yet be his. He stood there facing her, silent after that one outburst. At last he said gently, "I would like to keep the glove; may I?"

She did not answer him. He put the glove back in his pocket. She was very, very pale.

He said one more word, "You believe I love you?"

"Yes; I believe it," she answered in a very low voice.

"I shall always love you," he said. He took off his hat. The act was one of reverence. "Some time when I have won your love, as I know I have not yet, I shall speak again," he added slowly. And then he turned and went back over the trail, never once looking behind. If he had—

When he disappeared behind a clump of firs, Rhena knelt down by the old stump and laid her head upon it, and her prayer was very much like the prayer of that night when Louise had called upon her. After awhile she rose and went down the trail. But she was not the same woman. Her heart was shaken for the first time in her life by the love of a great and good man. Ah, it is possible if he had said to her, "Rhena!" she might have said, "Stuart!" and given him all. It was dangerous for her to think of him. She felt as never before. And then the glove, the knowledge of her safety due to him—she trembled. There were times in her feeling when if Stuart had come back she would have said to him: "I love you. Let us go on our way through life together!" And she went on into the next cottage, a look in her eyes that was new to them and an emotion in her heart that she could not suppress.

As for Stuart, he went down into Champion with a feeling that was not that of defeat or discouragement. It had been a crisis with him. He had at last spoken. He had nothing to regret in all he had said. And in spite of the fact that his answer had been [illegible] something told him it was not final. He was the last man in the world to try to argue the woman he loved into loving him. He was not and could not be a pleading suitor for the heart of this woman of all persons in the world. He said to himself the time would come, although he did not attempt to picture when or how, when she would be his as he wanted her to be. With that great thought burning in him he entered upon one of the busiest and most significant weeks of his life.

In the first place, when Sunday came he joined the church. He had already two weeks before gone into the preparatory meeting with Andrew and there recited his experience. It seemed the most necessary act in the world that he should identify himself openly and boldly with other Christians in the organization which Christ loved. There was not a moment's hesitation in Stuart's mind about the duty and privilege of church membership. That was a notable day in his life when Andrew asked him to rise and give assent to the church covenant.

The news that Stuart Duncan was going to join the church was interesting enough to call out a large part of the population of Champion. Andrew had never seen such a congregation. St. John's was crowded, very largely with the miners and their families. Stuart was the only person received at this communion. When he rose at Andrew's invitation, his face was calm and even beautiful. It was a splendid sight to see these two men facing each other at the communion service. When Stuart kneeled to receive the baptism, Andrew's voice trembled for a second over the words, "I baptize thee, Stuart, my brother, disciple of Jesus," and many an eye in the audience moistened. When the bread was passed, Stuart received it from one of the miners who had worked in Champion mines ever since Stuart was a boy. He was a deacon in St. John's, and Stuart never forgot the look on the old man's face as he handed the plate in at the end of the pew. More than half of Andrew's membership were Cornishmen. It was a day long remembered by them.

And to Stuart there came also as he partook for the first time of the elements a new and serious thought of the fellowship he had begun with these men, nearly all of whom had been in his father's employ. It was true they were of the rudest, most uneducated sort. Their type of Christianity as church members was not very exalted. They were at this very moment engaged in a method of struggle against capital which was contrary to all Stuart's real convictions, but he had reached a point where he looked upon the struggle from a different basis. The men in the church were for the most part prayerful, honest and above all generous with what they possessed. Stuart did not know it, but Deacon Sam Penryck, who passed the bread and wine, had that very morning given one of the suffering families in Cornishtown a third of his own savings which he had stored up for the winter to take him through the strike. But it was not about the type of Christianity that Stuart was thinking as he sat there. It was about his relations with these men with whom he was now associated as a member of the body of Christ. If he had been growing more and more to believe that he was his brother's keeper ever since the death of his father, much more now, especially since his conversion and this day's communion. Andrew's prayer touched on that. The service was very impressive.

At its close Stuart asked Andrew if he might say a word, and very simply but strongly he stated his Christian faith and asked for the prayers of the church that strength and wisdom might be given him to live the true life of a disciple. His words as he stood there in all the strength and glory of his young manhood touched the men deeply. They did not show it much, but they felt it and talked of it on their way home. Such a scene had not been known in Champion in their lifetime.

In spite of all this and the tremendous hold that Stuart was obtaining over the men the union held for its original terms and showed no signs of weakening. The Salvation Army still continued to exercise its restraining influence over the majority, although the drinking was increasing. Almost the only hope Stuart had now was that the Cleveland owners would be compelled to yield before the winter was over owing to the demand for ore which for the last weeks had been increasing. He had little expectation that the full demand of the miners would be granted, for he remembered that in the history of strikes very few large strikes had ever been successful. But he hoped the owners might make such concessions that the union would agree to go back on a large rise in previous wages.

It was a memorable week for Champion. The fever epidemic had reached its height. Most of its victims were children. The number of deaths daily was appalling. Andrew, Eric, the doctor, the nurses, Rhena and Stuart, with all the available help from the Christian people in the town, were battling with the enemy with all the might of skill and the exercise of all that money and watchfulness could accomplish.

Stuart and Rhena had met several times that week. Nearly always it was by the side of some dead or dying child. They said little. Each seemed to be waiting for something. Rhena was worn and thin, but there had come into her eyes a look she dared not let Stuart see. The winter had its influence in addition to all this to repress and bear down the hearts of the people. Never had such snowdrifts been known in Champion or such severe cold. The nights set in with bitter winds sweeping down the hills, and after the evening train had plowed its way out of the station on its dreary trip westward Champion seemed to be abandoned by God and man. All connection with the outer world seemed cut off, the iron hills shut down hard and close about the town, and the long, terrible night began, a night of agony to those who lived and those who died. The date of the great strike and the great fever will never be forgotten by the children who were left untouched by the grim death.

One night that week Stuart had come home very late, thoroughly exhausted, with the frost chill in his bones, the benumbing sense of his responsibility weighing him down and his heart crying out, "O Lord, how long, how long!" He had gone up to his room and had sunk into a heavy sleep. He wakened between 2 and 3 o'clock with a feeling of something wrong. It was so pressing that he rose and dressed and went to the window that looked out on the town. The night was one of the bitterest ever known. The wind was blowing an icy gale through the valley. Even the Duncan mansion, warmed as it was with the best and most expensive apparatus, felt the shock of the almost solid cold that struck through everything.

Suddenly Stuart saw a light in the lower end of Cornishtown. The miners' houses or cabins there were built for the most part of logs or slabs from the mill. They were crowded very close together at the lower part of the town. As he looked the light flamed up higher, and his heart bounded as he realized that one of the cabins was on fire. The horror of it as he considered what such an accident meant on such a night stupefied him, but only for a second. The next instant he was down stairs, had flung himself into his overcoat, was out of the house and speeding down the road.

When he reached the square, lights were springing up in the windows all about. The alarm had reached the people, and they were rising. By the time he reached Cornishtown half a dozen houses were blazing. The miners had turned out in a body and were fighting the fire like fiends, but the intense cold, the high wind and the nearness of the cabins to one another at this part of the settlement made the fight a most hopeless one.

Stuart ordered all the sick and aged to be carried out of the houses nearest the fire, and he himself worked like ten men. There was no water available. The engine and hose companies had made a desperate effort to reach the settlement, but the tremendous drifts and the condition of the roads made it impossible. The snow itself was the only weapon within reach. It was piled over the low roofed cabins by the excited miners, who saved some houses on the edges by this novel method. But the wind swept everything before it in the center of the fire, and at last all that the men tried to do was to rescue the inmates.

Stuart was helping some one carry a dying child out of a cabin when a great blazing timber was caught up by the hurricane and flung as if by some giant aand right over the couch on which the child was lying and struck Stuart, knocking him off his feet and causing the man who was carrying the other end of the burden to stagger and fall. Stuart did not rise. At that moment Dr. Saxon was coming out of the adjoining cabin. The man who had been helping Stuart rose and yelled for the doctor. He came over and picked up Stuart as if he had been a little boy and carried him clear down the path to Eric's cottage. The miners said afterward that Saxon's face, as it blazed in the light of that horrible fire, was the face of one who looked both death and hell in the countenance and defied them to steal away his beloved.

Eric's cottage was out of the line of the wind and fire that night. The doctor laid Stuart down. As he did so a woman rushed into the cottage and flung herself down by the side of the body. It was Rhena, and she cried as she kneeled there: "Stuart!

"Stuart! Stuart! Do you know me?"

THINKS CONSOLIDATION A GOOD THING.

James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway, contributes to the symposium on Industrial and Railway Consolidations, in the May number of the North American Review, an article in which he sets forth the advantage which the public derives from these great combinations. Operating expenses are reduced; useless officers and unproductive middlemen are cut off; the systems of purchasing and distributing are simplified; economies are effected by the direct purchase of material in large quantities. Mr. Hill condemns the opposition to the new industrial order as unreasonable. He says:

"There are a few men—that is, comparatively few—in the community who can advance good reasons for their opposition. They are the ones who have been caught between the upper and the nether mill stones; they are the middlemen, and the small competitor who was unable to meet the larger concern in the open market. To them, consolidation has been a distinct injury. This is apparent, and, under our social and business system, inevitable. The aim in business, as in politics, is to do the greatest good to the greatest number, and the greatest number—so far as we can see—is apparently benefited by the consolidation. Almost every improvement that helps the masses brings injury to individuals here and there. The building of a railroad into a new territory puts the owner of the stage coach out of business. Trolley cars that have sprung up all over the country have done grave damage to the local hackmen and the livery stable keepers. But the community which is brought into touch with the outer world by a new railroad, and the village or town that gains the advantage of cheap and quick transportation by means of the trolley car, are benefited so much more than the stage owners and hackmen are injured, that the balance is easily in favor of the improvements."

GET IN LINE.

June 11th is the date set for the Farmers' Institute, and every business man in Red Lake Falls should emblazen the date on his memory, with the firm intention of making it a red letter day. No argument is needed as to the good results of these institutes, in encouraging the adoption of right methods in farming, and no one reaps greater benefits than the local business man when the farming community is prosperous. It is therefore extremely selfish and shortsighted for the merchants to go on with their work and pay no attention to such matters—a policy which can engender no good. If it is the duty of the farmers to patronize local in preference to foreign business institutions, it is equally expected that the merchant will lend his co-operation to these matters that vitally concern the farmer. It is a fact that the business men of Red Lake Falls may find ample room for improvement along these lines. They are too apt to become engrossed with individual affairs to pay much attention to public matters, even where the welfare of their patrons is directly concerned, and to go on leaving the work and concern to others with no definite idea of their individual responsibility, or of the benefits that might ensue to them personally by a judicious expenditure of a proper amount of energy. No portion of the state needs education in agricultural economy more than this, and when the opportunity comes it should be made the most of. Every wideawake citizen of Red Lake Falls should become a committee of one to further the interests of the coming farmers' institute.

It is a matter for general congratulation that the prosperity and resources of Minnesota will be adequately shown at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, and that our building and exhibits will be commensurate with the greatness of this state. H. P. Hall, one of the members of the Minnesota commission, has returned from Buffalo where the contract was let for the Minnesota building. The latter will cost $10,000 which will leave $20,000 for the exhibits. Special efforts will be made to have a representative display of our agricultural and dairy industries. It is interesting to note in this connection, that the Ohio legislature appropriated a like amount, $30,000, for a display at the exposition, but their commission decided to put it all into a building, and leave nothing for the exhibits.

Chapter 319 of the laws of Minnesota for 1901 provides for another forfeited tax sale which which will occur on September 9, at which all lands which were sold to the state at the forfeited tax sale in 1900 will be sold to the highest bidder, but no bid for less than fifty per cent. of the judgment can be received. When the sale occurred in 1900 there were some pieces which no one wanted, and these were sold to the state. These have increased in value now and can be sold for the taxes. The law provides that any owner or party interested in the land can redeem the lands before the sale by paying fifty per cent. of the judgment obtained in 1900 and the subsequent taxes. After the sale the owner cannot redeem except by paying the full amount of the judgment.

The commission appointed to revise the tax laws of Minnesota and report at a special session of the legislature to be held next winter, is deep in the study of the subject, and have taken hold of the work with an enthusiasm which promises well for good results. The members of the commission are visiting various points in the state, making a thorough investigation of the workings of the exisiting tax laws and conditions in Minnesota. The tax laws of other states will be brought into comparison and a new code of tax laws suited for Minnesota with its varied conditions and interests in this state, will be evolved, and it will probably be one of the best in the United States.

Peter Rosium, of Erskine, has patented a car mover that is said to be a good thing—at least Thomas Lawrence, former sheriff of Polk county has sufficient faith in it to invest in a partnership. Mr. Lawrence will exhibit the machine at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

The new law enacted at the last session of the legislature for protection against oleomargarine not only prohibits the sale of that spurious article but also prohibits its being stored in Minnesota for future delivery outside the state. The attorney general has rendered an opinion holding this view of the law, and the dairy and food department will at once take steps to prevent any more oleomargarine being brought into the state under any pretense whatever.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

NEED MANY VESSELS

STEEL TRUST EXPECTS TO MOVE THIRTEEN MILLION TONS OF IRON ORE.

White Earth Indians Guarding Logs With Guns—Attempt to Assassinate the Private Secretary of Mayor Ames of Minneapolis—Prison Managers in Favor of Paroling the Younger Brothers—General State News.

Duluth, Minn., May 14.—The Pittsburg Steamship company which is the organization holding the United States Steel ships, has taken general offices on the fourth floor of the Duluth Board of Trade building, occupying nearly all the floor.

The company will be expected to move down the lakes not less than 10,000,000 tons of ore in its 112 ships, and it has contracted for over 3,000,000 more from Pickands, Mather & Co., J. Gilchrist, James Corrigan and others at 80 cents from the head of Lake Superior, 70 cents from Marquette, and 60 cents from Escanaba. This will comprise about the total tonnage to be moved by the steel corporation this year. This will be chiefly for its own furnaces, though some of its ores will be delivered on sales.

This movement of ore means that, aside from any outside mines and independent carriers, the steel corporation will alone deliver every day of the season from the time it gets started to the latest possible date in December on which it is safe to figure moving ships, an average of 70 tons of ore. It is the most stupendous tonnage movement ever undertaken, and upon its successful carrying out depends the steelmaking business of the United States.

GUARD THE LOGS WITH GUNS.

Indians on the White Earth Reservation Mean Business.

Park Rapids, Minn., May 14.—The tension over the cutting of green pine has become intense on the White Earth reservation, where the Indians have decided in councils to protect their interests by force, if necessary, and to prevent the lumbermen from driving the logs off the reservation until they are rescaled and paid for at green pine prices.

Parties of Indians armed with Winchesters have gone from Pine Point, White Earth and Twin Lakes, on the White Earth reservation, to Round Lake, where the logs would enter the Otter Tail river. These parties number in the aggregate about 60 men, who say they want no trouble and are after only their rights.

They will hold the drive on Round lake and prevent the drivers from sending the logs down the Otter Tail until a new scale is made. Special Agent McComas, who is at White Earth, has requested the commissioner of Indian affairs to send an expert scaler and this request has allayed the anger of the Indians for the time being.

MINNEAPOLIS SENSATION.

Attempt to Assassinate Mayor Ames' Private Secretary.

Minneapolis, May 11.—Thomas R. Brown, private secretary to Mayor Ames, had a narow escape from assassination Thursday night.

Early in the evening Mr. Brown received a telephone message that the mayor wanted to see him. Brown went to the city hall, but didn't find the mayor. He went to the Ames residence, 827 Elwood place. Here he was told that no one had telephoned for him. A little before 11 o'clock, while near the corner of Thomas and Elwood, he heard the click of a revolver, and, turning, was surprised by the flash of a weapon not 30 feet away.

Mr. Brown fired two shots at his assailant, but missed. Detectives later found a wig and a mask belonging to the would-be assassin.

The trouble is said to be the outcome of friction existing between the city administration and former politicians in power.

PAROLE THE YOUNGERS.

Board of Prison Managers Makes That Recommendation.

St. Paul, May 7.—The board of state prison managers at their meeting at Stillwater, decided unanimously in favor of the parole of the Younger boys, and this decision will be at once forwarded to the state board of pardons at the state capitol in this city and if that body also approves unanimously the brothers will be let out on condition that they remain within this state.

The Younger boys have now served 25 years continuously, which is equal to 35 years of sentence. It is said they have obeyed every rule and regulation of the prison, and have given every evidence of reform.

Excursion to the Pan-American Exposition Put Off a Week.

St. Paul, May 14.—The executive committee of the State Editorial association has decided to postpone the date of its excursion to Buffalo and the Pan-American exposition one week. According to the new programme the party will leave St. Paul Saturday, June 15, and returning will arrive in St. Paul Monday morning, June 24, in time to connect with outgoing trains. The postponement was deemed necessary because the Minnesota building and exhibits could not be completed in time for the earlier date.

INCREASE IN LAKE TONNAGE.

Traffic of 1900 Nearly Double That of 1895.

Duluth, May 9.—Captain D. D. Gaillard, United States engineer in charge of river and harbor improvements on Lake Superior, has issued the annual statement of lake commerce of the Duluth-Superior harbor for the navigation season of 1900, together with comparisons of commerce with previous years.

During the season a total of 11,725,245 net tons of freight was handled in and out of the Duluth-Superior harbor, as compared with 11,608,088 net tons in 1899, an increase of 117,157 tons. The increase in commerce of the harbor from 1895 to 1900, inclusive, is the difference between 6,325,351 and 11,725,245 net tons, which is 5,399,894 net tons, or nearly 100 per cent. In other words, the freight tonnage of the harbor has nearly doubled from 1895 to 1900. During these six years more than 56,000,000 tons of freight valued at more than $750,000,000, was handled here.

DULUTH PEOPLE PERISH.

Steamer Bon Voyage Destroyed by Fire on Lake Superior.

Houghton, Mich., May 12.—The passenger steamer Bon Voyage caught fire in Lake Superior and was beached near the Portage ship canal. Five passengers, all women, were drowned in getting from the boat to the shore. The rest of the passengers and the crew escaped in safety to the beach.

Four of the five women drowned were members of the Altman family of Duluth—Mrs. B. Altman and three daughters. A fourth daughter was saved by hanging to a fender. The other victim was Mrs. H. B. Cowen, a maid of the boat.

INDIANS ARE QUIET.

Tranquillity Prevails on White Earth Reservation.

White Earth, Minn., May 12.—River drivers who have just come in from the Twin lake on the Wild Rice river report everything peaceful and quiet, and the work of driving the logs down the river going on without interruption. The Wild Rice Lumber company has 200 men, mostly Indians, employed as river drivers. These men are peaceful and industrious and declare they will stay if they work until the logs are in the mill boom at Ada.

Will Be Sued for Back Taxes.

St. Paul, May 11.—Suit will be brought at once by the state against the Western Union Telegraph company to enforce the payment of taxes for the years 1899 and 1900. The company has refused to pay its taxes to the state of Minnesota for two years, holding that the assessed valuation is exorbitant. Papers are now being made out and the action will be instituted without delay.

New Wisconsin Railroad.

St. Paul, May 8.—The Rice Lake and Northern railway, backed by St. Paul and Chicago capitalists, has let contracts for 17 miles of road to be completed this summer from Rice Lake, Wis., to Birch Lake Dam, part of a line projected north and east to Ashland. George Fuller of St. Paul is president of the new road and George M. Huss of Chicago vice president and general manager.

Murder at Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 13.—Dan Donovan, better known as "Bulldog" Regan, was killed here by Angus McKinnon. Regan met McKinnon and squared off at him. The latter knocked the former down with an axe he had in his hands and then struck him a second blow after he fell. Regan died several hours after being struck. McKinnon will be tried for murder.

Many Cases of Smallpox.

St. Paul, May 7.—Dr. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, has ordered a quarantine against Yellow Bank and Aggassiz townships, Lac qui Parle county, and Akron and Otrey townships, Big Stone county. They have had a total of 171 cases of smallpox, and according to a report by Mr. Sinks, sent to investigate, the local quarantine has been exceedingly lax.

WHERE MANY ARE GOING.

As a new era is ushered in by the new century, Amerca realizes her indebtedness and obligation to the old one, and in admiration and gratitude has prepared through the agency of brains and genius a great festival, the Pan-American Exposition, with marvelous displays of the art of man. On Buffalo, thousands of people will focuse their eyes and behold the grandest triumph of the century just past, over all prior, in art, science and culture. While an audience of the most stupendous cataract on earth, they will conceive the very nucleus of brain product the highest elevation our time has reached. With the greatest artists, architects and sculptors, the new century invites us to an exposition well nigh perfect in all its details; and thus from Buffalo, the artistic termination of the century will glow in greatest splendor, throwing its illustrious beams over the new century's birth. Domes of ivory and gold will there reflect in an azure sky, and as the calmness of night reigns, with but the twinkling stars visible in the heavens, four hundred thousand electric lamps will turn each night into brightest day, and the glow of the forty thousand lights from the Electric Tower will have distant farm houses within the radius of its illumination, and sailors far out on the rocking billows will have their way draped in its brilliancy. Those present will be spectators to electrical marvels of every description, all gotten by the power of the falling waters of Niagara.

Buffalo will henceforth be known over the whole civilized world. As we think of the origin of that name, we behold in imagination the time—a long time ago, when the kings of the prairies were grazing in great herds. It seems as if no one could think of the name without turning over in his mind, a most wonderful panorama of prairies and woodland, with buffaloes and redskins as sole masters; as millions of dollars are being spent to see the wonders of man and nature, the deafening sound of that marvelous cataract should remind of the roar and bellowing of large groups of buffaloes that were at one time pursued and slaughtered by merciless savages, and with the lapse of years were totally exterminated, till now their bones have turned into dust. But now over that dust, a reminder shall be recognized by all Americans—the buffaloes an emblem of the Pan-American Exposition.

It is certainly fit and proper that in the dawn of the new era the ablest and most famous designers should throw their wreaths of skilful productions around the statue of its species, and thereby recall the thrilling past to the minds of our people.

As the "White City" commemorated in its majesty and beauty, the landing of Columbus on American shore, so will the "Half MoonCity" flashing in marvels and splendor, remind of the same wave of time on the wilderness of our inland.

We wish that many would board the train at Wylie for the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, that our neighborhood might be well represented there by our model and industrious farmers. Our farmers need a vacation, and they would be startled and dazzled to behold the very flower of the splendid progress of a hundred years; the typification of the country's richest resources, varied collections sheltered and blended by the most wonderful productions of virile energies, which from many races mould our nation.

Story Of A Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife had been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by W. A. Schreiter, Druggist.

Beware Of A Cough.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases that cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by W. A. Schreiter, druggist.

Mr. J. W. Baxter of North Brook, N. C. says he suffered with piles for fifteen years. He tried many remedies with no results until he used DeWitt's Witch HazelSalve and that quickly cured him. W. A. Schreiter.

People have so much to say about the rich and what they call "big bugs." They stand more abuse than the people in general would. Those holding offices for the government are often severly critisized, and in their campaigns they are frequently insulted, wronged and unjustly accused. They take it all. They furthermore even risk their lives. It was said, and many rejoice over it, that Mark Hanna received blows in Chicago, and Gov. Roosevelt was the target for eggs, dirt and clubs in Colorado. Even, you may find one at a town election earnestly playing office-seeker who would feel like boxing the ears of the one venturing to work in opposition to his candidacy.

Prevented A Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00 Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

"It is with a good deal of satisfaction and pleasure that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy", says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: "I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore, and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by W. A. Schreiter druggist.

The attorney general rules that oleomargarine cannot be stored in the state.

The citizens of Hinckley offer a substantial bonus for the erection of a flour mill.

The St. Cloud normal school on June 12 will graduate the largest class in its history.

The board of pardons has decided not to act on the Younger parole until the regular June meeting.

The license of the Manhattan Fire Insurance company of New York has been revoked by Insurance Commissioner Dearth.

This has been a favorable season for the Snake river lumbermen. It is anticipated now that at least 90,000,000 feet will be delivered as the result of the season's work.

L. B. Marshall has been appointed chief grain inspector at Minneapolis; F. W. Eve, chief deputy inspector, Duluth; J. N. Barnard, chief deputy inspector at Minneapolis.

Ole Kvalheim, a prominent farmer residing north of Lanesboro, was kicked by a horse and instantly killed on his own dooryard, while exhibiting the animal to a purchaser.

In attempting to escape from Detective George Bahan and Sergeant Mortio Ginsberg, Minneapolis police officers, Alexander A. Hanson was shot by the detective and severely wounded.

Timothy Sullivan, aged 33, a single man, residing with his parents at Snake Creek, north of Weaver, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. No reason was given for the act.

Hon. C. A. Morey, recently injured in a fall at the capitol building, St. Paul, has been taken to his home in Winona. All of his symptoms are now favorable, and it is believed that he will speedily and certainly recover.

The Commodore mine, at Virginia, will shut down for an indefinite period. It is learned that the difficulty is over royalties. It is reported that the operating company wishes the royalty reduced to the neighborhood of 25 cents.

Coal stocks at the head of the lakes are practically cleaned out, there being but 11,000 tons of anthracite and 200,000 tons of bituminous. The soft coal is practically all controlled by the railroads, so the stocks for sale are very low.

The executive committee of the State Editorial association has decided to postpone the date of its excursion to Buffalo and the Pan-American exposition one week. According to the new programme the party will leave St. Paul Saturday, June 15.

Patrick Shields, foreman for the Cloquet Lumber company, was shot twice in the chest by J. Harkuth of Duluth. Shields was foreman of a crew cutting timber on Ely lake lands and Harkuth is a constable employed by the squatters. Shields cannot live.

Sawmill men to the number of 150 are on strike at Duluth. The number is small, but as the strikers are pilers and chainmen it is difficult to run the mills, so many more are temporarily out of work. The pilers want $2.25 per day instead of $2 and the chainmen want $2 instead of $1.75.

The threatened strike by carpenters of St. Paul has been declared off entirely. Delegates from the Carpenters' union met a committee from the master contractors. As a result of the conference the union will withdraw from the Building Trades' council, and building operations will not be suspended.

The Crookston Telephone company has transferred its lines and entire system and franchise at Crookston to the Iron Range Electric Telephone company, whose headquarters are at Wadena. The new company will use Crookston as a base of supplies and will build long distance lines to Duluth along the Great Northern system.

The Washington county grand jury has found indictments against John Roberts of Minneapolis and Patrick F. Cunningham of Caledonia for being involved in the plot to free the convict, Edward Leland. Miss Hubbell, who has been in jail for several months, was not indicted, but will be held at Stillwater and used as a witness.

The board of prison managers has voted to parole Cole and James Younger, who were members of the Jesse James band that swept down on Northfield Sept. 7, 1876, and attempted to rob a bank. During the conflict between the citizens and the outlaws some one shot Cashier Heywood in cold blood. To be effective the parole must have the unanimous approval of the board of pardons.

WINCHELL FINDS COAL.

Will Report That President Hill's Mines Are Very Valuable.

St. Paul, May 11.—Professor N. H. Winchell of the University of Minnesota, a well known geologist, will report to President Hill of the Great Northern that the coal deposits of Western Washington are greater and richer than has ever been imagined. He will also report that the geological formations are favorable to the existence of oil. He has spent some time in the West on a mission for the Great Northern president, investigating coal deposits near Cokedale, Wash., owned by Mr. Hill.

Investigation has convinced the Minnesota geologist that commercial coal exists in large deposits at Cokedale and the territory west of the Cascades. President Hill's valuable holdings may be developed.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B 558 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

The funeral of Joseph Gauthier occurred on Friday.

There is a good deal of sickness in this part of the county and the Board of health is very active.

Ovide Moreau. the wealthy ex-merchant, has moved with his family to the upper town, near the church of St. Anthony.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Paul Berthon, of Red Lake Falls were welcomed by by their numerous friends in this vicinity last Sunday.

The least in quantity and most in quality describes DeWitt's Little Risers, the famous pills for constipation, and liver complaints. W. A. Schreiler.

Realestate deals are of such common occurrence that we do not take notice of them any more. All new comers appear to be delighted with their new locations.

Dupont & Sons. successors to Ovide Moreau in the mercantile business, are doing very well and will leave nothing undone towards making their splendid store a first class mercantile establishment.

Albert Moreau has taken up his abode in Michel Champagne's roomy house. Albert understands that an increase in a family requires more room in the house and his family includes a new 12-pound boy. Keep on Albert!

If people only know what we know about Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, it would be used in nearly every household, as there are few people who do not suffer from a feeling of fulness after eating, belching, flatulence, sour stomach or water brash, caused by indigestion or dyspepsia. A preparation such as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which, with no aid from the stomach, will digest your food, certainly can't help but do you good. W. A. Schreiter.

Garnes.

Misses Ida and Nora Iverson left Monday for Grand Forks.

Rev. O. Kolstoe and Albert Wanstedt drove to McIntosh Wednesday.

Miss Christine Knuteson is staying with Mr. Smith's family in Wyandotte.

Three loads of goods were hauled from McIntosh this week for Hughes & Nearson's store in Garnes.

A number of Albert Wanstedt's friends met at his home Saturday night and spent a most pleasant evening.

E. K. Gjernes returned Tuesday from Norman county where he had been for the past two weeks on business.

Died.—On Thursday Olaf Knuteson, the step son of Geo. Gunderson, aged 8 years. The remains were enterred Friday morning.

P. Juneau and A. LaComb returned home from the lumber camps last week and are now working in the saw mill in St. Hilaire.

"I have been suffering from Dyspepsia for the past twenty years and have been unable after trying all preparations and physicians to get any relief. After taking one bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure I found relief and am now in better health than I have been for twenty years. I cannot praise Kodol Dyspepsia Cure too highly." Thus writes Mrs C. W. Roberts, North Creek, Ark.

FLAX FIBRE MILL

SOME PROBABILITY OF THIS CITY SECURING SUCH AN INSTITUTION.

BOARD OF TRADE HAS MADE A DATE WITH THE COMPANY.

Secretary A. W. Wood, of the local Board of Trade, has been in correspondence for some time with officers of a heavy manufacturing firm with a view toward getting them interested in the location of a flax fibre and pulp mill at this point, and Monday night a meeting of the Board was held to consider the matter. A committe, consisting of L. A. Kaufer, Ernest Birce and A. W. Wood was appointed to meet the representatives of the company upon their arrival here, the date having been fixed by the Board for next week.

In this connection it may be stated that correspondence is in progress with several other parties engaged in the manufacture of paper of one kind or another, and the promise is fair, that an institution of the kind will eventually be landed.

A Strong Recommendation.

From Farm, Stock and Home, Minneapolis

Hail Insurance: J. W., Minn. Question: What Hail Insurance company would you advise a farmer to insure in? Answer: The Alliance Hail and Cyclone Mutual Insurance Company, Austin, Minn., by all means. It is safe and reliable. If a loss is sustained it will be paid in full and promptly. It is an old company, and its record is of the finest. The companies you name are new, are experiments, and you take great risks when insuring in them, and we advise you not to do it. The lower cost of insurance in the new companies cuts no figure; you better not insure at all than pay money for cheap insurance and get nothing in case of loss. There is a deal of swindling in this kind of insurance.

Wm. Randall is soliciting for the above-named company here and farmers may feel assured of fair and square dealing at his hands.

SENATOR TOWNE INVESTING.

Will Buy Texas Oil Lands for a Minnesota Syndicate.

Austin, Tex., May 16.—Ex-Senator Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, who is at Beaumont, is negotiating for the purchase of a tract of 15 acres in the heart of the oil field. The prospective purchase price of this land is said to exceed $1,000,000. It is understood that Mr. Towne is acting for a syndicate of Minnesota capitalists in conducting the transactions, although he will hold a large interest in this land if it is purchased.

Gypsy Camp Is Robbed.

St. Paul, May 14.—Leonard Wells, son of Isaac Wells, king of the gypsies, and his wife, who are at the Midway awaiting the coming of the brethren to the annual love feast of the Romany Rye, were robbed of nearly $3,500, $400 in currency, mostly gold coin, and $3,000 in certificates of deposits drawn in the name of Mrs. Wells by Iowa banks, mainly the First National bank of Lemars.

Will Spend Half a Million.

St. Paul, May 15.—Improvements that the Northern Pacific will make to its Duluth rollway yards and terminal facilities during the next two years are to cost $500,000. Work on some of the most needed improvements, including a viaduct at Garfield avenue, is to begin soon, and estimates of the expense of the summer's work are placed at between $200,000 and $325,000.

HOW'S THIS GIRLS?

RAGTIME TUNES ARE CHARACTERIZED AS "UNMUSICAL ROT."

Denver, May 24.—The American Federation of musicians, in convention here, has selected Buffalo, N. Y., for the next annual meeting. The date was not fixed.

A resolution was adopted characterizing "ragtime" tunes as "unmusical rot," and pledging members of the federation to "make every effort to suppress and to discourage the playing and publishing of such musical trash."

A Noteworthy Combination.

The consolidation of the Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald was one of the most important events in the history of modern metropolitan journalism. People familiar with the newspapers published in the great capitals of the world say that the best daily papers are made in Chicago, and it is well known that the Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald ranked at the front among Chicago's best dailies. Each covered the world's news thoroughly each day, and each possessed also distinctive special features giving it that individuality so attractive to its readers. Now that the two have been combined, all the resources and world-wide facilities of both papers are united in the Chicago Record-Herald. It is in truth "a great combination"—a combination without parallel in American journalism. The fortunate readers of the Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald now receive every day a newspaper whose news facilities are unequaled by any other American newspaper.

Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No Cure, no Pay. Price 25 cents.

From Dr. Curryer.

Mankato, May 20, 1901.

P. A. Kaufer,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir:—

The date set for the State Farmer's Institute at your place is Tuesday June 11th. Every business man in the section where the State Farmer's Institutes are held is just as much interested as the farmer, as it is through farmer customers that he gets his share of this appropriation, by experienced men coming among them with suggestions that will enable the farmers to raise better crops, grow better stock, enable the farmers to select the stock best suited to their conditions; and in many ways aid them in their own assistance for better surrounding conditions.

Such men as John Gould and Dr. C. D. Smead, should be used to the best possible advantage while they are in the state, and not a farmer or those interested in farms or stock can under almost any circumstance afford to miss this opportunity, as we have "no string on them," and it may be the last chance to get their valuable experiences. It is all free. Get the word to everybody. Get your neighbors out to this institute and neither you or they will ever regret it. It is or may be the opportunity of a lifetime. Just one day in a place, but let us be sure we have used it to the best advantage. Success in life, is in taking advantage of circumstances; "git a plenty while you are getting says I."

We now tell you if for no other reason, every farmer in your region of the country should be there, is to get one of those valuable books to be given away at the close of the forenoon session. This is something to take home for daily reference in the farm work and care of stock as well as in the household.

Yours for success,
J. C. Curryer.

Memorial Day Exercises.

Memorial day will be observed as usual here this year. The members of Maj. Beck Post will attend service at St. Joseph's church next Sunday evening in a body, and on Thursday, Memorial day, the pastor, Rev. E. Fayolle, will be invited to accompany the soldiers to St. Joseph's church cemetery. This is in accordance with the custom to visit a different church and cemetery each year. The public at large and especially the schoolchildren are invited to participate.

Bismarck's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. They develop every power of brain and body. Only 25c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

To Cure a Cold In One Day.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

Mrs. J. No matter what causes facial eruptions, absolute cleanliness inside and out is the only way to cure them. Rocky Mountain Tea taken this month will drive them away. W. A. Schreiter.

H. S. COMMENCEMENT

THE RED LAKE FALLS HIGH SCHOOL'S FIRST GRADUATES.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES WILL BE HELD IN OPERA HOUSE.

The first commencement of the Red Lake Falls High School occurs next week, and pupils, parents and the public generally will combine to make the event a thorough success and an incentive to pupils in the future to strive for the honors of graduation.

Quality not quantity would well describe the graduation class this year. The three members of the class are Misses Josephine Kans, Bessie Hunt and Elizabeth McNerthney, all of them so well and favorably known in the community that further introduction is unnecessary.

The complete commencement program is as follows:

Thursday evening, May 30 Class Night.

Saturday evening June 1, Commencement exercises.

Monday June 3, inter-high school, field-meet between Crookston, Ada, Fertile and Red Lake Falls at Fertile.

Wednesday evening June 5, Banquet to graduating class by Juniors.

For the class night the members of the graduating class have secured at enormous expense some of the finest dramatic talent in the country, as the cast of the characters below will indicate, to present for the first time to a Red Lake Falls audience that inimitable comedy drama.

A BOX OF MONKEYS.

CAST.

Edward Ralston....Joseph Jefferson
Chancey Oglethorpe......................Richard Mansfield
Mrs. Ondego...............Viola Allen.
Miss Sierra Bengaline.Maxine Elliot
Lady Guinivere Llandpoore..........................Julia Marlowe.

This play will be given at the Opera House, Thursday evening, and to partially meet the expense of securing the talent above mentioned an admission price of 25 cents will be charged. Reserved seats can be obtained at Schreiter's.

It is hoped that the public will take advantage of this rare opportunity to hear something exceptionally fine in the dramatic line.

The following is the program for commencement night:

1. Music..................Orchestra.
2. Address..................
3. Music..................Orchestra.
4. Essay, The work of the Weather Bureau......Miss Bessie Hunt.
5. Music..................Orchestra.
6. Essay, Mother Love.........Miss Elizabeth McNerthney.
7. Music..................Orchestra.
8. Essay and Valedictory. Americans of To-day ..Miss Josephine..................Kans.
9. Music..................Orchestra.
10. Presentation of Diplomas.

These exercises will be held at the Opera House and every one is cordially invited to attend. The local orchestra, managed and trained by Franz F. Freund, will furnish the music, which will be of the highest order. It is hoped that a good number will accompany the track-team to Fertile Monday. While the boys do not expect to win they would appreciate encouragement and sympathy, and it would give a good start toward victory next time.

Prevented A Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00 Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers search the remotest parts of the bowels and remove the impurities speedily with no discomfort. They are famous for their efficacy. Easy to take, never gripe. W. A. Schreiter.

RAILROAD FOR ROSEAU

Preliminaries in Progress for a Line Toward the Valley.

The deal of the Manitoba government to lease the lines of the Northern Pacific in that province for 999 years has been ratified by the Canadian government and the N. P. road will be turned over to MacKenzie, Mann & Co. to operate, and will become part of the Canadian Northern railway system. R. J. MacKenzie, while at Warroad last week gave it out that as soon as the deal above referred to was ratified, a surveying crew will be put to work for a preliminary survey of a route east through Roseau county, and that the road would be built as far as Badger in time to market the fall crop.

Roseau county with a population of over 7,000 centrally bunched in 24 organized townships, will certainly contribute largely to the earnings of the road and the development of the county which a railroad would naturally stimulate by traversing the best settled portion of the county east and west, would at once place the operating of such a line upon a paying basis.

Editor's Awful Plight.

F. M. Higgins, Editor Seneca, (Ills.) News, was afflicted for years with Piles that no doctor or remedy helped until he tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve. He writes two boxes wholly cured him. It's the surest Pile cure on earth and the best salve in the world. Cure guaranteed. Only 25 cents. Sold by W. A. Schreiter druggist

Educate Your Bowels With Cascarets. Candy Cathartic, cure constipation forever. 10c, 25c. If C. C. C. fail, druggists refund money.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch, of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state.

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake County, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near a point twenty-six (26) feet north of the one quarter section corner between sections twenty-four (24) and twenty-five (25) of township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-four (44) west, then easterly parallel to said graded road and twenty-six (26) feet distant northerly therefrom to a point twenty-six (26) ft west and twenty-six (26) ft north from the corner for sections nineteen (19), twenty (20), twenty-nine (29) and thirty (30), in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north range forty three (43) west, thence southerly parallel to section line between sections twenty-nine (29) and thirty (30) and twenty-six (26) feet distant westerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet northerly and twenty-six (26) feet westerly from the corner for sections twenty-nine (29) thirty (30), thirty-one (31) and thirty-two (32), of township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-three (43) west, thence easterly parallel to section line between sections twenty-nine (29) and thirty-two (32) and thirty (30) feet northerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet west and thirty (30) feet north from the corner for sections twenty-eight (28), twenty-nine (29), thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33), thence southerly parallel to section line between sections thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33) and thirty (30) feet distance westerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet west and ten (10) feet north from the corner for sections four (4), five (5), thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33) in townships one hundred and fifty-three (153) and one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-three west, thence easterly parallel to the township boundary line and ten (10) feet distant northerly therefrom to the right bank of the Red Lake river, the said Red Lake river being the termination of the said ditch; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water, during portions of every year, becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperiling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch, or ditches, is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and very greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 9th day of May, A. D. 1901.

Stuart! Do you know me? I love you! Oh, doctor, he is not dead! He is not, is he? Oh, how I love him! I love him!"

"At this rate," quoth Dr. Saxon grimly, "we shall have to put up another band stand in the square." But he looked at Stuart as he lay there, deaf to all those words of love from the woman whose heart was now his, and the doctor's look was very stern and grave.

CHAPTER X.

THE CONFERENCE.

It was two weeks after the fire and the accident to Stuart. Eric was sitting by the bed, for Stuart was still in Eric's cottage. His accident had been so serious that there had been no thought of his removal. During the anxious days and nights Eric had hardly left Stuart's side. Andrew had begged to be allowed to watch, but Eric had insisted upon his prior right and had refused to give way to any one else.

There was another watcher who more than Andrew regarded Eric jealously, and that was a woman who stole into the cottage often with the doctor's coming and remained, dry eyed and pale, with the heart's hunger of love staring out of great eyes that burned over Stuart as if by very force of compelling affection they would rouse him into knowledge and life again. Rhena did not try to hide the feeling she now had. The doctor came in quietly that day while Eric was sitting asleep at the side of Stuart, exhausted by his great vigil, and found Rhena on her knees praying. The intensity of her desire for Stuart's life broke out into an audible petition.

"O Lord, my God, save him! What has he done to die? Oh, how can I say, 'Thy will be done?' I never loved him before. Spare him, God of all goodness! He is so needed in thy world! Surely there are others who would be less— God, what am I saying? But he is my lover! And he does not know that I love him!"

"Beg pardon," interrupted the doctor, "but you're mistaken about that. He knows it perfectly well. Just tell him four or five times more if you think it is necessary."

Rhena turned her head toward Stuart. He lay there with his eyes open for the first time in days, really conscious and with a smile on his face which was heaven to her. She simply turned on her knees and bowed her head over Stuart's hand and put her lips to it, and then, to the doctor's surprise, she fell over and fainted.

"It beats all creation what these women can spring in the way of surprises on a man!" said the doctor as he picked Rhena up and carried her over to a couch at the other end of the room.

Eric had started out of his doze, and Stuart had shut his eyes again, lapsing into his former stupor, but still with a smile on his lips. "But if any lass has a right to faint this one has. Are you going to tumble off again, ma'am?" he asked as Rhena began to come to. "You can if you want to. Do you want to cry? Come, that's a good girl! Cry a little. It'll do us all good. Want a handkerchief? Here's mine."

Rhena sat up suddenly and seized Saxon's hand. "Oh, doctor, he will get well, won't he? He is better? There is hope? He knew me for a moment. You do believe my prayer will be answered?"

Rhena was crying softly. She was broken and nervous with the great strain of the last two weeks.

"I've heard worse prayers get attended to," replied the doctor shortly.

"But do you think—oh, doctor, it is death to me to think of—tell me, what do you fear? Is he—will he live?"

The doctor shut his lips tight. Rhena watched him, with her hands clinched hard over his. She did not know it, but her slim fingers hurt even the doctor's rugged, knotty fists. Finally he answered her. "I think, yes, I am quite sure, now that he knows that you care for him a little, there is a fighting chance."

"Care for him a little!" replied Rhena, with a smile that melted the doctor completely. "Doctor, were you ever in love?"

"No," replied the doctor, "but if I was I'd have to put up still another band stand in the square. One apiece wouldn't be too much for three such fools as you and Stuart and me."

"What's that nonsense he's talking?" asked Eric, coming over to the end of the room where they were.

"It was not nonsense," said Rhena, with more color in her face than it had seen since the day Stuart had first spoken to her. She went over to the side of Stuart and sat down there watching him. She had a great hope now. The doctor also told the truth. And indeed, he afterward said, nothing but love brought Stuart out alive.

"I've heard that people who were in love could live on nothing," the doctor said, "but I do believe if Stuart hadn't come to himself long enough that day to hear that little prayer I'd have had two funerals on my hands pretty quick. Well, I never understood these women. There she was one minute as limp as a dead fish, and the next she was as lively as a Salvation Army tambourine. If I could get this article they call love fixed up in a prescription and deal it out in severe cases, I believe it would do more good than all the microbe killers on earth."

Those were wonderful days when Stuart was declared out of danger. Andrew celebrated by bringing over his choicest blossoms. He ranged two pots of roses on a table where Stuart could see them and laid a beautiful white carnation on the bed within reach of Stuart's fingers.

"It's the only one I've been able to get this winter, Stuart. Isn't it a beauty? It's a new variety. Do you know what I've called it? I took the liberty to call it the 'Rhena Dwight.'"

When Rhena came in a few minutes after, Andrew and Eric pretended to be busy talking at the other end of the room.

Stuart picked up the carnation and spoke feebly, but the light of life was in his eyes. "This blossom is called the Rhena Dwight, so Andrew says. Will you take it because of the love I bear you?"

Rhena took the flower and kissed it. Then she shyly placed the blossom against Stuart's lips. Then she laid it down again in his hand.

"No," she said; "you keep the Rhena Dwight for the love I have for you."

Is it any wonder Stuart grew well with great rapidity after that?

In a week he was almost well. He was able to take part in the discussions which forced themselves into that little room in spite of all Eric could do. There had been three weeks almost a blank to Stuart, but full of horror and misery for the miners on all the ranges. The fire that dreadful night had made 300 or 400 people homeless. The deaths from fever had lessened some in Champion, but at De Mott the daily mortality had increased. But most of the suffering came from lack of clothing and fuel and food. The winter had continued with terrible severity. And still the union held out with remarkable stubbornness, although the week of Stuart's convalescence there was a rumor that a break would come very soon. The union had reached its limit of ability to help in a financial way long before this.

Stuart came back to strength and new vitality with all the force of the old problem intensified as he realized what the three weeks had added to it. He was glorified with the love of Rhena, now wholly his, but he knew that for nothing did she love him more than for his desire to try to solve the human problem, as it touched both their lives in Champion. With all the added warmth and enthusiasm of her great hearted wisdom he now set himself to the duty before him. It was not alone his desire that Rhena should be one of the company when Eric and Andrew came in to talk over matters. The other men had learned that woman's wit very often supplies the necessary factor in a solution of practical relief, and Rhena took her place with them as indispensable to their councils henceforth.

"Something has got to be done soon for the people who lost everything in the fire," said Andrew. The little group of four were in Eric's room, Stuart on the couch, Rhena sitting near the end of it, Eric pacing the room, his dark eyes restless and burning.

"I understand they have all been comfortably cared for, but I don't see myself what Champion people have been able to do for them in the way of housing them," said Stuart, looking at Andrew, upon whom a large share of the work of relief had fallen during Stuart's unconscious condition.

"Heaven knows how all of them have been cared for. The Salvation Army hall has been turned into barracks, and Miss Rhena here knows how much the army has done."

"It has done very little in comparison with what it would like to do," said Rhena sadly.

"Do you know what it would like to do?" asked Stuart, who was only just beginning to comprehend how great and pressing was the need since the fire and three weeks more of the strike.

"I'm afraid it's not much use for me to say," answered Rhena, with added sadness.

"You forget," answered Stuart. "What is all my money for? Why have you not been spending it all this time?" he asked almost fiercely, turning to Eric, who still paced the room and who had not yet spoken.

"I've spent plenty of other people's money in my mind," answered Eric as bitterly as he ever spoke, "but I never spent it in reality, and when it comes to the suffering we face now I wouldn't know where to stop. What right have people to go on wasting God's property so wickedly while there is so much suffering?"

He looked at Andrew as he spoke, and Andrew, who seldom made a retort of any kind, replied:

"Ask the devil. He knows more about it than I do."

"And then there is the church," continued Eric, who was irritable and nervous on this occasion, for his long watching with Stuart had been a great strain on him. "What is it doing in comparison with what it ought to do? Stuart, you asked me quite awhile ago why I joined the Salvation Army. I'll tell you why. There was nowhere else I could go for the religious expression of my life. St. John's church is a curious mixture of workingmen and tradesmen, and I'm not saying anything of its aristocracy, for it hasn't any, but if I do say it, and I am sorry to have to say it, the whole object of the church before Andrew came here to it seemed to be to meet together for meetings which gave occasion for a good deal of feeling and emotion, but never realized anything of a practical nature in helping to relieve the pressure of the physical needs of men. The whole thing evaporated in feeling and psalm singing and prayers that never really got much outside the walls of the vestry.

"I'm not crying down the Christian lives of the church members. There are hundreds of them better than I am, but the expression of their Christianity through the structure of the church seemed to me almost nothing. One may be just as strong as another, but if one of them is using a dull ax and the other one a sharp ax to cut down a tree the strength of the two men is not being equally spent so far as getting results goes, and the man with the sharp tool will do the best work, not because he has more muscle, but a better ax. It came upon me with the force of a conversion that I never could do much through the church as an instrument. That's the reason I went into the Salvation Army. It represented the sacrificial spirit of Christianity to me a hundred times where the church did not represent it at all. Take the Church of St. Peter here in Champion. It is always spoken of in the papers as the most fashionable church in town. Think of that! So The News Crier stated in giving the account of its annual meeting. What do those people know of sacrifice or of the spirit of Christ, who gave up all his riches to become poor for the sake of dying humanity? I'm sitting in judgment on them, and I shall some time be called to account for doing it, but if I was a Catholic I'd be willing to sit on the hottest fire in purgatory to say what I think about an 'aristocratic church.' And this one here in Champion is only one out of thousands all over the country. What is the church, as an institution, doing to obey the command of Christ, to deny itself, take up its cross, forsake its ease and pleasure and follow him?"

Again Eric turned in his walk and confronted Andrew. Stuart and Rhena watched him almost sorrowfully after listening to Eric's outburst. Over Andrew's jolly, good natured face crept a gray shadow of seriousness that showed how deeply Eric's sharp condemnation had pierced.

"Your question is larger than any answer I can make without taking up hours of discussion," he said at last, speaking calmly, but with evident self control over a possible fury of feeling. "The church today contains some of the noblest and some of the meanest men and women. There is in the church the highest, purest, most saintly devotion to Christ and his teaching, and at the same time there are alongside of it the most awful selfishness and love of ceremony, show and hypocrisy. The scribes and Pharisees are just as much in evidence now as when they cried to Pilate: 'Crucify him! Crucify him!' Long ago I came to the conclusion that the same people would nail Jesus to the cross again if he appeared in this generation and denounced their hypocrisy and selfishness as he did before. At the same time he would have a great army of disciples, who would suffer martyrdom for his sake. I regard the church of today as occupying a peculiar position in the world of struggle between different groups of men. There is a growing feeling on the part of many churches that a great revolution in the methods and purpose is at hand and that nothing will be so radically changed in spirit and purpose as the church of Christ. The amount of relief for suffering that flows out of the organization we now have is no doubt enormous. Propose to any civilized community in this country that it wipe out its churches altogether, and the proposition would meet with instant objection, even on the part of those who are most ready to denounce the church for its uselessness. I am not attempting to answer your question in full, Eric. Of course if I did not believe in the church—I mean in its possibilities of sacrifice—I would not work from it as a center. I would get out and work from some other basis. But this is my best reason for believing in the church as a power for the world's redemptive uplift after all else has been said."

Andrew paused, and the rest listened thoughtfully. "The church is the only organization Jesus ever mentioned. He especially loved it. It was not any particular form or name that he loved, but the discipleship organized in love to one another and a common Master, going forward to conquer the world for God. And after the trials and false representations of Christ in the church have had their day, after the aristocratic churches have died and the memory of their pomps and fashion is no more, after the coldness and carelessness and superficial worldliness of the church have had their time lived out, the true church will survive the wreck of all this agonizing death in life and be a universal representation of the crucified Lamb of God, giving its life for the needs of a suffering and dying race. 'I believe in the holy catholic church' [meaning the church universal] in the sense that I believe it contains the leaven that is necessary to leaven the whole lump. Why, even the Salvation Army never would have had an existence if it had not been for the church."

"Do you mean that the church had grown so mean and useless that the army had to be organized to do what the church ought to have done?" asked Eric, with a smile.

"No. I mean of course that the Christian men and women who organized the army had their nurture and

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch, of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 11th day of June A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county and state.

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor of Red Lake county, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake county, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same: and that the construction of the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 10, township 152 range 42, then running south on the quarter line through sections 10, 15 and 22 to about the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of section 22, then running southeast to about the center of the south line of said quarter, then running south on or near the center of the northeast and the southeast quarters of section twenty-seven, then running southwesterly through the northeast quarter of section 34 to the southwest corner of said quarter at a point where Clearwater River crosses said quarter; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of the said proposed main or principal ditch and said side ditch or ditches which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water during portions of every year becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome thereby endangering, imperilling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch or ditches is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 16th day of May, A. D. 1901.

That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Beginning at a point 100 feet east of the quarter section corner between sections one and six of township 151, of ranges 43 and 44, W.; thence west along the quarter section line in sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, to a point 258 feet west of the quarter section corner between sections 3 and 4, in township 151 north of range 44 w.; thence north 60 degrees, west a distance of 600 feet, to an outlet in small coulie, in section 4 aforesaid:

Said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state, that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet and at certain seasons of each year are covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. Spring never opened with more gloomy prospects for the farmers of the Red River Valley. The unprecedented floods last fall had prevented fall plowing, and the breakup this spring found the discouraged husbandmen facing unplowed fields that were mere lakes. Only one thing could save the situation—a dry spring. And we got it. There has scarcely been a heavy downpour of rain this season, and to-day the prospects are exceedingly bright. The wheat acreage is nearly as large as ever, and the late plowing for barley and flax is nearly done. The wheat fields are a sight to gladden the heart, with the stooling process going on under the most favorable circumstances. The weather of the past four weeks could not have been better if it had been made to order, and the result is No. 1 crop prospects.

A state farmers' institute will be held at Red Lake Falls on Tuesday, June 11, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. A day spent in attendance at a farmers' institute may result in the adoption of methods, the value of which cannot be estimated. At the farmers' institute one will meet those who have traveled the rough and rocky road of experience and they will give directions how to avoid some of the many difficulties they had to encounter. The state farmers' institute is a traveling school of agriculture, which brings to the door of the farmer experiences, means and methods of the best known practical results, and it is all free. At the close of the forenoon session, a very valuable book, the Institute Annual, devoted to the various branches of farming, will be given free to all who wish a copy. Ladies and young people are especially invited to attend the institute.

The Courier boys are losing too much of the Land Office business to suit their abnormal appetites, and Frank and Charlie were so full—(of rage)—after their fruitless trip to Crookston last week to see the "powers that be" that they had to vent some of the delerium into the foor freckled Cur. The appointment of U. S. Commissioner in connection with this land office business gave an opportunity to deliver themselves of a chunk of bile, and the only sore spot apparent to date, is the green one on the Cur last week. Instead of weaving a tissue of falsehood, if the cur was capable of telling the truth, it should have stated that it was not the appointment of U. S Commissioner that was desired by The Gazette, but the final proof business in connection. This was well understood, and this we will get. And that is what is making the Cur jump sideways, causing the green blotches and making a bad smell generally in the vicinity of the Kennel.

The early closing movement inaugurated by our merchants is commendable, and should be lived up to this time. In the past the agreements have been short lived, owing to the fact that one or the other of the parties thereto was led to yield to the pressure often brought to bear by patrons. It seems that the public should appreciate the situation sufficiently to abide by the decision of the merchants without protest. Otherwise the clerks and proprietors must go on without opportunity for relaxation or self-improvement, virtual slaves to business. When the rule of early closing is adhered to by all no one is the loser in a business way.

The death of Mrs. M. R. Brown and her little 18 months old grandson, occurred almost simultaneously Sunday, and two caskets lie side by side in the old Brown homestead at Crookston—a sad, sad affair, which casts a pall even to the distance of Red Lake Falls, where the Brown family have many friends

Sterling Puritan Wickless Blue Flame oil stoves at Hunt's Hardware. Sent out on trial and guaranteed superior to the old style

Miss Helen Schaefer submitted to an operation at the Crookston Hospital Saturday for necrosis of the bone. The last two fingers and half of her right hand were amputated. It is hoped by this operation to save the remainder of the hand and arm.

Thos. Crompe this week started out on his duties as assessor, and if you have been slighted it is because your time has not come. The city is large and scattered and the assessor can not go to every body at once. Have patience and in due time you will no doubt be honored by a call.

The Creamery started up Monday. 3,100 pounds of butter fat were delivered yesterday. This exceeds the high water mark of last year by 800 pounds. All wise farmers in this vicinity should patronize the creamery, whether belonging to the association or not. Talk it over with butter maker Johnson.

The drainage fever has struck Red Lake county in dead earnest, and no less than six ditch propositions are now being worked out under the 1901 law, which simplifies the procedure and requires the estimate of cost to be made by the engineer before the expense of viewers is incurred. There is opposition to each ditch, but in the long run the parties opposing will see the error of their ways. There is no doubt that drainage is the crying need of this section, and with it will come greatly enhanced farm values.

Is it better to spend your earnings or to save them? The finest plan for saving is an endowment policy in an old line life insurance Co. You secure immediate protection against sudden death, and at the same time invest your savings at a good rate of compound interest. Principal and interest will be returned when you are growing old, and need it most. The 20 payment 30-years endowment of the New England Mutual Life is the best endowment policy written. See F. A. Whiteley and obtain full information concerning this splendid policy.

Last Friday evening a very enjoyable card and dancing party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. H. Lemieux. Those present were Messrs. Argue, Healy, Hunt, Mucke, Germo, McIntyre, Zaiser, Converse, Wyer, Freund and Lemieux, and Misses Lusby, Carley, Costello, Benedict, Brown, VanEtten, Zaiser, Hunt, Hickey, Hussey, Owen, Gibson and Fahey. The house was decorated with carnations and roses. After several selections on the mandolins and guitar had been enjoyed on the veranda, every one adjourned to the house to test their skill at card playing. Dr. Argue finally winning the gentlemen's head prize, and Miss Costello the ladies', while it fell to the lot of Harry Healy and Miss VanEtten to pay the penalty for having the least number of games to their credit, which they did in a very creditable manner. After partaking of a dainty lunch, dancing was indulged in until the wee small hours.

To accommodate our customers we have opened a flour and feed store on Main St. and will be pleased to meet our old customers as well as new.

Lightning Dyspepsia Cure.

CURE YOUR STOMACH

And you will cure your sick headache, your chronic constipation, your indigestion, your heart burn, that pain in your back, which you think is a rheumatic pain, or which you take to be a kidney disease; that palpitation of the heart, which is a nervous, instead of being an organic disease of the heart; fullness and distress of the stomach, and intense pain shooting from the pit of the stomach in all directions, and especially in the region of the heart, causing weakness and fainting which alarms the sufferer beyond all measure. W. A. SCHREITER has it in stock. Call for sample.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

Helm & Berthon have about completed the additions and improvements to their machinery warehouse. A new office room, fitted up in modern style, is part of the general improvements which makes their headquarters a model of convenience.

Joseph Fonliot and Joseph Allard drove to Crookston Monday to take in the baseball game between Crookston and Thief River Falls, which resulted 3 to 2 in favor of Crookston. The boys attended the dance in the evening and returned home Tuesday.

A 20-payment 30-year endowment for $1,000 taken in the New England Mutual will cost less than 10 cents a day. It will protect your life for 30 years and return every dollar put into it with compound interest at a liberal rate. F. A. Whiteley writes them.

Madden & Linnihan opened their City Meat Market yesterday, and everything is in readiness for business. A fine cooling closet has been constructed, a new tile floor put in, a brick smokehouse constructed in the rear, and the work room, where Geo. Keehmichel will manipulate the bolognas, is as neat as can be.

W. F. Cyr has received the appointment of grain inspector at Duluth, and will shortly leave to assume his new duties. Mr. Cyr has had considerable experience in the grain business, and will take to the job like a veteran, and we have no doubt will rapidly come to the front. Mr. Cyr is a man of much strength of character and native ability.

The baseball game Saturday between the Red Lake Falls and Crookston High School nines was the first match game of the season and was greatly enjoyed by large numbers of spectators. The score stood 13 to 12 in favor of the visiting team. Our boys had had no previous practice, and the article of ball they put up was an agreeable surprise. W. A. McIntyre ably umpired the game.

Just received a car of tiling for culverts and well curbing. Can save your township one half in two years by using them instead of plank for culverts.

The Robertson Lbr. Co.

Wm. Murphy and Miss Mamie Kaufer drove to St. Hilaire Sunday.

Miss Mabel Wyer, of Excelsior, is a guest of Miss Bessie Hunt.

Mrs. B. Zaiser is entertaining her brother-in-law, Mr. Knaack, of Waterville, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Toupin will start for Michigan Friday on a visit to the latter's relatives.

Joseph Tschirhart has improved his residence property on Hamilton av. with a new picket fence.

The First National Bank of Fertile will begin business next week, with a paid-up capital of $25,000

Theo. Schmitz has purchased from H. J. Bischoff a lot adjoining the property recently acquired from L. Heim.

H. J. Kaufer has given the floor of his upper Main St. shop a painting, with the result of improved appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ziegler, of Terrebonne, were guests at the home of Joseph Helm Sunday and spent the day among their many friends in the city.

Misses Olive Furtier and Belle Furrar, and Messrs. Maurice Malone, and C. A. Lohn drove over from Crookston Sunday for a visit with Miss Mollie Fahey.

North Star Court C. O. F. has on the tapis for Tuesday night next a card party and dance and invitations are out for the event, which is to take in members only.

J. K. Johnson, who recently disposed of his residence property on lower Main street to Joe Salley, is building a neat dwelling house on River street, south of Ed L. Healy's.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kaufer drove to St. Hilaire Sunday to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Ottoman Zeiter, former St. Paul friends, now residents of the neighboring Saintly City.

Isaie Marchildon is undecided between Tacoma, Walla Walla and North Yakima as to his future home. He will however, decide between these three points, and his family are expecting his decision shortly. Their residence property here was sold to O. Mikkelson for $1,200.

Evidently spring weather agrees with the M. B. A., as another class of ten candidates was initiated last Monday night, and members who were absent missed a rare treat, but they will not have to wait long for another, as a class is already organized for the next meeting. After initiation was over there was a dance for the members and their friends, the music being furnished by Freund's ever popular parlor orchestra.

Lucien Philion will shortly add some fine improvements to his residence property in the way of a porch and stone foundation. By the way, Lucien has been a subscriber to The Gazette since the paper started, and during all these years has paid his subscription on the same date each time—May 12—except when the date fell on Sunday. The next morning he would be on hand bright and early. Would there were many such.

We are in receipt of the Commencement program of the State Normal School at Winona, together with the cards of two Red Lake Falls girls who are with the graduates this year—Misses Lydia E. B. Fletcher and Mary Audelle Dwyer. From another source—the State University come the announcements of Michael McNerthney and Freeman Fletcher, who are about to graduate from the school of Dentistry. These ambitious and worthy young people all have The Gazette's best wishes, together with those of many friends here, who will wish them unclouded success in their chosen work.

The New England Mutual Life gives the largest cash surrender values in proportion to premiums charged, gives full paid-up insurance that continues to draw dividends whatever year taken, and gives the largest amount of extended insurance of any company doing business. Remember the New England Mutual allows dividends on paid-up insurance or paid-up additions to a policy; only Mass. companies do this. The New England pays dividends on extended insurance; it is the only company that does. If you want the best insurance at the lowest possible cost, take out a policy in the New England Mutual. F. A. Whiteley, agent.

DISASTER AT BEMIDJI

NUMBER OF PEOPLE KILLED AND INJURED DURING A NORWEGIAN CELEBRATION.

Rich Strike of Iron Ore Said to Have Been Made Near Anoka—Former Senator Whiteman of Duluth Again in Trouble—Man of 97 Given a 35-Day Sentence in Jail—General State News.

Bemidji, Minn., May 19.—During a big spectacular naval display on Lake Bemidji in honor of the Norwegian holiday, fireworks on board the steamer Shadow exploded. The result was disastrous. Eleven persons were badly burned, seven seriously and one fatally. The boat was crowded with people and some escaped injury by swimming ashore. One boy, Fred Driver, is supposed to have been drowned while endeavoring to reach land. The injured were all of Bemidji, except Jentsen, who lives at Rosby. Six doctors worked for an hour in caring for the injured. Fred McCauley was burned so badly that he cannot recover, and others may die.

Bemidji, Minn., May 21.—The Norwegian celebration disaster was fully as horrible as first reported. Joe Marchand, 26 years old, of Shevlin; Fred Driven, 10 years old, and Richard Zacharias, 11 years old, both of Bemidji, lie in the bottom of the lake, and Fred McCauley, 12 years old, and Adolph Zacharias, 10 years old, lie at the point of death from burns all over their bodies. The others injured are recovering. Dozens of boats were out all day dragging the lake without success. G. A. Smith of Solway, Minn., and Albert Sneeta of Rosby, Minn., are in the hospital covered with burns, but will recover.

RICH STRIKE AT ANOKA.

Ore Carrying Sixty-two Per Cent Iron Said to Have Been Found.

Minneapolis, May 20.—A special to The Times from Anoka says:

An unexpected discovery of very rich iron ore has been made on the farm of Patrick Manley, a farmer who owns about 35 acres of land near the junction of the Eastern Minnesota railroad, just below Coon creek.

Specimens of the ore were recently sent to Duluth and found to contain about 62 per cent of iron. Two experts from Duluth arrived at Anoka and went at once to inspect Manley's land. Their verdict has not yet been learned. At this time it cannot be said just how much iron is in sight or what the value of the deposit will be, but it is believed that Mr. Manley has made a very rich strike.

Manley is about 52 years of age and has operated his farm on Coon creek for many years.

WHITEMAN ARRAIGNED.

Is Released on Bail and Escapes Extradition to Massachusetts.

New York, May 17.—Alonzo J. Whiteman, formerly a state senator of Minnesota and at one time mayor of Duluth, was arraigned before Magistrate Brann in Center street court on a requisition from the governor of Massachusetts, charging him with swindling the Hotel Tourraine and Parker House at Boston by bad checks. A letter from Governor Odell was presented to the magistrate, stating that the requisition had been suspended and recalled. In conformity with the letter, Magistrate Brann refused to deliver Whiteman to the Massachusetts authorities and allowed him to go on bail.

BLAME THE COMPANY.

Coroner's Jury Investigates the Burning of the Bon Voyage.

Duluth, May 16.—A News Tribune special from Houghton, Mich., says that the jury investigating the drowning of Mrs. Leah Sharpe, Mrs. B. Altman and her two children of Duluth, victims of the burning of the Bon Voyage, Friday night, reached the conclusion that the owners of the vessel are responsible in not providing proper protection against fire and for the safety of passengers. Mayor Archie Scott of Houghton was foreman of the jury. The White Line Towing company, of which W. H. Singer of Duluth is general manager, was the owner of the ill fated boat.

SHOT HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Brutal Murder of Frank Greipel at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 20.—Frank Greipel, 615 Smith avenue, was murdered shortly before 8 o'clock p. m. by his brother-in-law, Henry Mingers. The victim was shot three times and died instantly. The murderer has not yet been apprehended. The men had had several severe quarrels and for nearly a year relations between them had been strained. The only witness of the deed was the dead man's 6-year-old son, his wife having stepped out of the room to get a drink of water for her brother.

OLD MAN SENTENCED.

Felix Hackett, Aged 97, Given a Term in Jail.

Duluth, May 19.—Felix Hackett, aged 97 years, was sentenced to 35 days in the county jail from the municipal court for keeping a disorderly house. He is probably the oldest offender in jail in any county in the state, but this is not his first trouble, as he is an old offender in more ways than one. He has been in court for drunkenness several times during the past year. Before this, sentence has always been suspended on account of his age.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

Annual Programme and Bulletin of Rates Issued.

Winona, Minn., May 15.—The executive committee of the National Educational association has issued the official programme and bulletin of rates for the 40th annual convention of the National Educational association to be held in Detroit, Mich., July 8-12, 1901.

The usual rate of one fare plus $2 membership fee for the round trip is granted from all parts of the United States and Canada, with provision for extension of tickets for return until Sept. 1.

Side trips after the convention are offered to various vacation resorts of the great lakes and Canada at one fare for the round trip, tickets good for return until Sept. 1.

The programme of the general sessions and the 18 departments are extensive and excellent. During the five days of the convention, 51 separate sessions will be held, the programmes comprising about 150 prepared papers by prominent educators, besides numerous discussions, round-tables, conferences and committee reports.

The Detroit local executive committee is preparing to entertain 20,000 guests.

WILL STAND TOGETHER.

Conductors' Convention Revives Plan of Co-operation.

St. Paul, May 17.—The convention of the Order of Railway Conductors has voted in favor of the resumption of an alliance with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Trainmen, and the Order of Railway Telegraphers, so that the various bodies may act together when the interests of any one appears in jeopardy.

It was also decided that headquarters of the order will not be moved from Cedar Rapids, Ia., to Cleveland, O.

A second reading was also had of various proposed amendments to the laws of the order.

The session listened to an address by L. S. Coffin of Fort Dodge, Ia., president of the home for aged and disabled railway employes at Highland Park, Ills. Mr. Coffin spoke of the needs of the home and of its projected enlargement. No action was taken in regard to the institution.

NORTHWESTERN CROPS.

Recent Cold Spell Did No Serious Damage.

St. Paul, May 15.—The following is a condensation of the crop report of the Northwestern states:

Minnesota—Cold weather of last week did no damage; no rain in Red River valley and lowlands; elsewhere rains have benefited late-sown grains; early-sown grains looking up well.

Iowa—Cool weather and ample rainfall beneficial to wheat, oats and barley. Fair progress made.

Wisconsin—Everything looking well and prospects for a good crop bright; very beneficial rains in almost all portions of the state.

North Dakota—Wheat seeding finished; considerable area of oats and barley sown; frosts killed tender vegetation without injuring small grain; grain that is up damaged somewhat by high winds.

South Dakota—Crops generally reported in a very satisfactory condition; fruit bloom, only, injured by the frosts; corn planting advanced.

REDS ARE PACIFIED.

Logging Company at Round Lake Agrees to Rescale.

Park Rapids, Minn., May 15.—John Buildice, a reliable Indian from the Pine Point country, has arrived in town and says a complete settlement is being effected of his tribesmen's difficulties with the logging companies. The Indians have consented to let the logs go through the lake down to Frazee and make no further trouble, the Commonwealth company agreeing to have a rescale at any time the Indians ask for it. The latter are satisfied the company intends to treat them fairly, and are dispersing and going about their business. The logs are moving and full operations are under way.

WYLIE GAZETTE.

Although a little ways from lakes and larger waters we have learned that they have different ways catching fishes, be they large as whales or small as sardines. When hook is used there may be a variety of things for bait. In the great ocean of the atmosphere, surrounding our globe, there are many nets thrown out to capture people, when both ignorant and intelligent fall victims. Many persons will yield to the temptation of nipping at a chance frog before investigating what might be back of it. Many a farmer has learned that many manufacturers play fishermen, throwing some fraudulent article out as bait which floats well with a buoyant agent equipped with a smooth tongue that makes it all so easy to swallow, but an autograph in their book may prove a hook hard to get loose from. In the farming country is where those sportsmen thrive, and many a lobster they divide with their firm as game. At present, in the strong current of business and competition, they are trying to get a noose around the farmer's neck canvassing ranges. They were here some years ago and it seems that the outrageous price they then asked for their goods should fire a grit to chase them off wherever they go; they are anxious to get you to argue and dispute. They have been taught how to handle you in the opening exercise, they are well versed in meeting with different kinds of people, and know by heart what there is to say in their line of business. They are talkative and certainly the quickest way to get rid of them, at first, is accept the article and sign their note, but it may not prove easiest in after time.—You are here bettering the country; agents are running it. They are here to make money, and what they get goes a dead loss away from here. We can say nothing else than that peddlers are a detriment to our land.

Our business men are working hard to get a creamery, having frequent meetings. A man remarked the other day that some of the wealthiest farmers, those having the largest number of cows, beg their milk and buy their butter the greatest part of the year. A creamery would improve our town a good deal, and help the people as a whole—it does in other towns.

Story Of A Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife had been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by W. A. Schreiter, Druggist.

Sam Person wheeled to Red Lake Falls last Wednesday. He says he felt the intensity of the heat as something unusual for this time of the year.

J. M. Swenson conducted the services in the Sw. Luth. church Sunday. Mr. Swenson is a worthy deacon of the congregation, ambitions for the spiritual welfare of the people. Were there many such members, there would be a good deal more animation in our church. Mr. Swenson draws a large attendance every time he is to fill the pulpit.

The Ebenezer Young People's Society met Friday evening. Owing to this busy time of the year, the attendance was small. Part of the program was rendered, and it was decided that a midsummer festival shall be held under the auspices of the society. A committee was appointed, which will at once make out a program so that those participating may have sufficient time to prepare.

A. M. Hanson, manager of S. A. Swanson's branch office here, listed four farms for sale the first day the office opened. Every thing pertaining to a country town goes well in Wylie. Too bad we have not got a decent depot and an operator here.

Beware Of A Cough.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases that cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale by W. A. Schreiter, druggist.

Mr. J.W. Baxter of North Brook, N. C. says he suffered with piles for fifteen years. He tried many remedies with no results until he used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and that quickly cured him. W. A. Schreiter.

A. M. Hanson has sold his farm at a good price. He has it worked on shares this summer.

Nick Eckstein has received a carload of lumber, and will soon begin to erect a new dwelling.

Some of the property of Chas. Hagglund disposed of at the mortgage sale the 10th was later claimed by another mortgagee.

The Gazette subscription list from Wylie is steadily growing. S. J. Swenson asked to be a subscriber as this report was sent in. He said he thought The Gazette was the best paper in the county and had long thought of getting on the band wagon. All ought to have The Gazette.

"It is with a good deal of satisfaction and pleasure that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy", says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: "I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore, and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by W. A. Schreiter Druggist.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B. 578 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

COUNTY NEWS NOTES.
BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS.

Bray.

Seeding is about finished.

O. P. Johnson lost a horse Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A Erickson expect to leave for East Grand Forks this week.

Charley Englund and Peter Lindblom made a business trip to St. Hilaire Tuesday.

A steel range peddler traveled around Bray and vicinity last week, as far as learned it seems he struck a bad field to work in. Better buy at home.

If people only knew what we know about Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, it would be used in nearly every household, as there are few people who do not suffer from a feeling of fulness after eating, belching, flatulence, sour stomach or water brash, caused by indigestion or dyspepsia. A preparation such as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, which, with no aid from the stomach, will digest your food, certainly can't help but do you good. W. A. Schreiter.

River Falls.

Landseekers are seen around here every day now.

Nels Halverson, of Wyandotte, was in St. Hilaire Friday.

The realestate dealer, Julius Pieth, is seen around here regularly.

Chas. Lundstrom, of Wyandotte, went through here with a Disc-harrow on Saturday.

Mr. Roy came home Saturday from the East side where he has been seeding the past week.

Dr. Blomburgh, of St. Hilaire went through here Tuesday, bound for the Eastern part of the county.

Herman Nelson took a load of hay over to Black River Saturday. He got a job to break something like 50 acres of land there.

Another burial took place in the Swedish Lutheran cemetery Monday. The remains of the mother-in-law of Anton Peterson, of Wyandotte were interred. Rev. Olson, of St. Hilaire officiated.

"I have been suffering from Dyspepsia for the past twenty years and have been unable after trying all preparations and physicians to get any relief. After taking one bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure I found relief and am now in better health than I have been for twenty years. I cannot praise Kodol Dyspepsia Cure too highly." Thus writes Mrs. C. W. Roberts, North Creek, Ark.

The board of supervisors held a meeting on the 20th day of May at the town clerk's office, for the purpose of considering where and how the road work should be done the ensuing year. They will meet again on the 7th of June to receive bids for contracts for road jobs as follows: At 9 o'clock a. m. on the Sandridge to let a job of $15.00 between sections 18 and 19 west from the Sandridge. At 2 o'clock p. m. at S. N. Ness' place to let jobs to the extent of $85 between sections 11 and 14 and also between 14 and 15; and at 4 o'clock p. m. at A. W. Lund's place to let a job of $80 between sections 22 and 23. Further specifications will be given at each place.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state.

Adam Zeh.
County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake County, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near the south line in the center of the southeast quarter of section 30 in township one hundred and fifty-two of range forty-two, and running thence north at or near the center of said quarter to the north line of said quarter, then running northwesterly through the northeast quarter of section 30, to or near the center of the west line of said quarter, then running northwesterly through the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter and lot one of section 30 in said town and range to the northeast corner of section 25, township one hundred and fifty-two, of range forty-three, then running west on the south side of section line between sections 25 and 24, 23 and 26 and 22 and 27, to a creek running through said sections of 22 and 27; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of the several aforesaid proposed side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, viz:

The first of said proposed side ditches commencing at or near the southeast corner of section 28, township 152, range 42, then running west on the north side of section line between sections 28 and 33, 29 and 32 and 30 and 31 to its terminus at a point on said main or principal ditch at or near the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 30 in said town and range.

The second of said proposed side ditches commencing at or near a small lake at or near the quarter line between lots three and 4 in section 5, township 151, range 42, then running north to the township line between townships 151, range 42, and 152, range 42, then running in a northwesterly direction through section 32 to or near the southwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 32, then running northwest through the northeast quarter of section 31 township 152 Range 42 to its terminus at a point on said main or principal ditch at or near the southwest corner of the south east quarter of the southeast quarter of section thirty in said town and range.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water, during portions of every year, becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperiling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch, or ditches, is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and very greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 29th day of April, 1901.

Prevented A Tragedy.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, Ohio, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of Pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00 Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Whereas, default has occurred and now exists in the terms and conditions of that certain mortgage which was executed and delivered by Ludvig Arneson and Lisa Mare Arneson, his wife, mortgagors, to and in favor of D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the state of Minnesota, mortgagee, and which bears date the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1888, and is recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1888, in book 25 of Mortgages at pages 448 to 450 and is also recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota in book 16 of Mortgages at page 580, and,

Whereas, there is due at the date hereof, under and by virtue of said mortgage the sum of Thirty-four and 85-100 ($34.85) dollars for the principal and interest thereon, and,

Whereas, no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof, and,

Whereas, said D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company has changed its name so as to read D. S. B. Johnston Land Company.

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the same will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein and hereinafter described, and the said sale will take place at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon, on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the front door of the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Red Lake at Red Lake Falls in said county. The premises described in said mortgage, and which will be sold to satisfy the same are described as the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter and the east half of the southeast quarter and lot numbered one all of section numbered Two in township numbered One hundred fifty-three in Range numbered Forty-five in the county of Red Lake (formerly county of Polk) in the State of Minnesota.

Dated at Saint Paul, Minnesota, May 1st, 1901.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, on the 11th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state.

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake County, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near a point twenty-six (26) feet north of the one quarter section corner between sections twenty-four (24) and twenty-five (25) of township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-four (44) west, thence easterly parallel to said graded road and twenty-six (26) feet distant northerly therefrom to a point twenty-six (26) ft west and twenty-six (26) ft north from the corner for sections nineteen (19), twenty (20), twenty-nine (29) and thirty (30), in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north range forty three (43) west, thence southerly parallel to section line between sections twenty-nine (29) and thirty (30) and twenty-six (26) feet distant westerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet northerly and twenty-six (26) feet westerly from the corner for sections twenty-nine (29) thirty (30), thirty-one (31) and thirty-two (32), of township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-three (43) west, thence easterly parallel to section line between sections twenty-nine (29) and thirty-two (32) and thirty (30) feet northerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet west and thirty (30) feet north from the corner for sections twenty-eight (28), twenty-nine (29), thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33), thence southerly parallel to section line between sections thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33) and thirty (30) feet distance westerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet west and ten (10) feet north from the corner for sections four (4), five (5), thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33) in townships one hundred and fifty-three (153) and one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-three west, thence easterly parallel to the township boundary line and ten (10) feet distant northerly therefrom to the right bank of the Red Lake river, the said Red Lake river being the termination of the said ditch; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water, during portions of every year, becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperiling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch, or ditches, is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and very greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 9th day of May, A. D. 1901.

ORDER FOR HEARING AND NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }
In Probate Court,
Special Term,
May 11, 1901.

In the matter of the estate of Mathilda A. Hall,
deceased.

On receiving and filing the petition of Nels P. Rasmussen, of Valley City, N. D., representing, among other things, that Mathilda A. Hall, late of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 8th day of May, A. D. 1901, at St. Hilaire, in said County, and being a resident of this County at the time of her death, died intestate, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this County, and that the said petitioner is a brother-in-law of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Andrew P. Hanson granted;

It is ordered that said petition be heard before this Court, on Monday, the 10th day of June, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the Probate office in said County.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Falls Gazette, a weekly newspaper, printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 11th day of May, A. D. 1901.

By the Court,

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch, of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county and state.

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor of Red Lake county, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake county, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 16, township 152, range 42, then running south on the quarter line through sections 16, 21 and 22 to about the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of section 22, then running southeast to about the center of the south line of said quarter, then running south on or near the center of the northeast and the southeast quarters of section twenty-seven, then running southwesterly through the northeast quarter of section 34 to the southwest corner of said quarter at a point where Clearwater River crosses said quarter; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of the said proposed main or principal ditch and said side ditch or ditches which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water during portions of every year becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperiling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch or ditches is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 16th day of May, A. D. 1901.

Petition For a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows:

That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake county, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Beginning at a point 100 feet east of the quarter section corner between sections one and six of township 151, of ranges 43 and 41, W.; thence west along the quarter section line in sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, to a point 330 feet west of the quarter section corner between sections 3 and 4, in township 151 north of range 41 W.; thence north 60 degrees, west a distance of 600 feet, to an outlet in small coulie, in section 4 aforesaid;

Said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state, that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet and at certain seasons of each year are covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. The destructive worm which caused so much damage to the shade trees throughout the city last year, has already put in an appearance, says the Grand Forks Plaindealer. As far as known, nothing has been discovered which will destroy the bug and prevent its injuring the trees. Last year they were so thick that the trees were literally covered, and in a comparatively short time they would strip a tree of every particle of green foliage. So thick were they, in fact, that they were continually dropping on pedestrians, and the walks were at times covered with them. Attention has been called to them this early in the spring, and it is hoped that some means will be found to destroy them, or at least prevent them from ruining the shade trees throughout the city. It has been suggested that the trees be sprayed with some poisonous solution and that afterwards the trees be circled with a coating of tar or some other substance which will prevent their climbing up the trunks. If any action is to be taken, it should be done immediately, as in a short time every tree might be as barren as in mid winter.

Over at Hannah, N. D., last Thursday, Ellie, the 16-year old daughter of Wm. Dickman, met a horrible death. She and a younger sister got into a pony cart when the vicious pony jumped forward, throwing the girl's foot into the wheel. She fell back, her leg bending over the axle and her head dragging on the ground until life was extinct. She was one of the most popular young ladies in the country.

Sir:

Will you kindly give space to the following communication:

In the interest of fairness I wish to state in relation to the United States Commissionership, that had I known that Mr. Kaufer was an applicant I should have given him my support for the position. And had my friends known that Mr. Kaufer desired the position they would have heartily indorsed him, and it would have pleased me much to have a man of his competency appointed. And I will further say, that if any effort was made by Mr. Kaufer to secure the place, it was without the knowledge of myself or friends. Judge Lochren, who appointed me, is one of Minnesota's old time and stanch Democrats.

Very respectfully,

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch, of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, on the 14th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state.

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake County, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near the south line in the center of the southeast quarter of section 30 in township one hundred and fifty-two of range forty-two, and running thence north at or near the center of said quarter to the north line of said quarter, then running northwesterly through the northeast quarter of section 30, to or near the center of the west line of said quarter, then running northwesterly through the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter and lot one of section 30 in said town and range to the northeast corner of section 25, township one hundred and fifty-two, of range forty-three, then running west on the south side of section line between sections 25 and 24, 23 and 26 and 22 and 27, to a creek running through said sections of 22 and 27; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of the several aforesaid proposed side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, viz:

The first of said proposed side ditches commencing at or near the southeast corner of section 28, township 152, range 42, then running west on the north side of section line between sections 28 and 33, 29 and 32 and 30 and 31 to its terminus at a point on said main or principal ditch at or near the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 30 in said town and range.

The second of said proposed side ditches commencing at or near a small lake at or near the quarter line between lots three and 4 in section 5, township 151, range 42, then running north to the township line between townships 151, range 42, and 152, range 42, then running in a northwesterly direction through section 32 to or near the southwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 32, then running northwest through the northeast quarter of section 31 township 152 Range 42 to its terminus at a point on said main or principal ditch at or near the southwest corner of the south east quarter of the southeast quarter of section thirty in said town and range.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water, during portions of every year, becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperiling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch, or ditches, is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and very greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

P. A. Kaufer returned yesterday from a trip to Southern Minnesota. Crops there are but little advanced over those in this section. The same heavy frost that visited us Friday night was felt there, only in a severer degree.

S. L. Lewis of the firm of Lewis & Higinbotham, went to Forest City, Iowa, Friday, to bring up a string of homeseekers. Most of those Iowa and Southern Minnesota people have more money than they know what to do with, and Red River Valley farm investments are an attraction to them.

W. H. Smith, of Everly, Iowa, who bought 160 acres of land in section 8, Lake Pleasant township, last fall, came up this week to add an adjoining 80 to his holdings. He is well pleased with his investments, and has ordered The Gazette so as to keep tab on matters here.

H. B. Kaufer on Monday disposed of his lot, corner Main and 1st streets, to M. O. Sortedahl, of the Bank of Red Lake Falls, for $600. Mr. Sortedahl's new acquisition joins Fred Borcher's lot, where a new two story brick building is in course of construction, and he will build up the corner lot in conjunction with the Borcher's building. The Bank of Red Lake Falls will no doubt have a home as a result that in point of elegance will not be surpassed by that of any other similar institution here.

SMALLPOX FIGURES

REPORTS SHOW THE DISEASE IS VERY PREVALENT THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Pioneer Resident of Mankato Killed by a Train—British Capital Secured to Develop Seine River Gold Mines. Death of Professor Otto Lugger, Minnesota's Entomologist—State News in General.

St. Paul, May 27.—Dr. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, has submitted a report of the new cases of smallpox to Surgeon General Wyman. The report shows that since April 22, the date of the last report, 1,161 new cases have arisen and been reported to the board. These are scattered over all the counties of the state and are especially thick in the rural districts. In making his summary of the cases and their causes Dr. Bracken states:

"The greatest cause of this scourge or epidemic is the utter lack of care in the smaller localities and in some instances in the larger ones. Patients have been given no treatment, and in many instances there has been no quarantine at all. It is no wonder the cases have spread.

"This wholesale lack of care has driven people away from villages and hence the smaller places have suffered greatly in this respect. This all might have been avoided if the proper care had been exercised at the proper time."

PIONEER KILLED.

Fatal Accident to One of Mankato's Best Known Men.

Mankato, Minn., May 22.—James Shoemaker, president of the board of trade for a term of years, and one of Mankato's prominent citizens for over 40 years, was killed by the cars in the Omaha yards at 10:40 this morning. Mr. Shoemaker was leaning against a freight car standing on the house track, when a way freight backed in on the track, striking the former car. Mr. Shoemaker was knocked down, his body falling directly across a rail. Before he could arise two cars passed over him. No one saw the accident, but he lived long enough to tell how it happened. Mr. Shoemaker was past 77 years of age.

BRITISH CAPITAL.

Funds Secured to Develop Seine River Properties.

Duluth, May 22.—A revival of operations in the Seine river gold country is promised. It is said that Colonel J. S. Hillyer is on his way back from London with $250,000 of British money secured in London, for pushing the development of the Alice A. property in that section. He had been unable until recently to get the deal through on account of the South African war, and he has been in London two years trying to land his men. Matters in the Rainy Lake country have been very quiet for some time, and properties there have not been held at very high valuations, therefore.

PROFESSOR LUGGER DEAD.

Prominent Minnesota Scientist Succumbs to Pneumonia.

St. Paul, May 21.—Professor Otto Lugger died at 11 a. m. from pneumonia.

Dr. Lugger was one of the best known authorities in his branch of science in the United States. For 14 years he has been professor of entomology and zoology at the Minnesota School of Agriculture, and before that he was entomologist in the department of agriculture in Washington. He is the author of several valuable scientific works and has been a frequent contributor to contemporary scientific literature.

SLAUGHTERING THE MOOSE.

Indians Have a Monopoly and Are Improving It.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 27.—Cruisers returning from the Red lakes report wholesale slaughter by Indians of moose in the territory east of the reservation. Tamarac river is the principal scene of operations and canoes are coming down daily to the lake loaded with the carcasses of moose and deer.

The game laws with regard to the killing of moose by whites are so strict and so rigidly enforced that the Indians have a monopoly of the shooting and will, at the present rate of destruction, soon exterminate this species of game in the Red lake country.

LAKE FLEET TRANSFERRED.

Fifty-five Boats Taken Over by the Pittsburg Steamship Company.

Duluth, May 24.—Fifty-five of the largest boats on the Great Lakes were formally transferred to the United States Steel company when bills of sale of the Bessemer Steamship company's lake fleet to the Pittsburg Steamship company, the subsidiary corporation that will operate the steel trust's lake business, were filed in the local customs office. The consideration was given as $1 and other valuable considerations. The Bessemer company was formerly one of the Rockefeller concerns.

Conductors Elect Officers.

St. Paul, May 24.—Grand Chief Conductor E. E. Clark was unanimously re-elected as the official head of the railway conductors at their convention here. Assistant Grand Chief Conductor A. E. Garretson and Grand Secretary and Treasurer W. J. Maxwell were also requested to continue in those same offices.

BIG RUSH EXPECTED.

Ore Shipment Will Be Pushed for Next Six Months.

Duluth, May 26.—June 1 will find the iron ore shipment from Duluth, Superior and Two Harbors between 600,000 and 700,000 tons short of what they were on the same date last year, and that means that in a short time thereafter the mines, railroads and steamboats will take part in the greatest hustle the head of the lakes has seen in that line. By June 1 all of the vessels of the steel trust will be in commission, and operating as rapidly as modern methods of loading and unloading will permit, and that is very rapid. When things get in full swing the railroads will be delivering at the docks of the head of the lakes fully 3,500 cars of ore a day.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED.

Minnesota Building at Buffalo Will Be Dedicated June 18.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 22.—Commissioner Harlan P. Hall of Minnesota and Director General Buchanan of the Pan-American exposition have arranged the details for the dedication of the Minnesota state building on June 18. Big delegations are expected to come from St. Paul and Minneapolis in special trains, and Commissioner Hall assures Director Buchanan that the Minnesota dedication will be the biggest affair of the kind in the history of the fair.

WILL SUE FOR DAMAGES.

Wife, Two Daughters and Mother-in-Law Lost on the Bon Voyage.

Duluth, May 23.—B. Altman of Lanrium, Mich., whose wife, mother-in-law and two daughters were killed in the destruction of the steamer Bon Voyage last week, will sue the owners for heavy damages. The boat belongs to W. H. Singer of Duluth. A coroner's jury laid the blame for the fire that caused the deaths upon the owners and crew. On this verdict Altman will sue. He will ask for $15,000.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED.

Carried Matches Into a Barn and Perished in Flames.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 23.—Two children of Julius Poss, aged 2 and 5 years, were burned to death at their home in the town of Lida. They were last seen entering the barn with some matches, and the building was ablaze a few minutes later.

SOLD MANY ACRES.

State Disposes of Lands in Aitkin County for Good Prices.

Aitkin, Minn., May 23.—State Auditor Dunn sold 4,000 acres of land here at the state sale, some sections selling as high as $10 per acre. The general average price was $8. The sale was well attended and competition was brisk.

Landseekers Fill Crookston.

Crookston, Minn., May 23.—The city has been alive with landseekers from Iowa and Southern Minnesota points. The last excursions of the season brought over 400 men to this place. All the land agencies have been engaged all day, and all the livery teams have been out in all directions looking over the land. The largest party consisted of 33 men. This party was under the guidance of J. H. Boyd of Nevada, Ia. The Stevens' Land company had a party of 25. The excitement was so intense that there was a little trouble between the representatives of various land men at the station.

Fourteen Million Feet of Logs.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 24.—The drive of logs known as the McGuire drive, arrived at the head of Cass lake yesterday afternoon. In the drive are 14,000,000 feet of logs, which belong to the Nells Lumber company, and will be sawed in the company's mill at Cass Lake. The drive was brought from Wolf lake, and the logs were cut near Farr's, last winter.

Mingers' Body Is Found.

St. Paul, May 28.—The body of Henry Mingers, who murdered his brother-in-law, Frank Greipel, on the West Side, was found in Duncan lake. The suicide had evidently tied a 37-pound stone to his waist, waded out into the water and shot himself through the heart with a revolver. When discovered only his feet were above the surface of the water.

SCHOONER ABANDONED.

Steamer Boston Sights Masts of a Sunken Craft Near Sheboygan.

Milwaukee, May 28.—The officers of the steamer Boston report having sighted the masts of a schooner which was abandoned during the gale of Friday. It is thought that this tells of a second disaster near Sheboygan, as the wreck was sighted a score of miles from the place where slabs and hatch covers, supposedly from the schooner Hackley, were discovered Saturday. The Boston did not go sufficiently close to ascertain the name of the abandoned schooner, whose decks were awash.

LINES IN NEW HANDS.

Northern Pacific in Manitoba Transferred to Government.

Winnipeg, May 28.—The formal transfer of the Northern Pacific lines in Manitoba to the government took place on Saturday at noon. At 2 o'clock on May 31 the Canadian Northern company will assume the responsibility of operating the lines.

Superintendent Vandersllce of the Northern Pacific will leave Winnipeg for St. Paul next month, as his services here are no longer required. Superintendent Hanna will have control of all the Canadian and Northern Pacific lines in the West.

A PIONEER AND PROMOTER.

Last Monday your correspondent had the ocasion to enjoy a long and interesting conversation with the post-master of Bray. That man being a model farmer, of his community, is known to be very talkative and entertaining. During the hour spent with him, special recollections were flourishing about the past, when he as a pioneer was the sole organizer and leader in his township. It was well demonstrated how he handled the throttle and reverse lever of the entire political engine, at a time when all were new in our country: all green, knowing nothing of laws, rules and regulations. Many of the conveniences now so luxuriously enjoyed by the Brayites, are due to his exertions and endeavors, he being the organizer of township, school district and post-office. Although, but a self-made man with no school education, many with the responsibilities of an office in the town have consulted his wise judgment for advice.

He spoke with delight of the time when all followed him as a flock follows the shepherd; when all things went along quietly. But now the many new, inexperienced instruments in the local political play, will seldom harmonize. Knowing that experience and sound judgment are what count in the complex problems of our present situations, he still ought and does retain an irrisisitible authority.

Such old pioneers that have taken such active part in different advances of our country, shall leave their ineffaceable footprints on the sands of time. We shall again be glad to come in contact with such great exponents of public welfare, and the promoter of political causes in town of Bray.

Story Of A Slave.

To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife had been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by W. A. Schreiter, Druggist.

C. G. Borgen moved his crossing into his yard Monday to repair the sidewalk.

A. M. Hanson was showing land-seekers around the country last Wednesday.

P. V. Malm, of Crookston, came up last Monday to list some land. He returned the next day.

Sam Person paid up his subscription to The Gazette. Thanks. We like to deal with such men.

P. E. Smidesang has torn down the shed he formerly used for salt. Leppert Bros. handle all the salt now.

We are suprised to hear how many of our farmers have listed their land for sale. It seems as if the whole country would change hands soon. We do not like to see our industrious farmers leave, and turn the land into tha hands of unknown people, or only speculators.

Some one asked if there was to be a wedding here soon. They keep such things from the knowledge of newspaper reporters as long as possible.

In a district tributary, all the young ladies left last fall, leaving young men alone to enjoy the time and country. If they are coming back for the summer they will soon be among us. "Ack sa rolight!"

Announcement.

As I have this week entered actively into business as partner in the business establishment of my brother at Wylie, I take this opportunity to address the public and announce that I saall be pleased to meet the many customers of the oid firm and I shall endeavor to merit the continuance of their patronage and do my best to add a large number of new ones. The ambition of the new firm, as of the old, will be to serve the best interests of the public. Hoping to meet you all, whether it be for business or socially, I am,

Yours truly,

Dr. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health, has submitted a report of the new cases of smallpox to Surgeon General Wyman. The report shows that since April 22, the date of the last report, 1,161 new cases have arisen and been reported to the board. These are scattered over all the counties of the state and are especially thick in the rural districts.

The Minnesota Editorial association will leave St. Paul with its special train on June 15 for its annual 10 days' outing. The objective point will be the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, where four days and nights will be spent, followed by a day at Niagara Falls and another day at Toronto. They will arrive in Buffalo on the morning of the 17th. It is expected that Governor Van Sant and his staff will visit the exposition at the same time as the Editorial association, and join in services dedicatory of the Minnesota building on June 18.

BIG RUSH EXPECTED.

Ore Shipment Will Be Pushed for Next Six Months.

Duluth, May 26.—June 1 will find the iron ore shipment from Duluth, Superior and Two Harbors between 600,000 and 700,000 tons short of what they were on the same date last year, and that means that in a short time thereafter the mines, railroads and steamboats will take part in the greatest hustle the head of the lakes has seen in that line. By June 1 all of the vessels of the steel trust will be in commission, and operating as rapidly as modern methods of loading and unloading will permit, and that is very rapid. When things get in full swing the railroads will be delivering at the docks of the head of the lakes fully 3,500 cars of ore a day.

Woodworkers Will Strike.

St. Louis, May 21.—By unanimous vote of woodworkers employed in St. Louis planing mills it has been decided to call a general strike unless the union's demands for a 9-hour working day is complied with. Between 1,200 and 1,400 workmen will be affected.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B. 578, EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

Petition of Legal Voter to be set off.

To the board of county commissioners of the county of Red Lake and state of Minnesota.

The undersigned a legal voter, freeholder and resident of school district No. 133, in said county, respectfully represents to your Honorable Board, that he is the owner of the following described lands, situate in said district, to-wit:

N½ NW¼ of sec 13 in twp 152 R 43, (River Falls), which said lands adjoin school district No. 6 and that he desires to be set off, with his said lands, from said district No. 133 to said district No. 6, which lies adjoining, for the following reasons:

That the last named District is nearer and the road is better and if the children shall go to district 133 in the summer they have to cross a creek or go around, which will make the road nearly two miles further, and does therefore petition your honorable body to be set off accordingly.

A. P. Sandberg,
Petitioner.

Hebert, of Brooks, to constitute said board of Health.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Sutor and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

State of Minnesota, } SS.
County of Red Lake }

Whereas, at a session of the board of County commissioners of the County of Red Lake State of Minnesota, held July 21st, 1900 a petition signed by Laurent Gagner and others land owners, whose lands were liable to be affected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the work proposed therein, praying for the establishment and construction of a public drainage ditch along a route described therein, accompanied by a bond duly approved, as provided by law, was filed with the County Auditor of said County; and it appearing by proper evidence to the satisfaction of said Board of County Commissioners that at least thirty (30) days' notice has been given of the pendency of said petition and of the time at which the same would be heard, as by law provided, whereupon the said Board did, at its session on the 21st day of July A. D. 1900 proceed to hear and determine said petition; and said Board having determined that the construction of such ditch would be of public benefit and utility, and conducive to the public health, convenience and welfare, we did accept said petition, and thereupon did appoint as viewers of said proposed work three (3) resident freeholders of said Red Lake County who are not interested in the construction of said proposed work, and are not of kin to any of the parties interested therein, and directed them to meet preparatory to commencing their duties as such viewers, at the terminus of said ditch in said County at 1 o'clock P.M. on the 24th, day of September 1900: and certified copies of the said petition and order of said board appointing them as said viewers was issued to and served upon said viewers, as by law provided, as will more fully appear from the certificate of service of Charles Sampson as Sheriff of said County, now on file in the office of the County Auditor of said county, they proceeded, at the time set in said order, with a surveyor who is a civil engineer, and made an accurate survey of the line of said drainage ditch from its source to its outlet, and did cause stakes to be placed along said line at each 100 feet, as numbered progressing down stream from its source, and made and filed a report thereof; and reported that said drainage ditch would be of public utility; and in their said report made the necessary computations and assessments, description of location, the land through which the same would pass, the names of the owners, and the damages or allowances thereto, the expense attending such work, and all estimates, as required by law, duly sworn to as by lay required.

And the Auditor of said Red Lake County did, after the filing of said report, cause a notice to be given, to be published, posted and mailed, as by law provided, of the pendency of said petition and of the time and place set for the hearing thereof;

And Whereas, said Board of County Commissioners of said County of Red Lake having met in session at the time set for the hearing of said petition, to-wit, the 7th day of January, 1901 and adjourned to the 8th day of January 1901 and then proceeded to hear the same, and having found that the report of said viewers is made according to the provisions of law, and that the proposed drainage ditch to be of public utility, and conducive to public health, or of public benefit and convenience, and, from the evidence before them, that the estimated benefits of said work was greater than its total cost, including damages awarded, said board of county commissioners did then locate and establish the said drainage ditch according to the report of said viewers appointed and acting as aforesaid; which said report, together with the plats and exhibits accompanying the same was then made a part of the Resolution establishing said ditch. And the said Board of County Commissioners having from said viewers' report and the evidence before determined upon the benefite to be assessed and the damages to be awarded to the several tracts of lands as appears from the records of the proceedings of said Board had on said 8th day of January 1901.

And having accepted as true and correct the itemized statement and report of said viewers, which statement and report is on file and of record in the office of the County Auditor of said county, which said statement shows that the total sum of all expenses incurred or to be incurred in locating, constructing and establishing said ditch to be $7846.46, which sum is hereby declared to be necessary for the construction of said ditch

Now, Therefore, It is hereby resolved by the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County Minn, that bonds of said county in the agregate sum of $8,000 be issued and negotiated for the purpose of raising necessary funds for defraying the expense of establishing and construction of said ditch, said bonds to be issued, and dated the 15th day of May 1901 to bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum, payable annually to be 8 in number and to be in denominations of $1,000 each, to mature on the 15th day of May 1901. Principal and interest payable at the National Bank of Commerce in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Each of said bonds to contain a recital to the effect that they are issued in accordance with the provisions and pursuant to chapter 97 of the laws of Minnesota for the year 1887 and acts amendatory thereto:

Commissioner Sutor moved the adoption of the foregoing resolution and Commissioner Johnson seconded the motion to adopted the same. The Resolution was then declared carried upon the following vote, yea's, Hanson, Johnson, Sutor, Demann and Hebert.

None.

Whereas, Red Lake County, Minnesota, was, on the 24th day of December A. D. 1896, proclaimed by the Governor of this State duly organized, and said County has ever since such time exercised all the franchises and privileges and performed all the duties of a duly organized County under the laws of the State of Minnesota; and,

Whereas, Subsequent to said date, and prior to the 1st day of February, 1901, this county, in the due and orderly performance of the duties imposed upon this Board of County Commissioners, became lawfully indebted in the sum of at least $11,400, which is now outstanding and is represented by claims against said County duly allowed prior to February 1901, and now represented by duly issued and outstanding orders or warrants of the county, as fully appears by the records of this Board and of the proper officers of this county; and,

Whereas, Said floating indebtedness of this County has all been lawfully incurred, and is now legally owing by the County; and,

Whereas, No action has been brought, or is now pending to test the validity of any portion of the indebtedness aforesaid; and,

Whereas, No part of said indebtedness was created prior to the due organization of this county, and no part thereof represents in any manner any claims owing by this county, or any other county, prior to its due organization; and,

Whereas, This Board of County Commissioners has no funds available with which to pay the indebtedness above described and deems it expedient to fund said indebtedness to the amount of $14,000.00, as it may lawfully do under the provisions of Chapter 164 of the General laws of Minnesota for 1901:

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, That for the purpose of funding the floating indebtedness of this County, above described, to the amount of $14,000.00, which indebtedness existed on the first day of February, 1901, and no part whereof has existed for more than five years prior to this date, and the validity of no part of which was or is now pending, or is involved in any action pending on the 6th day of April 1901 or which is now pending and no part of which was created by this county, or by any other county, when the same was unorganized, there be issued the bonds of this county in the sum of $14,000.00, in denominations of $1,000 each, said bonds to bear date the 15th day of May, 1901, and to mature on the 15th day of May, 1916, and to bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum payable annually, principal and interest payable at the office of the County Treasurer of Red Lake county, Minnesota, said bonds to be executed in all respects in strict compliance with the provisions of Chapter 164 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for 1901; and,

Be It Further Resolved, That said bonds, and the coupons to be thereto attached, be substantially in the following form, to-wit:

Form of Bonds.

No (1 to 14) $1,000.

United States of America,
County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota,
Funding Bond.

The county of Red Lake, in the State Minnesota, for value received, acknowledges itself indebted, and promises to pay to bearer one thousand dollars, lawful money of the United States on the 15th day of May A. D. 1916, with interest thereon at the rate of 4½ per centum per annum, payable annually on the 15th day of May, principal and interest payable at the office of the County Treasurer of Red Lake county at the county seat of said county.

This bond is issued by the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake county, in the State of Minnesota under and by virtue of the provisions of Chapter 164 of the General Laws of the State of Minnesota for the year 1901, approved April 6th, 1901, being an act entitled "An Act to enable and authorize the Board of County Commissioners of the several counties of the State of Minnesota to issue bonds to fund the floating indebtedness of said counties, existing upon February 1st, 1901, and to levy taxes for the payment thereof;" and is issued for the purpose of funding the floating indebtedness of said county expressly authorized by said act to be funded, and not otherwise.

It is hereby certified, that all requirements of law have been fully complied with in the issuing of this bond, and,

It is further certified, that the floating indebtedness which this bond is issued to fund is a legal and valid debt of said county, and that the total debt of said county, including this bond, does not exceed the limit authorized by the Constitution or Laws of the State of Minnesota.

The faith and credit of said county of Red Lake are hereby pledged for the punctual payment of the principal and interest of this bond.

In testimony whereof, the Board of County commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota, have caused this bond to be signed by its Chairman and attested by the Auditor of said County and sealed with his official seal this 15th day of May, 1901.

GRADUATING EXERCISES

First Annual Commencement of the Red Lake Falls High School Held Saturday Night.

Event a Brilliant and Memorable Affair.

The close of this school year has signalized an important epoch for Red Lake Falls, and after years of struggling effort we have finally seen our schools develop into redolent, lusty maturity, taking up a place among the High Schools of the state, with a graduating class that has completed the course, stepping out from the threshold of our institution of learning, leaving in its wake to take up the work of the Seniors, large and enthusiastic classes in the Freshmen, Sophomore and Junior divisions.

The first graduating class numbered three. The exercises took place in the Opera House Saturday night under most auspicious circumstances. The weather was well nigh perfect, the hall was filled with a sympathetic audience which hung upon every word that was uttered, in almost solemn mood, scarce venturing to break the spell by applause of any kind. Interested and skillful ones had made the stage a perfect bower of beauty. Large and small American flags, emblems of power and success and glory spread their bright radiance about while scores of magnificent palms and potted plants lent grace and beauty to the scene. Seated at the right side of the stage and somewhat in the rear, were the three sweet girls graduates, posed like jewels in a diadem. Brunettes all, clad in simple yet artistic gowns of soft snowy white material, they might well have posed as a typification of the three graces—Faith, Hope and Charity. Beside them on the stage were Supt. E. A. Whiteley, Principal Miss Harriet Brown and Assistant Principal Miss Lulu Lusby, together with members of the Board of Education and Dr. N. M. Watson, who delivered the address.

The exercises were opened by a selection from the orchestra, which under the leadership of Franz F. Freund, has equipped itself to do honors to any occasion. The music was splendid, and the soft strains of the first number swelling into glorious cadences, then dying out into mere whispers of an echo, fitted well the sentimental mood of the vast audience. When Dr. N. M. Watson next arose to give the opening address, he spoke with much feeling, and his words found a ready response in the hearts of his hearers. In truth he said that this night, June 1, 1901, would be an historical one—one to be treasured as sacred by all the participants, more especially by the graduates themselves: one to serve as a stimulus for the aspiring students of our school, as an object lesson that must stamp itself indellibly upon their memories, and serve to spur them on so that soon they may be among the honored graduates. The speaker dwelled upon the importance to the city of maintaining a good High School, and closed with a reference to the progress that has been made in the past few years. His address was peculiarly appropriate to the occasion—full of the spirit of the hour, with eloquent allusions to the subject of education in general, and to our own affairs in particular.

After a fine violincello solo by L. P. Berthon, Miss Elizabeth Stuart Hunt rendered her essay "The work of the Weather Bureau." Her voice was peculiarly clear and her enunciation so distinct, that the audience could settle down for a comfortable and rare treat. And they were not disappointed. Her effort was one that could not fail to leave a marked impression. The subject was no easy one. Dry, hard, statistics and cold facts were so dressed and flavored by her literary skill, that they formed only one element of the composition as a whole, which may be said to have been rarely instructive and entertaining. In choosing so difficult a subject, and then surmounting the obstacles which obstruct the short-cut to immediate effect and popular favor, Miss Hunt demonstrated what her years of school training had done for her.

Miss Elizabeth McNerthney's essay was next on the program—"Mother Love." Miss McNerthney at the outset took the audience by surprise, by her fine delivery. Her soul was in her words, and she soon had her hearers enthralled. "Mother Love" is a topic, susceptible of various treatment—the deep analysis, historic research and tender sympathy which must have characterized her work of preparation were evident from the beginning, and yet few were prepared for the scholarly and finished production, so dramatically rendered. Not content with a mere appeal to the sentiment she wove a composition that was almost classic in its literary beauty, complete in detail, and applicable in a practical way to such an extent as to have had a marked tendency to emphasize the debt of gratitude humankind owes woman, and the lofty pedestal on which she has been placed by Divine ordination, as well as by her own inherent worth. At the conclusion there was a suspicious moisture in many eyes.

To Miss Josephine Annie Kans was alloted the honor of being chosen valedictorian. Her essay "Americans of To-day" appealed to the patriotism, while it tended to evoke a laudable ambition to "leave footprints in the sands of time." In discriminating, as was necessary, to confine the essay to reasonable limits, she showed rare judgment, selecting American leaders in the various divisions of national usefulness and activity, and not forgetting womankind in her allotment of favors. As she spoke, her audience recognized in her essay many marks of those attributes which gained for her the distinction of valedictorian. At the conclusion, turning to the class, she delivered the valedictory, couched in beautiful language, and the audience realized that the first graudnating exercises were soon to be a thing of the past.

Supt. F. A. Whiteley next presented the diplomas, first admonishing the recipients that they were in a measure to be sponsors for the coming graduates, that the pace they set would serve as examples for those to follow, that the diplomas in themselves were of little value and would be worth to the holders only what each would make of them. The diplomas were then presented, the orchestra struck up a lively air as if the tension had relaxed, the scene changed in a brilliant social function, mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, schoolmates and friends went forward to whisper congratulations and the beautiful event, which will long live in the memories of all present, had taken its flight with the myriads of others that had gone before. The stimulating effect that the affair, which was so pronounced a success, has had upon the youth of the city is already in evidence. There is a mark set, and many will aim to reach it.

A News Service Without Parallel.

There is ample justification for the claim made by the Chicago Record-Herald that its readers enjoy every day in the week, Sundays included, a news service that is without parallel in range and completeness. The reason is obvious—the combination of the varied and extensive facilities of the two great dailies, the Chicago Record and the Chicago Times-Herald. In addition to the independent news facilities of both paper, the Record-Herald receives the complete news service of The New York Herald, The New York Tribune and The Associated Press; and when it considered that its news columns are supplemented by all the special features so popular in The Chicago Record and The Chicago Times-Herald it will be seen that the Record-Herald holds a unique place among the great newspaper of the United States.

Red Lake County Loses.

The supreme court of the state of Minnesota in a decision handed down yesterday by Justice Lovely, has decided the question as to the division of the debt between Polk and Red Lake counties, existing at the time Red Lake was set off. The substance of which decision is favorable to the contention of Polk county, and the opinion is a reversal of the judgement of the trial court.

When Red Lake county was created from a portion of Polk, the total bonded and floating indebtedness of the county amounted to $94,342.57.

The general law covering the case was in effect that when a new county was thus set off, that it was responsible for its share of all indebtedness of the county, less the value of the county buildings, the proportion to be based upon the assessed valuation of property in the new and old counties.

The appraised value of Polk county buildings in 1896 was $32,000, leaving a debt of $62,342.57, of which Red Lake county's share was $11,245.62.

Polk demanded that Red Lake levy taxes to meet its share of this debt, and Red Lake took no notice of the demand. In order to compel payment Polk began mandamus proceedings.

In the trial in the lower court Judge Watts held that Polk county must pay the indebtedness to the value of $35,000, due first on county bonds and the balance of the indebtedness to be paid to the holders thereof as it became due by both counties, in porportions of assessed valuation at the time the new county was created; that the new county was liable not to the old county, but to the holders of the indebtedness for its proportion; that the old county could not maintain an action to compel the new county to levy tax to pay any portion of such indebtedness.

The supreme court in reversing holds that Red Lake County must pay its proportion, $11,245.62, and the interest since 1896, as it comes due, to Polk county.

Good Starter---Selects Win.

The Selects scored a victory at the home base ball grounds Monday afternoon when they crossed bats with the Crookston fans, the game resulting in a score of 8 to 9. Both sides were presented with goose-eggs in the first two innings, Crookston succeeding in running in one tally in the third and four in the fourth inning. The home team not scoring until the fifth inning, when two scores were run in by Coenen and Pouliot upon a heavy hit by Douglas, Crookston getting one score in the fifth made the game stand 2 to 6 in favor of the visiting team. The sixth inning, however, opened up a little brighter for the Selects when Healy hit a three bagger the first crack and was brought in by a grounder from Benzie. Then was a score by Wyer and safe hits by Coenen and Pouliot, who were brought in by one of Lachapelle's fielders. Lachapelle brought in the sixth score in the sixth inning upon the hits of Douglas and Healy. The Selects now had eight scores and Crookston had six, not getting any in the sixth inning. The seventh and eighth innings resulted in goose-eggs for both teams. But in the ninth inning the Crookston team run in two scores on account of a little wild throwing, so the home team got up to take their last chance for victory and succeeded in bringing in the winning score by Healy, who hit a safe two bagger.

The game was one of the most interesting ever played in the city, it being very close and no kicking on either side.

Thoele showed himself to be a very fine ball tosser, having struck out fourteen men and giving only two bases on balls, while W. S. Brekke struck out nine and gave two bases on balls. The score by innings is as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Crookston	0	0	1	4	1	0	0	0	2	—8
Red Lake Falls	0	0	0	0	2	6	0	0	1	—9

Members of the High School Athletic Association, and the basket ball team, accompanied by Supt. Whiteley, left for Fertile Sunday to be present early at the annual field and track meet between the Crookston, Red Lake Falls and Fertile High School athletes the following day.

Hammer throw: Carpenter, Crookston, 1st; 87 feet 6 inches.

Broad jump: Schasser, Red Lake Falls, 1st; 17 feet 1 inches, 2nd, Bray, 17 feet 5 inches.

Quarter mile dash: Brady, Red Lake Falls, 1st; Tommet, Crookston, 2nd.

Hop skip and jump: Clements, Crookston, 1st; 31 feet 5 inches.

Pole vault: S. Gundy, Fertile, 1st; LaDue, Fertile, 2nd; 8 feet 5 inches.

Hurdles: Crookston 1st, Red Lake Falls, Hiner 2nd.

Shot put: Fosse, Fertile, 1st; 25 feet 5 inches.

Basket ball 1st game: Crookston, 16, Red Lake Falls, 2.

Nearly 200 rooters, carrying horns, megaphones and drums, accompanied the Crookston aggregation, Fertile had plenty of husky-lunged sympathy, but Red Lake Falls was a little weak in its support, but few attending from here.

W. A. McIntyre was selected as judge of the events, and his decisions were popular.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

James H. Mayall, a resident of St. Paul since 1858, is dead, aged 83 years.

Southern Minnesota buttermakers met in annual convention at Blue Earth City last week.

Arrangements for the opening of a packing plant by the Cudahys in South St. Paul are nearing completion.

There is a curiosity on exhibition at East Grand Forks which is attracting a great deal of interest. It is a calf three weeks old which was born without eyes or tail.

The Northwestern college at Fergus Falls was formally dedicated Friday. Many ministers and friends of the institution were present and the exercises were largely attended.

The report of State Treasurer Block for May shows that the state has cash on hand amounting to $1,176,723.43, of which $31,606.89 is in the vault and the balance in different banks.

Ten students of St. Paul's seminary were ordained to the priesthood Saturday and 19 were given the order of subdeacons. Bishop Cotter officiated for Archbishop Ireland, Dr. P. R. Heffron assisting.

Edward Haynes, a retired farmer, while running across the Great Northern tracks at Murdock, was struck by a freight train and instantly killed. His body was thrown 10 feet in the air, alighting 77 feet away.

The iron ore shipments from the head of the lakes, Duluth, Two Harbors and Superior, to June 1 this season are fully 1,000,000 gross tons short of the amount which had been forwarded to the same date a year ago.

Hog cholera has made its appearance on the farm of Dr. Rathbun in Langola, Benton county. As a precautionary measure the sties, together with the diseased hogs, have been cremated. The disease spreads alarmingly fast.

Milo B. Ahlrerge of Sterling Center was instantly killed three miles southwest of Mankato by a threshing machine outfit running off an embankment. The engine and separator went over the embankment, a distance of 42 feet, crushing Ahlredge to death.

John Boltz, a prominent Wilkin county farmer, fell from the third story window of the Columbia hotel at Moorhead and broke his back. He was walking in his sleep and thought be was entering the root house on his farm when he crawled through the window.

Both flour and lumber rates were hoisted Friday at an all-day meeting of freight officials in St. Paul. The former were sent back to 19 1-2 cents lake and rail and 22 1-2 cents all-rail, while the latter were tilted 5 cents, making a 15-cent rate from Duluth to Chicago.

Professor N. H. Winchell has punctured the Anoka iron boom. The ore found on the Mailey farm on Coon creek, he says, after investigation, is of no commercial value, and he doubts whether a dollar has been invested or promised by any one having any knowledge of iron ore.

The startling information is received in Washington that there are 23 cases of leprosy in Minnesota. Most of the cases are among the Scandinavians who live in the rural settlements. The fact is also noticed that in almost every other instance the person affected is a foreigner.

Hugh Cassidy, the 12-year-old son of John Cassidy, living six miles west of Clearwater, shot himself dead with a revolver. The boy was playing with the hired man's revolver and was warned by an elder brother that it might be loaded. To show that it was not the boy fired at his own head with the above result.

Grain stocks at Duluth have diminished about 3,500,000 bushels the past week, and are now only about 10,000,000 bushels. The shipments of a week have been greater than in any May week knwon to the Duluth grain trade and are but a trifle under the record breaking weeks of the fall and winter of 1898.

A man, whose identity is not known to the police, but whose name is supposed to have been Martin V. B. Tiffany of Mankato, this state, was found dead near the lagoon in Garfield Park, Chicago. A bottle, which had contained carbolic acid, was found near the body, and it is believed the man committed suicide.

The military surgeons, in annual convention in St. Paul, condemned in the most emphatic terms the abolition of the army canteen. They declared that the canteen was abolished as the result of the influence of a lot of fanatical, meddlesome and misguided women and they unanimously passed resolutions asking for its re-establishment.

Through the efforts of Special Agent Eugene McComas of the Indian department at Washington a rescale of all dead and down timber cut on the White Earth diminished reservation last winter has been ordered by the Indian office and J. Farr, special government scaler, is now engaged in a rescale of the logs cut in the different camps operated on the reservation during the past winter.

Governor Van Sant, in a statement issued, reviewing the Ramsey tax abatement case, sustained the findings of Bank Examiner Pope and maintains that the Ramsey county auditor's office has been "conducted in a manner in violation of the law." As a result of the governor's statement Harry Griswold, chief deputy in the auditor's office, has resigned by request, and his official commission has been revoked.

THOUGHTS IN BRIEF.

In the every day "confectionery" the supply of "taffy" is greater than the demand.

The man who was alone at the first dinner in that large hotel covering thirteen acres, in Buffalo, accommodated by three hundred waiters, must have felt as highly honored as the one paying such an enormous price for the first admission to the grounds.

"The best way to get ahead in this world is to be born with one." When populists and democrats talk about McKinley and Hanna, it sounds as if the former had two heads. The same applies to the case of J. J. Hill helping the Dakota senator to speculate in New York.

O. T. Romsos, who is authorized by Uncle Sam to cancel the stamps and read the postal cards which come into the Wylie postoffice, and who sells groceries when not thus employed, spent Decoration day in the city. Fifteen years ago Mr. Romsos was a pupil of R. R. Marsh, foreman of the Journal, in a printing office.—Crookston Journal.

The Wylieites are all expansionists. They talk about how Wylie will widen it dimensions gradually and perpetually in the near future. We expect new buildings to be erected this summer, and rejoice in the progress of our town. We may say that the greatest expansionist holding interests here is Jim Hill. But his political and benevolent views do not reach this way. No competition, you see.

It is said that one of the leading newspapers of New York was born in a cellar. Wylie Gazette did not have so humble beginning. The broad light of day rested upon its earliest existence. Wylie Gazette is running on a co-operative plan, as our town does not warrant an independent paper. We are ambitions for its future, and will save no effort in its interests. We want our merchants to advertise. They help themselves by doing so. Intelligent advertising pays. The world's greatest business men testify to that. We want all to keep and read The Gazette. Subscribe for Red Lake Falls Gazette, and you get Wylie Gazette as a premium. The editor of this page wishes to engage a cartoon artist. There is plenty of material, which used in a sketch, would add largely to the interest and be a great feature of the department.

Mr. W. S. Whedon, Cashier of the First National Bank of Winterset, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at work." For sale by W. A. Schreiter.

The Ebenezer Y. P. Society met last Friday night, and an enthusiastic program was rendered. The greatest feature of the evening was the paper by Oscar Naplin. It was full of wit, but more flashing in humor. John Naplin, vice president, presided. Excuses seemed to be the order of the evening, some not knowing that they were on the program, some not having the capability to perform, and one having a swollen jaw. It at last terminated into a discussion on excuses, the subject for the evening being very little touched upon. Five lady members for a midsummer festival committee were elected. Next meeting two weeks hence.

Chas. Johnson and your correspondent were subject to the kindness of Gust Johnson, who invited them on a delightful ride to the Metropolis of our county last Monday. It was a nice day and the scenery, wherever one would look, was very beautiful, with the crop prospects it seems never better up here. That ought to leave good impressions on land seekers.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses. No Weakening of the Nerves. A Pleasant and Positive Cure For The Liquor Habit

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. B 578 EDWIN B. GILES & COMPANY, 2330 and 2332 Market Street, Philadelphia.

All correspondence strictly confidential.

Dyspeptics cannot be long lived because to live requires nourishment. Food is not nourishing until it is digested. A disordered stomach cannot digest food, it must have assistance. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests all kinds of food without aid from the stomach, allowing it to rest and regain its natural digestive fluids and it simply can't help but do good. W. A. Schreiter.

Last week, Oliver Romsos, a brother of our prosperous merchant O. T. Romsos, was a passenger from the southern part of the state who stepped off at our station to become a new citizen here. We express to him our hearty welcome, and hope that he may enjoy the same success as his brother, Ole, who came here a half score years ago, and has now worked up a nice business. The two brothers will be in partnership in the business and will no doubt push their establishment ahead at a rapid rate.

Frank Jeffers, county superintendent of schools, was seen at our burg last Monday, having visited schools around. He spoke of the new paragraph in the school law, which provides that four school districts may join together and make a graded school. Each pupil would get more time in the class in such a school, which would insure a better education. Each class can get but from five to fifteen minutes where one teacher has in charge six or seven grades. In that way very little can be accomplished. Mr. Jeffers thought Wylie would be a good centre for four districts, and advocated the erection of such an institution here. Of course, an election will have to be called, when every freeholder will have a chance to vote upon it.

COME TO THE INSTITUTE.

As announced the State Farmers' Institute is June 11. Farmers especially should make it a point to be there, for they will have an opportunity of hearing in one day what it has taken others years to learn in the way of farming and stock-raising. Get your neighbors out to this institute and neither you nor they will ever regret it. It may be the opportunity of a lifetime. Be sure to come early and receive a valuable book which tells you all about it. Its value is estimated from $5 to $25 and is a handy manual for the farm and home. The business men are as much interested in the development as anybody, and when the opportunity presents itself is the time to make the most of it. It remains with them to make this a success by getting everybody interested and induce people to attend.

"IN TEN LINES."

That's Durand. He has taken a berth with the Daily Journal of Crookston, as city editor, but what he won't edit from patent medicine ads to the heavy editorials; after he gets his hand in, won't be worth mentioning. We have been looking for something Durandish from the Journal, and are first gratified by these "In Ten Lines" items, that are unmistakable. F. L. Durand has a style all his own. It may not be classical, but like the rag time music it's popular. He is one of the ablest writers and one of the most sleuth-like and successful newsgathers in the northwest. The paper that can boast his allegiance is fortunate.

In Norman county they are going to try the experiment of a township school district, and a township near Perley has already been organized for this purpose. The plan is to have a building centrally erected and a graded school opened, the children of the township to be conveyed to and from the school in conveyances to be furnished by the district. This project is a new venture that has lately been considerably discussed and the experiment will no doubt greatly interest the educators in other parts of Minnesota. The advantages claimed for this new plan of maintaining rural graded schools are numerous and if the results in Norman county prove satisfactory it may in time entirely change the present school system in the state.

J. J. Soll, who for several years past has been associated with Harry Ives in publishing the St. Hilaire Spectator, has disposed of his interests to Mr. Ives and will leave the journalistic field to embark in other business at St. Hilaire. Mr. Soll is one of the best known craftsmen in this section of the Northwest, and is immeasurably popular with the boys. We are loth to lose him from the fraternity, for the advancement of which he has labored so energetically and effectively.

Cold Steel of Death.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis, by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure Stomach and Liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch, of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, state of Minnesota, on the 14th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls, in said county and state.

Adam Zeh.
County Auditor of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake County, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near the south line in the center of the southeast quarter of section 30 in township one hundred and fifty-two of range forty-two, and running thence north at or near the center of said quarter to the north line of said quarter, then running northwesterly through the northeast quarter of section 30, to or near the center of the west line of said quarter, then running northwesterly through the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter and lot one of section 30 in said town and range to the northeast corner of section 25, township one hundred and fifty-two of range forty-three, then running west on the south side of section line between sections 25 and 24, 26 and 23 and 22 and 27, to a creek running through said sections of 22 and 27; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of the several aforesaid proposed, side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, viz:

The first of said proposed side ditches commencing at or near the southeast corner of section 28, township 152, range 42, then running west on the north side of section line between sections 28 and 33, 29 and 32 and 30 and 31 to its terminus at a point on said main or principal ditch at or near the southwest corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 30 in said town and range.

The second of said proposed side ditches commencing at or near a small lake at or near the quarter line between lots three and 4 in section 5, township 151, range 42, then running north to the township line between townships 151, range 42, and 152, range 42, then running in a northwesterly direction through section 32 to or near the southwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 32, then running northwest through the northeast quarter of section 31 township 152 Range 42 to its terminus at a point on said main or principal ditch at or near the southwest corner of the south east quarter of the southeast quarter of section thirty in said town and range.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water, during portions of every year, becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperilling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch, or ditches, is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and very greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 29th day of April, 1901.

Miss Elize Lizotte returned Sunday from Cass Lake, where she has been visiting friends the past two months.

Mesdames Simlal Brown and Wm. Kindseth left yesterday for Minneapolis for a visit with friends and relatives.

Frank King, of Grand Rapids, is a guest at the home of his uncle, H. E. Adams. Mr. King will probably remain here.

John Svvard arrived in the city Friday from Solway. He has been employed the past winter as cook in A. J. Sawyer's camps.

Freeman Fletcher returned to the city Thursday. He will shortly go to North Dakota to take the examination before the state board of dentistry.

Do you take a daily newspaper? The Gazette is prepared to accept subscriptions to The St. Paul Daily News and Gazette combined. $1.80 for both papers one year.

Misses Carley, Fahy, Lusby, Owen and Hunt, Mrs. J. B. Armstrong, and Messrs. Watson, Healy, Thoele and Armstrong enjoyed the beauties of Maple Lake Sunday.

Noel Delorme, who attended St. John's college the past year, returned home Thursday. He left yesterday for North Yakima, Wash., where he expects to find employment in a store.

C. A. Gerlach and Ernest LeFaive wheeled to Fertile Sunday. The rain necessitated a change of program and they returned home on the Great Northern Tuesday via Crookston.

Wilfrid Lemieux made a trip to Turtle River last Saturday and is enthusiastic over the prospects of the Beltrami county villages. He, in company with a citizen of Turtle River, will put up a store there.

Mike Wilmes returned from Montana Sunday. Mike is now Boss farmer on the large Crow Reservation; near the site of Custer's last battle field, and his new duties are congenial, he says, with good pay attached.

When the new addition is completed, the Hotel Markham of Bemidji will have 75 rooms, besides ample office, bar and sample room, making it one of the largest and most modern hotels in the northern part of the state.

Over in the Thirteen Towns they are getting nice prices for farm lands—L.W. Larson has just sold a 320 acre stock farm in Rosebud township for $6,000 cash to Ole Johnson, of Granite Falls, who will import some blooded stock for the place.

Prosper Wilmes left Saturday for Osseo, where he will visit his parents and other relatives. It is some time since Prosper was back to the old home, but he has the consolation of feeling that he goes back more Prosperous each time, as a result of judicious investments in farm property hereabouts.

Mrs. W. A. Schreiter is entertaining her mother, Mrs. John Hoerning, and her brother, Charles Hoerning, of Oshkosh, Wis., who arrived on the Great Northern Tuesday, accompanied by Mrs. Carl Kretzchmar, of Thief River Falls, whom they had been visiting. They will spend several weeks here.

Enoch Hastad and his retinue bound for Grugla, Marshall county, passed through here Saturday. The outfit was one which will be an acquisition to the neighborhood fortunate enough to secure them. Among their other assetts were 32 head of fine stock, mostly milch cows. Hastad has just sold out his real-estate in Norman county.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Cyr returned home from Crookston Saturday after a stay of two weeks under treatment for his hearing, by Dr. Morley, the eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. Mr. Cyr's hearing has rapidly been growing worse, and another year would, according to the doctor, have left him totally deaf. He went back to Crookston Tuesday for a month's stay, after which he expects to return permanently benefited.

F. Vaughan, of New Auburn, is in the city, a guest at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. G. Grosholtz. Mr. Vaughan is one of the pioneers of this state, and owns considerable of that valuable farm land in Sibley county. Mr. Vaughan was accompanied as far as Beltrami by a neighbor who has taken a ten thousand dollar ditching contract in that vicinity. He operates with an immense plow run by two huge capstans, that exert 480 horse power. By means of this a ditch is constructed, that is seven feet across the top, three feet at the base and three feet deep by one passage of the plow. The work is being done at a cost of 50 cents a rod which is half the price at which contracts for such work are usually taken. He has secured contracts that will keep him busy all summer; and while making a good thing out of it is also doing much for the land on which he operates in the way of successful drainage.

The State Farmers' Institute will convene Tuesday morning.

H. E. Adams went to Crookston Friday, returning the following day. While there he secured the services of a first-class laundress to take charge of the work in the laundry he is about to start here.

Peter Morrissette, after traveling over the greater portion of the Pacific Coast country has finally decided to return to Minnesota, and will go to Cass Lake to re-engage in the barber business with his brother, L. N.

If the Cass Lake Times is to be believed, fishing is good over there, three sports having landed one hundred and two wall-eyed pike, the largest one tipping the beam at six and a half pounds. No wonder Nap. Morrissette likes to live over there.

The M. & I. Railroad has reached Turtle River, a new depot has been completed and a station agent installed. Jas. Brady Jr., formerly of this place, has charge of the school at that place, and is doing a stroke of locating business on the side.

Mrs. Henry Conklin has returned to the city after a short stay with her husband at Crookston, and will visit at the home of her mother, Mrs. O. LaFreniere, for a couple of weeks before departing for Minot, N. D., where Mr. Conklin has secured a permanent position as boiler maker in the Great Northern shops.

Fertile is trying to inaugurate a building boom, and two very fine brick blocks are in contemplation,—the first at a cost of $10,000 to be erected by the Citizens bank and the firm of Erickson & Vannet, and the second by H. L. Gaylord at a cost of $5,000. Architect Strassburger of Crookston furnished the plans and specifications, which is ample assurance that the architecture will be all that can be desired.

O. Mikkelson returned to the city Saturday from his former home at Iona, accompanied by his son, and a goodly supply of household effects, together with a blooded Jersey cow and calf. Mr Mikkelson has purchased the Marchildon residence and will move in as soon as the place is vacated, which will be shortly, as Mrs. Marchildon and children will go to Tacoma to join Mr. Marchildon, who has decided to make his home on the Coast. Mrs. Mikkelson will come up from Iona in the course of a couple of weeks. Thus the old settlers leave, and new ones take their places. While we say good-bye to the old friends with deep regret, we extend our new citizens a cordial welcome, and trust their venture among our midst will prove in every way pleasant and profitable.

Class Night.

The class night play "A Box of Monkeys," was one of the very best things ever witnessed in the city. The young ladies participating—Misses Hunt, Kaus, McNerthney, Pirath and Turpin—did exceedingly well in furnishing an evening of rare fun and enjoyment. The new orchestra made its first appearance, and added materially to the entertainment. Miss Pauline Nelland's rendition of the class prophecy, written by Mrs. L. C. Simons, who was a member until last year, captivated the audience at the outset. The receipts, however, were not as large as they should have been.

Tickets to the Modern Woodmen of America meeting, St. Paul, are sold by the Great Northern one fare for the round trip. Tickets on sale June 8th to 13th inclusive good to return June 15th. Parties wishing to stay longer can have their tickets extended for return to July 15th by depositing ticket with W. J. Dutch, city ticket agent, Gt. Nor. Ry., 332 Robert st. St. Paul, Minn., and paying 50c deposit fee.

Adam Fritz, of St. Paul, arrived in the city Tuesday to spend a week visiting with his son Harry, who has a fine farm immediately west of the city. Mr. Fritz Sr. gets tired collecting rents from his large brick block in the city, and attending to other business matters there, and likes to come here to rest up occasionally. In fact he is so well pleased with this vicinity, that he is seriously thinking of coming here to live.

Decoration Day was duly observed in this city last Thursday. The Old Soldiers marched to the High School building where they were joined by the pupils and teachers. The parade, accompanied by Mayor Watson and members of the City Council, drew up in front of the City Hall, where appropriate remarks were made by the Mayor, and Thos. Germo introduced as the speaker. Mr. Germo was taken by surprise, and was utterly unprepared to speak, yet he made a very creditable and appropriate speech. St. Joseph's cemetery was later visited, and the graves of the heroes of the Civil War who repose there were decorated with flowers. While not elaborate or pretentious, yet the observance of Memorial Day here was impressive and beautiful.

CUBA AND PORTO RICO.

Members of the Cuban convention who voted to adopt the Platt amendment assert that any attempt at further action will disrupt their forces and put the Radicals in complete control of the situation.

Bids for the sewering and paving of Havana were opened Wednesday. Only one bid was received, and this was from Onderdonk, McClellan & Daly of New York. The amount specified was $13,855,575.01. The bid was referred to the city engineer.

The decision of the United States government not to accept the Cuban constitution as adopted by the Havana convention caused great surprise and keen disappointment to those members of the convention who voted in favor of the constitution as adopted.

The Platt amendment has been accepted by the Cuban constitution convention by a vote of 15 to 14. The actual vote was on accepting the majority report of the committee on relations which embodied the amendment with explanations of certain clauses.

PHILIPPINE NEWS.

The Philippine commission has begun its final tour of the islands.

Ambassador Choate has been directed to issue passports to residents of the Philippine islands who make application for them.

The Philippine commission has approved the recommendations of Captain Martin for the establishment of a modern fire department in Manila at an initial expense of $70,000.

It is said that the supreme court's decision in regard to the Philipppines places them on the same basis as Cuba, giving the United States the right to enforce the collection of duties on commerce between this country and the island.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON DITCH PETITION.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., May 23, 1901.

Notice is hereby given that a petition for a public ditch, of which the following is a copy, was filed in the office of the county auditor in and for the county of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, on the 20th day of May, A. D. 1901, and which said petition will be presented to the board of county commissioners of said county of Red Lake, and a hearing had thereon before said board, at their next session, on the 14th day of June A. D. 1901, at the auditor's office in the court house, in the city of Red Lake Falls in said county and state.

Adam Zeh,
County Auditor of Red Lake county, Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake county, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of section 10, township 152, range 42, then running south on the section line through sections 10, 15 and 22 to about the northwest corner of the southeast quarter of section 22, then running southeast to about the center of the south line of said quarter, then running south on or near the center of the northeast and the southeast quarters of section twenty seven, then running southwesterly through the northeast quarter of section 34 to the southwest corner of said quarter at a point where Clearwater River crosses said quarter; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of the said proposed main or principal ditch and said side ditch or ditches which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water during portions of every year becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperilling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch or ditches is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 16th day of May, A. D. 1901.

Petition For a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota:

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows:

That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake county, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same: and that the construction of said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Beginning at a point 160 feet east of the quarter section corner between sections one and six of township 151, of ranges 43 and 44, W.; thence west along the quarter section line in sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, to a point 263 feet west of the quarter section corner between sections 3 and 4, in township 151 north of range 44 w.; thence north 60 degrees, west a distance of 600 feet, to an outlet in small coulie, in section 4 aforesaid:

Said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state, that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet and at certain seasons of each year are covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water, during portions of every year, becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperilling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch or ditches is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large; that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and very greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as to your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to insure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

Whereas, default has occurred and now exists in the terms and conditions of that certain mortgage which was executed and delivered by Ludvig Arneson and Lisa Marie Arneson, his wife, mortgagors, to and in favor of D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of Minnesota, mortgagee, and which bears date the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1886, and is recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Polk, in the state of Minnesota, on the Twenty-first day of October, A. D. 1886, in book 25 of Mortgages at pages 448 to 450 and is also recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county of Red Lake and State of Minnesota in book 16 of Mortgages at page 590, and,

Whereas, there is due at the date hereof, under and by virtue of said mortgage the sum of Thirty-four and 68-100 ($34.68) dollars for the principal and interest thereon, and,

Whereas, no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the said debt or any part thereof, and,

Whereas, said D. S. B. Johnston Land Mortgage Company has changed its name so as to read D. S. B. Johnston Land Company,

Now, therefore notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the same will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein and hereinafter described, and the said sale will take place at two (2) o'clock in the afternoon, on the 18th day of June, A. D. 1901, at the front door of the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of Red Lake at Red Lake Falls in said county. The premises described in said mortgage, and which will be sold to satisfy the same are described as the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter and the east half of the southeast quarter and lot numbered one all of section numbered Two in township numbered One hundred fifty-three in Range numbered Forty-five in the county of Red Lake (formerly county of Polk) in the state of Minnesota.

Petition for a Public Ditch.

To the Honorable, the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

The petition of the undersigned respectfully shows: That your petitioners are the owners of certain lands in said Red Lake County, over and through which the hereinafter described ditch, drain or water course, as well as the hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches, will pass, and which lands will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for the expense of the construction of the same; and that the construction of the said hereinafter described side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or ditches is necessary to secure the object of the improvement contemplated by the construction of said main or principal ditch. That the following is a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch, viz:

Commencing at or near a point twenty-six (26) feet north of the one quarter section corner between sections twenty-four (24) and twenty-five (25) of township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-four (44) west, then easterly parallel to said graded road and twenty-six (26) feet distant northerly therefrom to a point twenty-six (26) ft west and twenty-six (26) ft north from the corner for sections nineteen (19), twenty (20), twenty-nine (29) and thirty (30), in township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north range forty-three (43) west, thence southerly parallel to section line between sections twenty-nine (29) and thirty (30) and twenty-six (26) feet distant westerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet northerly and twenty-six (26) feet westerly from the corner for sections twenty-nine (29) thirty (30), thirty-one (31) and thirty-two (32), of township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-three (43) west, thence easterly parallel to section line between sections twenty-nine (29) and thirty-two (32) and thirty (30) feet northerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet west and thirty (30) feet north from the corner for sections twenty-eight (28), twenty-nine (29), thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33), thence southerly parallel to section line between sections thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33) and thirty (30) feet distance westerly therefrom to a point thirty (30) feet west and ten (10) feet north from the corner for sections four (4), five (5), thirty-two (32) and thirty-three (33) in townships one hundred and fifty-three (153) and one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, range forty-three west, thence easterly parallel to the township boundary line and ten (10) feet distant northerly therefrom to the right bank of the Red Lake river, the said Red Lake river being the termination of the said ditch; said last named point being the terminus of said proposed main or principal ditch.

Your petitioners further state that there are large tracts of lands lying adjacent to and in the vicinity of the line of said proposed main or principal ditch and said proposed side ditch or ditches, which will be directly and greatly benefited by the construction thereof, said lands being low and wet, and at certain seasons of every year covered with water, thereby rendering said lands unproductive and useless. That said water, during portions of every year, becomes stagnant and foul, rendering the the atmosphere in the vicinity thereof impure and unwholesome, thereby endangering, imperilling and affecting the health of the occupants of said lands and of the public. That for the reasons aforesaid the construction of such ditch, or ditches, is necessary, and also for the reason that by the construction thereof, there will thereby be removed from off said lands, said waters, thereby promoting the health of the public at large: that the same will be of great benefit to the public highways in the vicinity thereof, by preventing in many places the overflowing of such highways.

That large tracts of said lands that are unproductive and useless will thereby be reclaimed and very greatly increased in value, all to the great benefit, utility, convenience and welfare of the public as well as your petitioners.

Therefore your petitioners respectfully ask that such proposed ditch or ditches be constructed as provided by Chapter 258, General Laws of Minnesota, 1901, and that the same may be of such width and depth as to ensure the effectual and permanent drainage of said lands.

Dated this 9th day of May, A. D. 1901.

ORDER FOR HEARING AND NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.

State of Minnesota, } ss.
County of Red Lake. }
In Probate Court,
Special Term
May 11, 1901.

In the matter of the estate of Mathilda A. Hall
deceased.

On receiving and filing the petition of Nels P. Rasmusson, of Valley City, N. D., representing, among other things, that Mathilda A. Hall, late of Red Lake county, on the 8th day of May, A. D. 1901, at St. Hilaire, in said county, died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of her death leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a brother-in-law of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Andrew P. Hanson granted:

It is ordered that said petition be heard before this court on Monday, the 10th day of June, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the probate office in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Falls Gazette, a weekly newspaper, printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 11th day of May, A. D. 1901.

By the Court,
J. T. Knight,
(Seal) Judge of Probate.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

training in the church. She was their mother. They went out from her home to do a work they never could have done if they had not been trained and taught at her feet."

"Is not the Salvation Army as much the church as any other form of organization where Christian disciples get together in Christ's name?" asked Rhena.

"Yes, I think so," replied Andrew.

"I mean to prove it by joining both," said Stuart, looking at Rhena.

"You can't join the army without giving up your own wishes and obeying the orders of your superior officer," said Rhena slyly.

"It's one of the rules of the army also, I understand," added Andrew, with a twinkle, "that a private cannot even marry without asking the consent of the commanding officer. Isn't that so, Miss Rhena?"

"I've asked it and obtained it," said Stuart. "The commanding officer says, 'Get married as soon as you recover from your present illness.'"

"She doesn't, either," said Rhena hastily. Then, as Andrew and Eric began to laugh, she blushed and said, to hide the confusion: "We are getting away from our original question. Stuart wants to know how to spend his money. It seems too bad if we can't any of us tell him how."

"I can tell him how to use several thousand," said Eric, who, after expressing his own mind on the church question, was once more the calm, thoughtful, even attractive, man he really was. Eric had great powers, but they were not developed.

"Well, go on!" cried Stuart.

"The miners need new houses in Cornishtown. What could be a better way to invest $10,000 or $20,000 than to put up a hundred substantial houses that would really be homes?"

"What do you think of that?" asked Stuart, turning naturally to Rhena.

"It ought to be done," she answered softly, "and a good deal more. I am not thinking of the houses alone, but of the men, women and children who live in them. There is no doubt they have had all these years the most miserable quarters. What can be expected of a family living in a cabin of only three rooms at most? How much refinement and civilization can come out of such surroundings? Stuart, you must drain the settlement and"—

"I'll drain the whole neighborhood!" cried Stuart. "And the houses shall be built at once. Why leave you let me lie here all this time like a useless thing when so much is needed to be done?"

Just then Dr. Saxon came in. He entered as usual the minute he had rapped a peculiar knock known by every one in Champion, stopping outside only long enough to say, "It's the doctor."

The minute he appeared Stuart began to abuse him for not getting him well quicker.

"I'll never pay you, Doc, unless you give me something that will let me out of this in a day or two, or else I'll sue you for malpractice!"

"If you do, I'll sue the company for half a million dollars' worth of practice done on the miners since the strike and the fire. I'm going to retire after this winter if I can law the company out of what they owe me. But you can get out again in a day or two. The only thing that ails you now is heart trouble, and I can't cure that. You are in a very dangerous condition."

The doctor looked at Rhena, and so did Stuart, and then, after a moment of sober thoughtfulness, the doctor smiled. It was a rare smile and made his rugged, storm beaten face almost handsome. He was already moving toward the door to go out. He was in a great hurry that morning for a wonder, he said, and simply stepped in on his way up the hill to see how Stuart was.

"I mean to prove it by joining both."

"Stop him!" cried Stuart to Eric. "Say, doctor, don't go yet. We need your advice. We want your help in making plans for the relief"—

"Oh, get out for plans for relief! I have no sympathy with them! The more you give those ungrateful, obstinate old— I tell you, Stuart, you'd better keep your money. You'll need it when you begin housekeeping. Every time when you go down town your wife will want you to bring home a mouse trap and a lemon squeezer or a barrel of pepper or something. Eric, if you try to stop me I'll throw you through the window."

The doctor rushed out of the door and slammed it shut. The next minute he opened it, and, looking in, he said gravely: "If you mean to do anything worth while about the draining or building new houses, I'll give you a hint or two when I get time."

The next minute he was gone, and Stuart could see from the little window a vision of Ajax and the cutter as they tore up the hill.

"I wonder if the doctor will ever get time?" said Andrew. "I wonder what he will do when he gets to the other country, where there is to be no more pain nor crying nor death?"

"I declare it puzzles me to guess what he'll do. I can't imagine him sitting on the edge of a rose colored cloud taking it easy," replied Stuart. "I have no doubt there will be some arrangements made for his special benefit."

"Do you think we shall all be as busy there as we are here?" asked Rhena.

"Of course," Andrew answered. "Only we shall have plenty of time to do things as we want. I love to believe that I can raise roses of all sorts and have, say, a thousand years to experiment on new varieties without feeling all the time that I ought to be making that parish call or writing that sermon or getting ready for that committee meeting."

"You don't believe there will be roses in the other world, do you?" inquired Eric quizzically.

"I don't?" exclaimed Andrew. "What would heaven be without roses and little children?"

"I'm not quarreling with your idea. I like it," replied Eric. "I hope there will be roses there without the thorns. Meanwhile we are living in the town of Champion, where the thorns outnumber the roses two to one. If we make this little spot on earth more like heaven, perhaps we'll be in a condition to enjoy the other place better when our turn comes to go to it."

"There's no doubt of it!" Stuart spoke, with an emphasis that meant a world of action. "As certain as the Lord raises me up from this weakness in body I will render him an account of my stewardship. Eric, you and Andrew can arrange the details of this work. Our duty is imperative. It is as clear as light to me. Those houses shall be built as fast as money can do it, and the other cabins shall be torn down and new ones put up in their places."

"How about that hall dedicated to the interests of labor?" asked Eric, smiling.

"Up it goes as soon as we can get at it. I don't like the idea of calling it a hall for labor interests. I tell you, Eric, the rich need preaching to more than the poor. They need to be taught their duties and privileges. The hall will be built, but it shall be called the Hall of Humanity. It shall be dedicated to the entire community, and whatever is said or preached or sung in it shall be for the union of men, for their good as members of the human family. Every unselfish, Christlike word and deed we can think of shall be given a place within its walls. Oh, I've done some thinking since I began to get well! But first to the house building. Rhena, you can help us in the details of this important work."

Stuart never spoke a truer word. Rhena entered into the plans for the building with all her enthusiasm. She outlined the most satisfactory and sensible arrangement for the structure of the new houses, and during the next few weeks she was the life of the project, her great common sense and practical knowledge of the needs of the occasion assisting Eric and Andrew wonderfully as the entire work grew under their hands.

Two days after this conference in Eric's cottage Stuart was able to go home. The evening of the day he returned was the scene of a conversation between him and Aunt Royal and Louise that is necessary to relate. Both his aunt and Louise had been several times to see him while he was at Eric's. It was clear to Stuart that no course he could take on the lines now laid out by his new definition of life could possibly meet with the approval of these women.

The conversation started with a statement Stuart made concerning his coming marriage.

"We shall be married as soon as Miss Dwight can get ready." Stuart had reference to her Salvation Army duties and the work necessary to the building of the houses.

"I suppose she is ordering her trousseau from Paris? I should love to see a Salvation Army gown made after the latest European style," said Louise, with a sneer.

"Do you expect to be married in the army hall?" asked Aunt Royal, with a frigid look at her nephew.

"My wife," said Stuart, with a distinctness that ignored all this, but made one point very plain, "will be the undisputed mistress of this house. She is the peer of any woman living in education, accomplishment and grace, and she is the superior of most of them in her spiritual refinement and self sacrifice."

"Are you going to bring her here?" asked Louise, with a curious look.

"Where else should I bring the woman I marry?" asked Stuart, turning to Louise.

"I didn't know but that Miss Dwight would prefer to live in a humbler fashion after all her talks and prayers about giving up this and that and the other. But of course if she decides to enjoy the sinful luxuries of life after her roughing it in army halls you know what I shall do?"

Stuart did not answer. Aunt Royal watched him closely.

"I shall simply leave, that is all," continued Louise. "I don't live under the same roof with Rhena Dwight as dictator over me."

Stuart was about to say something, but Louise interrupted him. "I shall be able to care for myself. You needn't plan for anything different, for I have made up my mind. Aunt Royal will let me stay with her until I am married. I shall be glad to go to New York, anyway. I'm getting tired of the winter up here, with all this gloom and sacrifice and suffering so prominent. So don't put off the happy wedding day on my account, Stuart."

"Louise, I want to speak to you alone a few minutes, Aunt," continued Stuart, politely, but plainly, "will you kindly excuse me if I take Louise into the library?"

"Oh, by all means," replied Aunt Royal, who was outwardly cool and placid, but inwardly a raging fire.

So Louise went with Stuart, although she said at first she would not go. She was under his dominion when he exerted his will.

"Louise"—Stuart stood facing the pretty countenance, and a look of pity and love crept over his own—"I cannot bear to think that we are going to have this misunderstanding to separate us. Cannot you and Miss Dwight be friends?"

"No. It is out of the question," replied Louise shortly. She was thinking of the lie she told Rhena, and she knew that, no matter if Rhena was ready to forgive it, now that she was going to be Stuart's wife, there was a gulf of difference between them, and, besides, she was out of sympathy with all of Stuart's present plans of life.

"Then if that is out of the question, Louise, there is another matter I must speak of again. I refer to your promise to marry Vasplaine. Be patient with me when I tell you, Louise, dear, that, out of the love I have for you, I would almost rather see you dead than married to that"—

"Is this what you called me in here for?" cried Louise furiously, raising her voice. "I will not listen to it. You are a coward to attack him so behind his back."

"Louise," interrupted Stuart, who was deathly pale, "it is out of love for you that I speak. I forgive your misunderstanding of my motive," he added as he heard Aunt Royal nearing the door. "If the time should ever come, dear, when you feel the need of my love, my heart and home will always be open to you."

How little as he spoke Stuart thought of the meaning of those words, even if he did look with some certainty into the future. Louise turned from him, and their interview ended. It was only one more part of the evidence, daily growing stronger in Stuart's mind, of the great difference between his old life and the new. He realized now, as he never had thought to know, the meaning of those words, "A man's foes shall be those of his own household." The division line had been drawn the minute he chose to follow Jesus Christ, and the separation of necessity had gone on widening between him and the old life, still represented by Louise and his aunt. He did not blind himself in the least as to the cause. It was very plain. He could not be a Christian and walk hand in hand with them nor they with him. The two ways led in exactly opposite directions.

But all this was only a part of the testing of his manhood. He had a far more severe choice to make at the end of the week.

Matters were in this condition. The building of the new houses was going on with as much rapidity as circumstances would permit. A big storm had interrupted the workmen. The immense snows were a serious hindrance. Added to all the rest was the difficulty of getting workmen during the cold weather. The miners who had been burned out were quartered all over the town. The hotel had arranged for accommodation, Stuart providing all the expenses there. The Salvation Army did its share and more too. But the discomfort and crowding and suffering were of such a nature that even money, lavishly as Stuart was willing to use it, could not much more than provide a temporary and partial relief. He was down at the Salvation Army hall one afternoon at the close of the week trying to make some arrangements for better accommodations. Rhena was at work with some of the women at the other end of the hall when Eric came in hastily. He was followed in a few minutes by Andrew.

"News from De Mott is serious," said Eric. "The men down there are threatening to pull up the pumps again. They are at the end of their provisions and starving."

"I can't feed the entire mining country, Eric!" said Stuart a little sharply.

"I know it." Eric sat down on a bench and put his face between his hands. At once Stuart repented him of the sharp word.

"Forgive me, Eric. I spoke angrily. I will do all in my power."

"It isn't that," replied Eric in a muffled voice. "The men have refused to listen to me any longer and say they mean to act on their own account. My authority is all over!"

"Nonsense!" But Stuart saw that [illegible]

ANOKA COUNTY IRON

PROFESSOR WINCHELL HAS A VERY POOR OPINION OF IT.

Owners of the Steamer Bon Voyage Plead Limitation of Liability in a Damage Suit—White Earth Reservation Indians Are to Have Their Timber Rescaled—News of the State in General.

St. Paul, May 31.—Dispatches from Duluth say that officials of the Minnesota Iron company deny that they contemplate investing in supposed iron properties near Anoka.

In an interview Professor N. H. Winchell, state geologist, says that there is only bog iron in Anoka county, and that it has no commercial value.

Professor Winchell has furnished the following signed statement:

"I have just returned from a trip to Anoka. I regret to say that the iron ore found there is of no commercial value whatever. It has no relation to the iron ore of the Lake Superior region, but is a surface deposit such as is common in low ground, known as bog ore, and exists in many places.

"It would be well if the subject were dropped by the newspapers, as such agitation, having no valid foundation, only injures the state.

"I don't think $1 has been invested nor promised by any one who has any knowledge of iron ore."

LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.

Owners of Bon Voyage Take Refuge in Old Statute.

Duluth, June 3.—The White Line Towing company, owners of the steamer Bon Voyage, which was destroyed by fire near Houghton, Mich., about three weeks ago, resulting in the drowning of four passengers, has filed in the United States court a petition for limitation of their liability. This will have the effect of disposing of all claims against them for damages, the total of which would have been about $20,000.

The law under which the petition is filed was passed by congress 50 years ago to encourage shipbuilding. Briefly, it limits the liability of owners to the value of the boats. If the boat is partially destroyed the appraisers determine the value of the wreck and the sum is divided among the claimants. In the case of the Bon Voyage the loss is practically total and the claimants will probably get nothing.

INDIANS WIN THEIR POINT.

Rescale of Timber Cut on White Earth Reservation.

White Earth, Minn., June 4.—Through the earnest efforts of Special Agent Eugene McComas of the Indian department at Washington a rescale of all dead and down timber cut on the White Earth diminished reservation last winter has been ordered by the Indian office and J. Farr, special government scaler, is now engaged in a rescale of the logs cut in the different camps operated on the reservation during the past winter. Mr. Farr is being assisted by a crew of competent scalers.

This move on the part of the government has pacified the manifest turbulence and unrest lately prevailing among the Indians on the reservation.

WILL LOSE THEIR HOMES.

Settlers at Sparta, Minn., Disappointed Over Judge Sanborn's Decision.

Sparta, Minn., May 29.—The settlers were much disappointed over Judge Sanborn's decision in the famous Island Lake land case, as they had anticipated a decision favorable to them. It is now thought they will give up the fight. They have spent years on the land putting all their money into improvements and all they could earn. Large deposits of iron ore will be found on these lands as a valuable mine adjoins them. Sparta citizens now expect a boom, as there will be a saw mill built to cut the lumber from the lands, and crews of the test pitters will be put to work at once.

GUN WAS LOADED.

Twelve-Year-Old Boy Kills Himself With a Revolver.

Clearwater, Minn., June 1.—Hugh Cassidy, the 12-year-old son of John Cassidy, living six miles west of this place, shot himself dead with a revolver. The boy was playing with the hired man's revolver and was warned by an older brother that it might be loaded. To show that it was not the boy fired at his own head, with the above results.

Foul Play Feared.

Winona, Minn., May 31.—Oscar Van Vleet, the 17-year-old son of J. Van Vleet of Trempealeau, was on Thursday reported to be missing from his boardinghouse at Rice lake. His father, on learning of the disappearance, went to the scene but was unable to find any trace of his son. It is said Van Vleet had trouble with an Italian a few days before his disappearance, and foul play is feared.

Mr. Bryan May Attend.

St. Paul, May 29.—There is a probability that William J. Bryan may forsake his editorial duties long enough to attend the Woodman convention. He has written a letter to a St. Paul friend expressing the hope of being able to be present at least one day. Before he became a congressman Mr. Bryan was a Woodman organizer, and he has several times been a delegate to the national conventions.

DULUTH AT THE TOP.

Will Soon Lead United States in Registration of Tonnage.

Duluth, June 2.—The steamships of the former Mutual and Menominee transit companies, Mark Hanna ships, now the property of the United States Steel corporation, have been withdrawn from the registration of Cleveland and are now entered here. They have a gross registered tonnage of 23,720 tons, and make the tonnage of this port but 12,000 less than that of Cleveland, now at the head of American cities in point of registration and ownership of shipping.

With the withdrawal of the Minnesota Steamship fleet, now registered at Ashtabula, a subport of Cleveland, and their entry here, which will occur within the coming few days, this city will be about 25,000 tons ahead of that city and of the rest of the United States in the point of ship ownership. The vessels now registered at Duluth pay a tonnage tax amounting to $12,000 a year, half of which goes to the state and half to the municipality of Duluth. Before the present law was passed there was practically no tonnage registered here.

MUST BE NEUTRAL.

New Men for the Directorate of the Northern Pacific.

New York, June 3.—There is keen speculation as to the identity of the new men who will enter the Northern Pacific directorate under the commercial treaty of peace subscribed to by the rival interests in the property. Many names have been called up in Wall street, but according to a member of the Harriman syndicate there has been no decision yet. To a representative of the Associated Press the man in question said:

"There are several months to deliberate over this matter and there will be no announcement for some time. My understanding is that several strong men who are neutral in this affair and not now connected with the board of any of the properties concerned will be chosen. The plan of their appointment is highly satisfactory to the Harriman syndicate."

SEASON OPENED LATE.

Shipments From Head of Lakes Fall Considerably Short.

Duluth, June 4.—The iron ore shipments from the head of the lakes, Duluth, Two Harbors and Superior, to June 1 this season are fully 1,000,000 gross tons short of the amount which had been forwarded to the same date a year ago. The total shipments to June 1 this year were all made in the month of May, and they are 788,548 tons, as compared with 1,750,999 for the season to the same date in 1900. The first cargo to go forward this season was May 9, while a year ago considerable ore was shipped in April. June 1 is an interesting point for the iron ore shippers to look forward from. The shortage, due to a late start, assures a busy finish this season. The enormous reserve capacity of the ore docks and roads can easily take care of the shortage.

TOWNE LEAVES DULUTH.

Minnesota's Ex-Senator to Become a New Yorker.

Duluth, May 30.—Former Senator Charles A. Towne has decided to leave Duluth and Minnesota and remove to New York city, where, instead of politics, he will devote himself to the acquirement of a fortune in the oil business. Mr. Towne is connected with capitalists having options on 300,000 acres of oil land in Texas, and will himself be president of the corporation which is now organizing. Mr. Towne has left for New York, but will not move there permanently until the latter part of June.

Northwestern Flour Output.

Minneapolis, May 29.—The Northwestern Miller reports the flour output at Minneapolis last week as 251,935 barrels as against 255,350 for the corresponding week of last year. Superior and Duluth ground 14,500 barrels last week as against 16,510 barrels for the corresponding week of last year. Though flour is very dull most mills sold their output last week, chiefly in domestic markets, a reduction in freight aiding them.

Northwestern College Dedicated.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 30.—The Northwestern college was formally dedicated today. Many ministers and friends of the institution were present and the exercises were largely attended. The students of the musical department gave a concert and entertainment last evening and the formal dedication took place at 10:30 this morning. Rev. J. Fremling, D. D., of Vasa, delivered the principal address.

Defend the Canteen.

St. Paul, June 3.—The military surgeons, in annual convention here, condemned in the most emphatic terms the abolition of the army canteen. They declared that the canteen was abolished as the result of the influence of a lot of fanatical, meddlesome and misguided women and they unanimously passed resolutions asking for its re-establishment.

Trip Made Without a Mishap.

Milwaukee, June 4.—The steam yacht Dorothea, the training ship of the Illinois naval militia, has reached Milwaukee on her long trip of 2,700 miles from the League Island navy yard and will leave for Chicago on Tuesday. In the meantime the yacht will be coaled and cleaned up. The Dorothea is in command of Lieutenant B. R. T. Collins of the naval militia of Illinois. Lieutenant Collins says the trip was made without a mishap.

IT WAS FARMERS' DAY

And They Came From the Four Corners of the County to Participate in the Benefits of the Institute.

The Institute Corps This Year a Strong One.

The Farmers' Institute was a success. Red Lake Falls has cause to congratulate itself on that fact. The hall should have been large, and a larger representation of the farmers of our county should have filled the hall But the enthusiasm was there, and the purpose of the gathering was not absent, and this speaks volumes for the future of our county. It demonstrates that the growing tendency to diversified farming, which has dotted the southern part of our state with prosperous farms, is spreading and that it will before many years be in full operation even in the great wheat belt of the Red River Valley, and wherever conditions will favor it. The hall was filled with farmers who were alive to their interests and who embraced this opportunity to show that they are anxious to keep step with the progress of the times. The speakers were all men of long experience in farming, and spoke from their own knowledge, as well as from the knowledge they have gathered up by close study and research of the experience of others. They came well equipped, and spoke entertainingly on an entertaining subject--for the subject of farming, stock-raising, dairying, etc., has in it the elements of live interest.

The superintendent of the Minnesota Farmers' Institute, Mr. O. C. Gregg, of Lynd, Minnesota, presided and opened the meeting at the appointed time, 10 o'clock. Dr. C. D. Smead, of Logan, New York, was the first speaker introduced, and spoke entertainingly on "The Dairy." He is a practiced veterinary surgeon of thirty years' standing, and has spent his life on the farm studying its scope and its development through those many years. The speaker dwelt upon the wonderful resources of the surrounding country. The people here did not have the difficulties to contend with that the pioneers of New York experienced. We have here the prairies, which are transformed into tillable land with little difficulty. They have in New Yerd the mountains, the hillsides, rocks and timber. The labor necessary to remove the rocks and the timber and to transform it into productive country is enormous, and when that is done, the land is not so productive as it is in the west. They planted their ground to wheat, and continued the wheat treatment until prices began to fall, owing to the opening up of the great fertile prairies of the west. Wheat became the great staple crop of the west as it had been of the east, there was a surplus on the market and prices came down. And they came down so low that the eastern farmer could no longer raise wheat at a profit. Then it was that he turned his attention to other things and to other methods of making the farm remunerative. He went to stock raising, entered into the dairy business, and diversified farming, if you please. The hillsides of New York, which before produced little or nothing in the way of wheat, are now pastured, dairying is a growing and paying industry and the farmers are happy and prosperous. Creameries came, and came to stay, and the farmers can now replenish the soil which had been exhausted by the successive cropping of wheat for so many years. New York does not now raise enough wheat for home consumption, and the people of the Empire State depend to a great extent upon the great wheat raising states of Minnesota and the Dakotas for their flour, and "Pillsbury's Best," "Red Lake Falls Mascot" and other Minnesota brands are as familiar to New Yorkers as they are to our own citizens. Continuing, the Doctor said, "I came west to study the conditions of the farmers here. I came to talk over the situation with the farmers themselves, and to discuss with them such things as are of vital interest to them. I am surprised, and agreeably so, at the wonderful resources of your country. Your soil is of the best and most productive kind. Do not exhaust it by a continual cropping of wheat, as we did. It is the experience of every county that the continual cropping of ground to one staple cereal or product puts the ground to such strains of exhaustion as will require many years of fertilizing and rest before it again retains any degree of its former productiveness. Cattle, sheep and horses are in great demand, and they will ever be so, as long as there is work to do and hungry mouths to feed. And raising these you will be under the necessity to diversify in the matter of crops. Corn, clover, barley, oats and wheat will be raised. Corn is a prime necessity in communities where the cow that gives rich milk is to prosper, and corn will rest the soil: clover will rest the soil." He further emphasized the importance of breeding cows of the very best quality, and of using the manure that accumulates on the place to fertilize the soil. Superintendent Gregg re-enforced the statement made by the Doctor as to the great and lasting benefits to be derived by fertilizing the fields, and said that in his experience his highest expectations in this connection had been over-realized.

The next speaker introduced was John Gould, a veteran farmer of Aurora Station, Ohio, who, as a prelude to his remarks, stated that a good cow settles for her board every Saturday night. Corn crop is the great crop for the dairy. Two-thirds of all the food a cow consumes should be corn or of corn substance, and corn can be raised here more successfully than in the east. It is only about ten years ago that the agitation of starting creameries in southern Minnesota was begun, led by the friend of the farmers, Superintendent Gregg. There are now over one thousand creameries in the state, which has resulted in an additional annual income to the farmers of this state of over $9,000,000. Twenty-three per cent. of the food eaten in Europe is grown in America, and there is an ever increasing market in Europe for American butter and American products, so that there will be no time coming when butter will not be a revenue getter. Fifteen years ago, before the establishment of creameries in the United States, there were fifteen pounds of butter consumed per capita. Last year there were 29 pounds of butter consumed per capita, besides a very goodly amount of oleomargarine, and this increase in the consumption of butter per capita is due directly to the improvement of its quality. He thought the farmers in this county should have no difficulty in raising corn, as while in Ohio they have only twelve hours of sunshine a day during the growing period of corn, we have here seventeen hours of sunshine during the day, which compensates for the shorter season. The speaker laid great stress upon the surface tilling of corn crops, saying this method will kill the weeds more effectively, will preserve the moisture in the ground better, will not disturb the roots of the corn plant and will produce from twenty to thirty bushels more of corn to the acre than will the deep tilling. And in harrowing the corn, just after it is up, this work should be done in the afternoon, as in the forenoon while the dew is on, the plant is more tender, and is more liable to be covered up or pulled out.

Superintendent Gregg, also spoke authoritatively on the subject of surface tilling, and commended it in the highest terms. The weed seeds down deep should be permitted to slumber there undisturbed, and they will never come to life without sunshine, so they will never sprout and propagate until the unskilled farmer comes along and sinks his cultivator down deep. The corn should be grown not for the ear alone, but for the combination of ear and stock: grow it as a fodder corn. Haul out the manure, preserve the liquids in it, as the pottash in this latter element is needed to strengthen the straw. Humus, formed by the decomposition of vegetable matter, is a valuable constituent of the soil, and preserves moisture in the ground during seasons of drouth. In seeding to clover, it must be done on compact soil, never on loose soil, and the red clover should be used, mixed with alsike or white clover, and timothy. Mr. Gregg paid a deserved compliment to our local implement dealers, saying that they furnished high grade and up-to-date machinery of the very best kind.

During the afternoon session Dr. Smead, of New York, discussed the horse, and had an attentive audience. Every man is said to have his hobby, and the Doctor's hobby is the horse, and that he understands the horse from the ground up, no one will dispute who heard the lecture. "There is to day a greater demand for good horses than ever existed in the world before, the bicycle, the automobile notwithstanding. Europe is looking to us to supply her with horses, as they look to us for the products of the farm. This was not so ten years ago. England, France, Germany and Austria, are beginning to use the American horse, and a good farm horse brings in Germany $250. Last year we shipped to England 100,000 horses. There is now in this country a commission from the German government to study into the condition of horses, to report back to their government. So that horses will always be in demand, and the raising of horses of good quality will always be a profitable industry for our farmers to engage in. There are three kinds of horses that can be raised with great profit, the road or carriage horse, the coach horse and the draught horse. We have absolutely no use for the trotter: let him, the millionaire and the sport repose in peace."

A carriage horse should weigh at least 1100 pounds, a coach horse at least 1250 and a draught horse 1600 or over. A man should have ideals in breeding horses and should raise only those of the very best quality. A horse need and must be intelligent, have a good head, with expansive nostrils, indicating good lung power, and a good horse never walked with poor hoofs. Blood, bone and muscle are of the same toughness as the hoof. While straight limbs may be desired in a draught horse, in the carriage horse there must be that bend in the limbs as will give elasticity to the step. For the carriage horse is generally driven at a rapid speed on hard roads and over pavements, and the jarring of the joint in a straight limbed horse inflames the membrane, which then secretes imperfect oil, the horse becomes lame, constant repetition closes the joint and a ringbone is the result. Great caution should be exercised in the selection of stallions and brood mares, and horse promoters, so called, should be shunned as imposters.

Mr. Gould again resumed the discussion of the dairy cow as distinguished from the beef cow, saying that the former is the most profitable for the farmer. The dairy cow is a constant revenue getter during ten months of the year. There is a profit in her of 28 cents per pound for the butter, while on the other hand the beef cow has to be killed off and there is only a return of three cents a pound for the beef on her bones. The cow should go into the winter stables in good condition, and should be kept in good condition during the winter. Under such circumstances she will give as much milk in winter as in summer, and butter brings the best price during the winter months. Corn is a great food for heat and muscle: oats, flax and bran for the blood, and with such foods the cow will be in excellent shape for the return of good rich milk during the winter. The utmost care should be exercised in securing bulls of the very best quality, and farmers cannot employ too much care in these matters, if they desire to go into the dairy business on a profitable basis.

Mr. Albert Barberee, of Toronto, Canada, in the afternoon exhibited what is called the Babcock Tester, and had made a test of the milk from a number of the cows owned by Mr. Rick, the result of which he reported to the audience. He spoke of the value of carrying on the business of creamery on scientific lines, and this Babcock tester for determining the amount of fat in milk, and from that the number of pounds of butter from a certain quantity of milk, is in line with that idea. There is no patent or royalty on this machine, and it can be had complete with glass tubes and bottles for $5.00.

In conclusion Mr. Gregg spoke of the great good the farmers' institute is doing for the farmers of the state. The state of New York, Pennsylvania and other eastern states, are not producing sufficient food for the consumption of its own people, and the diversified products of Minnesota will always be in demand in the east and in the countries of Europe. While Pennsylvania is digging her coal we will feed her miners. He promised for next year that the institute would employ the best speakers it could get, men of vast experience, to talk on the subject of agriculture and kindred subjects. He elicited much applause as he spoke of the farmer as being the most independent man in the world of activity to-day, and that of right he ought to be so.

A volume of nearly 400 pages, entitled "Minnesota Farmers Institute" was presented to each one present, and the farmers went home happy.

IS OUT OF POLITICS.

Senator Towne Will Davote All of His Time to Money Getting.

Austin, Tex., June 10.—It was stated here that the charter of an oil company with a capital stock of $5,000,000 and in which the principal stockholders are Former Senator Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, Governor Benton McMillan of Tennessee and Former Governor J. S. Hogg, will be filed in the secretary of state's office here within the next few days. Senator Towne has purchased one-quarter of an acre of land in the proved oil district at Beaumont for $25,000. In an interview he said that he is out of politics for good and that henceforth he would devote all his time to money-making. Former Governor Hogg made a similar announcement a few weeks ago, soon after he began making big money in the Beaumont oil field, and a declaration of the same kind is expected soon from Governor McMillan.

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF MINNESOTA AFTER A MINING COMPANY.

Great Shortage of Iron Ore Shipments So Far This Season—Duluth Woman the Victim of Fortune Tellers. Carver Girl Killed by a Jealous Lover—News of the State in General.

St. Paul, June 7.—Attorney General Douglass has taken steps to dissolve the American Mining Investment company, and Sheriff Megaarden of Minneapolis served an order upon W. S. Brill, president of the company, directing him to appear before the district court June 17 and show cause why the charter of the corporation should not be revoked.

The company was organized Nov. 22, 1899, and since that time has occupied luxurious offices. At present it is located on the sixth floor of the Andrus building in Minneapolis, where a large office force is maintained.

The company has done a large business, but the attorney general claims that it has been in violation of law. Its business has been the promotion of mining, but under the terms of its revised charter it could engage in manufacturing, transportation, and almost anything it might choose. One purpose, according to its articles of incorporation, was to "borrow and raise money."

This it is claimed it did, but the state says its methods were not above suspicion. It has paid dividends regularly, but the attorney general asserts the money was not earned by the mines, but came from the sale of stock, of which it has an inexhaustible quantity, one company being capitalized for $500,000,000.

RESULT OF STRIKE.

Possibility of a Shortage in the Supply of Ore.

Duluth, June 11.—Lake Superior traffic for the season to date has been far less than in many years, amounting to only 3,548,045 tons, against 4,565,879 tons for the corresponding period of 1900. May's business has been 1,800,000 tons less than that of May a year ago. Iron ore alone shows a shortage of 1,600,000 gross tons. This is especially important, as it indicates a discrepancy that will be very hard to overcome in the remainder of the year, especially as the condition of lower lake receiving docks and of lower lake railways is not such that they can care for any large increase over the business of a year ago. But more ore than was used last year is demanded by the trade, and it is quite possible that there may be a serious shortage before next May.

PREDICTED DEATH CAME.

Two Fortune Tellers Supposed to Have Caused Mrs. West's Demise.

Duluth, June 5.—Mrs. C. J. West of Bunalo Flats, who died last Thursday, was foretold of the event by two fortune tellers.

Five weeks ago she was visiting friends in Chicago and went to a palmist, who said she would not live to exceed 30 days. Two weeks after the fortune telling incident a party was given in Mrs. West's honor and cards were played. Among the guests was a woman who professed to be able to tell fortunes with cards. She told Mrs. West that she had but two weeks to live. Mrs. West came home in a few days complaining of feeling sick. She took to her bed and died at the appointed time.

Inflammation settling in the nerve centers was the cause of death, supposed to have been influenced by the fortune telling upon the victim's mind.

MURDER AT CARVER, MINN.

Carver, Minn., June 4.—A cold blooded murder occurred here at 6:15 a. m. Andrew Tapper, a bartender, committed the deed and Miss Rosa Mix, a hired girl, was his victim. Both were employed by John Leonard, proprietor of the Balser House, this village. The girl was 20 years old and her parents live at Montgomery.

Tapper used a large knife, and cut two large gashes in the girl's throat and one in her left shoulder. He then went to the river and tried to drown himself, but failed.

He returned to the house, saw the girl lying on the floor in a pool of blood, and then started off down the park road with the marshal after him. He is now safely behind the bars in the county jail at Chaska.

Jealousy is supposed to have been the motive of the crime. Tapper was a suitor of Miss Mix, but had been repeatedly repulsed by her.

Large Harvest Now Certain.

St. Paul, June 8.—Telegraphic advices from different parts of the Northwest show that all danger of a drouth is passed. Generous showers have fallen all through the spring wheat belt, and farmers are jubilant over the certainty of a bountiful harvest. The Dakotas are particularly fortunate, and never was there a brighter prospect for the grain fields of those states.

Elected Bishop Coadjutor.

Winona, Minn., June 6.—Rt. Rev. Samuel Edsell, D. D., of Fargo, missionary bishop of North Dakota, was elected bishop coadjutor on first formal ballot by the Minnesota diocesan council of Episcopalians during the day. The vote was, Edsell 119; clergy 15, laymen 74.

DOCTORS IN SESSION.

American Medical Association Meets in St. Paul.

St. Paul, June 6.—More than 1,000 physicians from every part of the American continent gathered in the Metropolitan Opera House during the morning for the opening session of the American Medical association. The meeting was called to order by Dr. John F. Fulton of St. Paul, chairman of the local committee in charge of the convention. Right Rev. Henry B. Whipple, bishop of the Episcopal church, offered the invocation, after which Mayor R. A. Smith welcomed the doctors and tendered them the freedom of the city. The response to the address of welcome was made by Dr. C. A. L. Reed of Cincinnati president of the association. After the addresses the association settled down to hearing reports and transacting other routine business.

St. Paul, June 6.—Dr. John Wyeth of New York has been elected president of the American Medical association.

Dr. Charles A. Wheaton of St. Paul was defeated for the presidency by a narrow margin of two or three votes. The nominating committee met at a late hour in the afternoon and immediately took a vote on the three candidates, Dr. Charles Wyeth of New York, Dr. Frank Billings of Chicago and Dr. C. A. Wheaton of St. Paul. It was impossible to get the exact standing of the vote, because the members of the nominating committee thought it would not be right to give out any information until the association had been notified officially.

Senator Towne Will Devote All of His Time to Money Getting.

Austin, Tex., June 10.—It was stated here that the charter of an oil company with a capital stock of $5,000,000 and in which the principal stockholders are Former Senator Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, Governor Benton McMillan of Tennessee and Former Governor J. S. Hogg, will be filed in the secretary of state's office here within the next few days. Senator Towne has purchased one-quarter of an acre of land in the proved oil district at Beaumont for $25,000. In an interview he said that he is out of politics for good and that henceforth he would devote all his time to money-making. Former Governor Hogg made a similar announcement a few weeks ago, soon after he began making big money in the Beaumont oil field, and a declaration of the same kind is expected soon from Governor McMillan.

BOARD OF CONTROL HELPLESS.

Minnesota University Regents Can Do as They Wish.

St. Paul, June 6.—W. E. Lee of the state board of control says that the members of the board will not fight against the regents of the state university for the control of the finances of that institution. They will simply leave it to the regents whether the intent of the legislature shall be complied with, as expressed in section 18 of the law which brought the board of control into being and abolished the board of corrections and charities.

The law is defective in that the words "educational institutions" are omitted from the title. If the regents desire to take advantage of the defect, Attorney General Douglas says the members of the board of control cannot help themselves.

BIGGEST DEAL OF THE YEAR.

Tower Lumber Company Buys Railroad, Sawmill and Standing Pine.

Duluth, June 5.—One of the biggest deals of the present year in lumber circles in Northern Minnesota was consummated when the Tower Lumber company of Tower bought the entire property of the Tower Logging Railway company, including the railroad equipment, sawmill at Bear Head lake and 40,000,000 feet of standing pine. The consideration was $225,000. The Tower Lumber company took possession of its newly acquired property during the day.

MRS. CATT RE-ELECTED.

Will Preside Over Suffragist Association for Another Year.

Minneapolis, June 6.—At the day's session of the woman suffrage convention the re-election of Mrs. Catt as president was practically unanimous. She received 216 votes. Those cast against her numbered only eight and those were divided among three candidates.

Boy Burns to Death.

Albany, Minn., June 9.—The 6-year-old son of Carl Reinke, a prominent farmer of Holdingsford, was burned to death. He and his 4-year-old brother were kindling a fire with some live embers left over from a previous bush burning, when the little fellow's clothes were reached by the small blaze. He died before help could come.

The Hill-Taylor Nuptials.

New York, June 5.—Miss Maud van Cortlandt Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. van Cortlandt Taylor of St. Paul, was married to Louis Warren Hill, son of James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad. The ceremony was performed by Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul in the home of the bride's brother, Walter C. Taylor of this city.

Damage Will Be Heavy.

La Crosse, Wis., June 11.—A wind storm passed over this city and vicinity during the afternoon, doing much damage. Several small buildings were overturned and many loose articles blown away. The damage will be heavy.

WYLIE BREVITIES

Andrew Letvig is drilling a well for A. Dreeland.

Chas. Liebel, the assessor, visited Wylie last Tuesday.

P. V. Malm, of Crookstnn, came over Monday to look up some land.

P. A. Ekstrom came from Mentor Monday, where he has spent a few days with relatives.

Miss Nellie McKerney has spent her vacation at her home. She is back on duty as teacher again.

Last Saturday a grade was made for the cheese factory here. It is going to have a convenient location.

Hans Peterson, of Sanders, boarded the train here Monday and spent the time till Wednesday morning in business at Crookston.

The directors and some of the shareholders of the cheese factory went to Gentilly Sunday for information in regard to the business.

When our neighboring farmers start out for Wylie they tell of it in different ways. One will say "Going to town:" another "To the station:" others "To the store." Some pronounce it "Vijlas," others "Veyle," or "R-Ryles" or "Rylie," a few say "Wylie."

A. M. Hanson, Swan J. Swanson, F. C. Leppert and H. P. Johnson represented Wylie at the conductor's excursion to Cass Lake Sunday last week. The party left Wylie at about three o'clock in the morning to take the train at Dugdale, and arriving at Bemidji, stopped over till the regular train passed through for Cass Lake. Bemidji is nicely located on the lake. It is a very nice and active place. The only thing the writer has against it is there are too many saloons, and too few school houces and churches. The lake is beautiful and a number of fish were caught during the day. Cass Lake is also a beautiful sheet of water, but the town is a little distant from the shore and has not the buildings and streets that Bemidji has. But both are ringing with cash in this district where lumber is the exclusive product; where the buzz of the saw echoes in the pinetops. Fishing was much indulged in during the day, by the many excursionists who seldom have the opportunity to ply with boats our inland lakes. At 8 o'clock in the evening the train started back with a happy crowd, satisfied with the day's outing.

A. M. Hanson went to Red Lake Falls, Monday.

Gust and Axel Sandberg were up from Crookston last Sunday on a visit.

A Swede from Warren was out in the country grinding razors last week.

Ed Soderman Sundayed at his home here, coming from St. Hilaire on a wheel Saturday.

Oscar Naplin transacted business in the Saintly City the rainy Wednesday of last week.

H. P. Johnson took Rev. A. Melin to St. Hilaire last Sunday afternoon, where the Reverend was to hold services at 4 o'clock.

A meeting was held last week Saturday for the purpose of further discussing the matter of erecting a cheese factory here. The rest of the shares were disposed of, and a sufficient number of cows has been guaranteed.

The Sw. Luth. congregation has decided to hold a Sunday school festival June 13. A Fourth of July celebration will also be held. Ebenezer Y. P. Society will hold a midsummer festival June 24th. Places will be announced later.

In this present landboom, many are kicking themselves because they did not buy here, when a good quarter could be had for four or five hundred, that now sells for ten to fifteen per acre. If they had known of this, they would have bought then. Perhaps fifteen years from now if we are in existence, we will kick because we did not buy now. Kicking is a chronic disease with us any how. We are of nature never satisfied or content. Before the recent rain we were kicking because of the dry weather; after a whole night of rain, we kicked in the morning because it was clearing up; we thought we needed more. Got a few more drops and the howl was "too much rain."

Your correspondeot followed the excursion train to Fisher last Sunday, where he stopped over night, whence he went to Crookston for a short visit returning home Tuesday.

Rev. A. Melin, of Alexandria, arrived in Wylie Saturday, and Sunday morning delivered a striking sermon at the services in the Sw. Luth. Church. His subject was the story of the rich man and Lazarus, showing well the different conditions and attitudes of people in this world, and the change, as reward, they, according to that part of scripture, will get in the next world. He considered it a well known fact that the more one gets of this world's riches, the more ooe wants; and the more we are in possession of, the less time we have for divine devotions. The sermon was decked with deep and good thoughts and valuable teachings. We hope this first call will not be the last one. We are anxious for another long and prolonged visit or stay, and wish it were possible to retain Rev. Melin as pastor of this congregation.

Harry Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Swan Johnson, had the misfortune of accidentally bruising his leg some time ago. It began to swell, and the boy became unable to be around, but home treatment seemed to keep it down. However, not seeming to get well, he was taken to Dr. Blomburgh in St. Hilaire last Saturday and a surgical operation was performed on the boy's leg with the aid of Dr. Dunlop, of Crookston.

DIED.

Arvid Nenzen, who has had his home with his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Sandberg, passed away Sunday, June 2, at the early age of twelve years, eleven months and twenty-eight days. He had for some time been weak: had affliction of the throat, which lastly developed into lung trouble and he sank rapidly toward the end. He retained consciousness till the last. Death came, calling him to his last slumber at 10:15, in the morning. Interment was held the following day, when a large number of friends joined the bereaved in mourning, paying their last respect and homage to the one in eternal sleep, whose remains were laid to rest in Sw. Luth. cemetery. His father rests there beside him.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

At the farmers' institute were seen many of the successful farmers of the county. It seems to be a well established fact that the more progressive and successful farmers are the ones who take the greatest interest in studying economic methods as taught by the institute corps. These instructors are veritable missionaries and while immediate results do not follow their efforts, yet the good effects will follow here as surely as they have come to other sections where the work has been pushed the past few years. These men are not theorists. They are all practical farmers who know by experience what they are talking about. Again, they know more than the average farmer, and are thus able to impart valuable information, because they are specialists, making a study of different lines and giving the benefit of their investigations and research to those who are wise enough to give heed to their advice. The Gazette in this issue gives a comprehensive report of the proceedings of the Institute held in this city on Tuesday, so that those of our readers who were not fortunate enough to be present may gain some of the valuable ideas presented there. We do not believe our farmers, nor the majority of our townspeople realize what the proper development of our farming interests means for all of us. However, one needs but to glance over the conditions in our own state to get an idea of it. The transition from bad, old fashioned methods, to up-to-date scientific principles, has been gradual, and seems to have worked up the state by degrees, from the southeast. Down about the Iowa line, the new era is in full bloom, and gradually dies out enroute north, until here, there is a mere germ of the proper spirit manifest. It seems to require object lessons to impress the average farmer, and this state of affairs is to be accounted for in no other way. Today there are many of our people who refuse to listen to the wise counsels of the Institute corps, preferring their own conclusions, which are generally based on wrong premises. Remember, the world do move. Lay yourself open to conviction and profit by the actual experience of others.

BOY SOLDIERS.

One of the most remarkable but least-noticed facts in connection with the war in the Transvaal is the extreme youth of a large part of General DeWet's army. When hostilities broke out almost every grown man enlisted, even the enfeebled, but the pace has been too rapid for the venerable burghers. As they were killed or incapacitated their places have gradually been taken by mere school-children, many only thirteen or fourteen years of age. Under the title of "The Youngest Soldiers in the World," in the June Cosmopolitan, Allen Sangree throws more light on the make up and life of General DeWet's commandoes than anything hitherto published. The naive, simple letter from fourteen-year-old Deneys Reitz to his father, the Secretary of State of the Transvaal Republic, has seldom been equalled for vital interest by any carefully written article on the war.

CORN FODDER.

The results obtained at the Experiment farm for the past four years have demonstrated the great value of corn fodder for winter forage in northern Minnesota.

The plan pursued is that now generally practiced, of not attempting to raise ear corn and fodder together, by saving the stalks, but of growing the corn solely for the fodder. Those who sowed fodder corn last season obtained large yields, while the hay crop was practically a failure. Corn sowed June 29th on the Experiment farm yielded 5 tons per acre of cured fodder, and the average yield has been from 6 to 7 tons. No other crops will produce so much feed per acre. Chemical analysis shows that corn fodder is equal, if not superior in feeding value to timothy or wild hay, and its succulence gives it additional value for cows or sheep.

It is better to avoid large southern varieties "Ensilage" corn, which take too long to mature and produces course stalks and a poor quality of fodder. Plant medium to early dent corn, which will ripen in southern Minnesota. If the corn is sowed broad cast, the drain on the soil moisture is so great that in a dry season the crop may not mature properly. A better plan is to sow thickly in drills, and cultivate. This requires from 1 bushel to 1½ bushels per acre. The seed may be sown with a grain drill, by stopping all but those tubes desired, or with a garden drill, or the land may be furrowed as for potatoes and the corn sown in the furrows and covered with the drag. Corn fodder will do well on new land if worked down so as not to dry out. It responds quickly to manure, which can be plowed under fresh and in large quantities with no injury to the crop. The corn should be cut when the lower leaves begin to wither. When cut by hand, shock in small stocks and let stand until late in the fall to cure. It may then be placed in large shocks and left in the field till used, or hauled up and stacked, if well cured. Stacks should be made the width of two bundles, placed with heads together, and covered with marsh hay. There is always danger of heating until the fodder is perfectly cured. If the corn has been planted thickly in the rows, the stalks will be fine, and cattle and sheep will eat it nearly clean. It may also be fed to horses with advantage. If it is possiple to run it through a feed cutter, there will be no waste from rejected butts.

The Fairmont Sentinel, referring to the decision of the Supreme court in the Porto Rico cases, says that "The administration's favors to supreme court justices' sons seem to have cut some figure in the case, at least there are a great many people who will always suspicion that such is the case." Exactly how much figure administration favors cuts in the matter is apparent when it is known that Mr. Justice Harlan, whose son is referred to, not only voted against the government, but delivered a strong dissenting opinion.

Maxfield Parrish's fine decorative design on the cover of the Ladies' Home Journal for June forms a fitting introduction to a remarkably attractive issue. Among the most interesting features of this number are a double page of pictures, entitled "Where Golf is Played," showing some of the handsomest country club houses in America: a series of curious. "Love Stories of the Soo," told by Clifford Howard; the first installment of a fascinating new serial, "Asleen," by Elizabeth Knight Tompkins: a touching full-page picture of "The Passing of the Farm," by W. L. Taylor; the queer experiences with "Some People I Have Married," by the Rev. D. M. Steele, and a vigorous article on "Woman as 'Pay Day'" by Edward Bok. Numerous other articles of general and domestic interest fill out the rest of the number. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

Cold Steel or Death.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure Stomach and Liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at W. A. Schreiter's drug store.

The Brotherhood of Nations.

How much nearer to each other the nations of the world seem to be to-day, and really are today, than was the case a few decades ago. When weeks and months were required for communication between the United States and Europe, the countries of the old world appeared to be a long way off. Now the circumference of old earth is belted with telegraph and cable lines in every possible direction. What happens to-day in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, South America, and the great islands of the sea, is made known to us tomorrow by great newspapers like the Chicago Record-Herald, whose foreign news correspondents are located in every important city in the world outside of the United States. In addition to its own staff correspondents, the Record-Herald enjoys the foreign news service of the New York Herald, famous for many years for the reliability of its foreign news, and also of the New York Tribune, and of that great co-operative newsgathering organization, The Associated Press. No other daily newspaper in America possesses facilities so varied and extensive for covering the news of all nations.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN

T. G. Resum, state veterinary, was here Saturday.

Mesdames J. A. and E. I. Bray are visiting relatives at Crookston.

Thos. German and V. M. Higinbotham drove out to Emardville despite the bad roads, Monday.

Misses Bessie Hunt and Josephine Kaus are at Thief River Falls enjoying a visit with friends

Rev. Fr. Ansgar went to St. John's seminary Monday, to participate in the 48 hours' devotion.

Rev. S. Currie, pastor of the Episcopal church of Euclid, held services in the Maccabee hall here Sunday night.

Jas. McPeak has purchased a couple of acres of land in Central addition, near the saw mill, and has started the erection of a dwelling thereon.

St. Hilaire has bold, flaring posters out announcing a Fourth of July celebration at that place. We believe this is the first real attempt the denizens of the Saintly city have made for years to celebrate Independence day.

Casper Stuhr, of Euclid, is in the city today on his way to Crookston. The Stuhrs are enjoying a visit from their son, Dr. Henry, who graduated from the University last year, and who is now looking for a location.

Mrs. Jos. Stuart went to Crookston today as a witness in the case of Stuhr vs. Vanderbeck. Mrs. Stuart was a resident of Euclid in 1890, when the case which is a dispute over disappearance of a quantity of oats, originated.

Mrs. Aug. Riechel Jr., has gone to Grand Forks to visit with her sister, Mrs. Carrie Robbins. While there she will submit to an operation for the removal of a tumerous growth from her wrist which has been giving her considerable annoyance. She is accompanied by her daughter Lulu.

John Levack has had an operation performed on his eyes by Dr. Morely of Crookston, for the removal of cataract, and the reports are favorable, indicating that he may recover his eyesight. This hope has been held out to Mr. Levack so often, however, that he and his friends are not given to indulging in overconfidence.

James Spellman, of Mankato, has spent the past week in the city a guest of his brother-in-law, P. E. Pirath. Mr. Spellman is engineer on the Omaha road, running between Mankato, Elmore, and St. James, making about 4,500 miles per month. He has decided to invest in a couple of farms in this vicinity, and has just bought a quarter section of land near Stephen.

Joseph Brohman, one of the influential farmers of Lambert, was a caller at The Gazette office Tuesday. Mr. Brohman owns three quarter sections of land in one bunch, and considers the property with improvements worth over $10,000. He has refused several flattering offers but intends to spend the remainder of his days there and will continue to improve and beautify his fine estate.

The Minnesota & International railway survey party are now camped in section 1 township 69, range 25 or about three miles south of Orlando Johnson's place, and some eight miles from here. The line is now located to within about ten miles of this place. It is expected that the line will reach here early next week, though considerable time will likely be spent thereafter in this vicinity.—Koochiching Border Budget.

Hon. C. G. Rapp was in the city Monday calling on friends, and distributing the 1901 Blue Books to those entitled to them by law and precedent. He is able to walk quite spryly, and all remarked on his improved condition. Although he is by no means in perfect health, yet he seems to be gaining steadily, and there is no reason to anticipate anything except ultimate recovery. Mr. Rapp has never fully realized his own popularity until now.

Wilfrid Lemieux and Herb Miller went over to Turtle River Saturday. Their itinerary was to Tilden by hand car, thence to Bemidji via the Great Northern, a trip over land to Turtle River. Returning, they picked up L. Jensen, who was looking rather lonesome on the depot platform at Fosston, giving him a pass from Tilden. The trip from Tilden to this city, a distance of 12 miles, was made in 55 minutes, and the trio claim to hold the record. Messrs. Lemieux and Miller will put in a store at Turtle River.

Ed. L. Healy had a runaway Monday morning. He was just crossing the coulie near Lefaive's farm west of the city, when the horses got frightened apparently without provocation, and gave such a lurch that they threw him out of the buggy. He held unto the lines until they snapped. The team took to the N. P. railroad track and kept to it over two bridges, at one time one of the horses taking the outside of the rail, passing over a bridge, just to show what a horse can do, and all went well, the buggy standing the pounding, until at the road leading to Crookston the horses got tangled up with a telegraph pole. Here the buggy was left, and the horses made for home, leaving the buggy but slightly injured. The horses were none the worse for their peculiar experience, and Mr. Healy escaped with scarcely a scratch.

Ernest LaFave is giving the people a fine service in the City Bakery.

J. E. Bray has had the interior of his saloon decorated with a neat coat of paint and wall paper.

George Marchand went to Crookston Thursday for treatment by Dr. Morely, for impaired eyesight.

H. J. Kaufer has his business house occupied by the Elwood Land Company and the barber shop as sleek as a new whistle.

Louis Clancy and Mary Moriarity were married at St. Paul Thursday. Mr. Clancy is a traveling salesman well known here.

Henry Conklin came up from Crookston yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Conklin will shortly leave for Minto, N. D., their future home.

Property owners in block 7 have been making lavish use of the paint brush and paint this week. Well, the buildings needed it.

J. N. Miller, of St. James, who owns 26,000 acres of land hereabouts, was in the city the first of the week doing business with our land men.

Wm. Schwalen returned Saturday from a tour of Southern Minnesota. He was accompanied by Nic. C. Holzmar, who will take a shy at our lands.

T. J. Welsh, an employe of the Grand Forks Lumber Company, is in the city looking after the Clearwater drive, which has just passed Terrebonne.

L. Jensen came up from Fosston, via Tilden, Sunday, and remained in the city several days before returning to his post in the Fosston Healy Land Co. office.

Ole Christiansen drove out to Terrebonne Saturday to make arrangements for having the half section recently purchased by W. C. Westcott, of Albert Lea, broke.

The saw mill started on the night run Monday, and hereafter will run night and day. The institution is in fine shape for a prosperous career for its owners, and for a benefit to the city.

The electrical storm Tuesday night played hob with the local telephone exchange, burning out the cable so that out of seventy wires only a dozen are in working order. An expert from Grand Forks is at work on the plant, and will have it in running order in a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Toupin, Mrs. Nicholas Pouliot and Mrs. F. Richard returned Monday from a two weeks' visit at Marquette, Mich. Upon arrival there Mrs. Pouliot found that her niece, whom she was to have visited, was quarantined, and thus her anticipations of an enjoyable reunion were ruthlessly shattered.

Ole Christiansen, manager of the Elwood Land Company's interests in this section, is proving himself a great hustler. Last week he made several important sales, among them being 160 acres in Terrebonne to Jacob Anstin, of Fairmont, and a half section in the same town to W. C. Wescott, of Freeborn county. Both parties are practical farmers with plenty of money and experience, and will come here to live on the farms.

Joseph Beleir, of Garnes, was in the city Monday, returning from a trip to Crookston, where he went as a witness in the land contest case brought by Fred Ethier on an abandoned tract in Garnes. Mr. Belair says the finest wheat he encountered, all the way from Garnes to Crookston, was on the farm of Omer Delorme, on the ridge. This ridge is rather high and sandy, but the season seems to be propitious for crops there this year—and it is a great crop year too, as far as we have gone.

We have heard of late, rumblings in the air, of a projected railway north from Cass Lake, into the International boundary. The story goes that the Great Northern has a crew of men out, surveyors and cruisers, and that a satisfactory route has been found. A line of railroad from Cass Lake running in a northerly direction into Itasca county would open one of the richest and most desirable regions of the Big woods; and if the Great Northern does not soon occupy the ground some other company will take hold and build the road.—Cass Lake Times.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Schreiter entertained a few friends Friday night on the occasion of their twentieth wedding anniversary. The guests played progressive cinch until eleven o'clock, when they were treated to one of Mrs. Schreiter's famous lunches. The tally of games was kept on little china saucers, gumed figures representing diamonds, hearts, clubs and spades being presented to each winner of a game. Mrs. P. A. Kaufer scored the highest and was awarded an artistic Japanese cup and saucer, while Ed. Garceau carried off a beautiful moustache cup, the gentlemen's head prize. Mrs. L. A. Kaufer and F. E. Hunt came in for the booby prizes which were an ink-well and toothpick holder respectively. The host and hostess did not inform their guests the nature of the anniversary, but it was well known, and some beautiful gifts were presented, much to their surprise, among them a mahogany stand, a mahogany settee, a rosewood divan, a set of Haviland pieces, and a Livistona Chinensis palm. The evening was one of the happiest ever passed in the hospitable Schreiter home.

Mrs. F. A. Lowe, of Minneapolis, is in the city visiting relatives.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO SELL LAND.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake. } ss In Probate Court, Special Term, June 7, 1901.

In the matter of the estate of Joseph Lauren, Deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Herbert Miller, administrator of said estate, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of, the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, (excepting the homestead,) of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences, and praying that license be to him granted to sell all of the real estate of the said Joseph Lauren, deceased.

And it appearing by said petition, that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said Herbert Miller to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary, for the payment of said debts, legacies or expenses, to sell all of said real estate of said deceased.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court, on Monday, the 8th day of July, A. D. 1901, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the Court House in the Probate Office, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Administrator to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Red Lake Falls Gazette, a weekly newspaper, printed and published at Red Lake Falls in said county.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

An Ingenious Treatment by which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

It is now generally known and understood that Drunkeness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, requires an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men.

WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of Drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and so many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address Dept. "Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles the guaranteed Catarrh Cure" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting desease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the Head.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER;

Or, Christian Stewardship.

BY CHARLES M. SHELDON,

COPYRIGHT, 1896, BY CONGREGATIONAL AND SUNDAY SCHOOL PUBLISHING SOCIETY.

Eric spoke the

"It's so." Eric spoke with bitterness. "No one is quite so ungrateful as a mob of workingmen when it turns on its leaders. My day is over."

It was just at that moment that Andrew came in. "Have you heard the news?" he asked. "They say the De Mott men are going in a body to the Queen mine to pull up the pumps and then to the Royal and so on until they have ruined every mine on the range. They have given the companies two hours to give in."

Stuart was very thoughtful. "If they do so serious a thing as that, it will lead to an appalling loss of life. The troops at Hancock have been kept in readiness by the Cleveland owners, who have been anticipating some such a move. It is folly for the men to think the owners will yield at this late day to their demands."

"It will be the deathblow to labor and the workingman's cause for all time if they do as they say," said Eric, with a groan, "and I am as helpless as a child. I"— Eric completely broke down and actually cried. He felt that his reign was over.

Andrew looked gravely at Stuart. The short winter day was fast drawing to an end. Stuart still stood there, thoughtfully looking at the bowed form of Eric.

"There is one man who still has great influence over all the miners in Champion and De Mott," said Andrew gently.

Stuart started. Over at the other end of the hall he could see Rhena. She had just left her task and was coming toward him. Life was very sweet to him now. Why should he risk it in a possible—yes, probable—danger by going over to the scene of this new difficulty? Was he his brother's keeper.

"That one man is yourself," continued Andrew.

"You think I ought to go?" asked Stuart calmly.

"I cannot answer for you," Andrew made reply slowly.

"What are you talking about?" asked Rhena as she came up.

"Rhena," said Stuart, "it may be necessary for me to go to De Mott tonight. It looks now as if the strike had reached a crisis, and before morning something will probably occur to change the situation that has held all winter."

Rhena looked steadily at the three men.

"You are keeping back something," she said at last.

"Yes!" exclaimed Eric, lifting his head. "The men at De Mott are going to pull up the Queen mine pumps. I've lost my influence over them. If Stuart goes over there to prevent the men, he will risk his life. I know the men when they are drunk are devils. They would kill any one, even Christ himself, if he went over there tonight. Don't let him go, Miss Dwight. It's almost sure death. He will only lose his life and do no good by it."

Rhena did not say a word. Stuart looked over at Andrew as if half hoping he would second Eric's request. But Andrew was silent. Then he turned toward Rhena again. He had never loved her so much as at that moment.

"Rhena," he said in a low tone, "I feel as if I ought to go over to De Mott. I am sure Eric exaggerates the danger. If I am the only man with enough influence to prevent an outbreak, I am in duty bound to exert it."

"No; don't go!" cried Rhena, and then she stopped. She had taken one step toward Stuart. He was not looking at her, but seemed to be hesitating for something.

She spoke again. "I would not have you a coward to please me. If you must go"—

"I must," replied Stuart. "God bless and keep you." He leaned over and kissed her, and without another word to either Andrew or Eric he stepped to the door and threw it open.

"I'll send over to the hotel barn for a horse!" cried Andrew. Just at that moment Dr. Saxon drove up.

"He is just in time," said Stuart calmly, as if he had been expecting him.

He told the doctor in a few words that he must go to De Mott at once. The doctor understood.

"Get in, then! This means more gunshot wound practice for me maybe." He whispered to Rhena, who had come out to the side of the cutter, pale and trembling: "Don't you fear, lass. The Lord protects drunkards and fools when they don't know enough to stay at home nights. Whoa now, Ajax!" he yelled at his horse just long enough to allow Stuart to say goodby to Rhena.

The next instant Stuart had leaped into the cutter, and Ajax was flying over the road to De Mott. Andrew and Eric and Rhena stood at the door of the hall watching.

Finally Rhena said, "Let us go inside and pray."

Andrew and Eric followed her, and Andrew comforted her as they went. But Eric sat down moodily and was silent. While Rhena and some of the other women and Andrew were praying together he went softly out of the hall and after looking around in the gathering dusk he finally started in a brisk walk and gradually increased it to a run. He followed the track of the doctor's cutter and was soon running with all his speed over the De Mott road.

CHAPTER XI.

AN ORATOR.

When Stuart and the doctor swept into De Mott after a fierce ride behind the foaming Ajax, they found almost the entire population gathered around the postoffice block, in which was a large hall, used during the winter mostly for traveling show companies.

It was packed tonight with the miners. The union was in session, and every man who could find a foothold inside was there. The rest were waiting outside to hear a final decision. Not a man of them but believed the result had already been determined and that before morning every pump on the range would be pulled out and the companies would lose millions of dollars' worth of property in a few hours. It would be a grim revenge of labor over capital. It would strike capital at its most sensitive spot. It would be a real satisfaction for the great suffering and want of the winter. And many and many a hollow faced miner in the crowd around the hall was thinking of a little child lying dead under the snow in the great burial place on the slope of the range, and he grasped his stick tighter and cursed the rich in his palace of comfort that bitter night.

Stuart never felt more helpless. He looked at the faces around him, and his heart sank as he realized how great was the force of a mob bent on doing its own pleasure. He felt as if any influence he might possess in Champion was an empty breath in De Mott. Surely Andrew had been mistaken when he said Stuart could influence such men as these at such a time as this.

He was roused from all this by the doctor, who spoke short and sharp.

"Now, then, let's make a break for the hall! We'll leave Ajax right here."

Stuart was astonished.

"They won't let us in the hall."

"We'll see about that," replied the doctor.

He drove Ajax up in front of one of the drug stores where he was in the habit of stopping when he came to De Mott, and, getting out of the cutter, with Stuart following with much wonder, he began to force his way to the hall door. As Stuart went on he began to realize that there had been a mistake made by Andrew. If there was one man left who had real influence over the miners, it was not Stuart Duncan, but Dr. Saxon.

It was almost comical to see the changes that went over the miners' faces as the doctor shoved men this way and that in order to get near the hall. At first they swore and threatened to do unspeakable damage for the rough treatment some one was giving them, but the minute they caught sight of the rugged, kindly face they were as polite and ready to make room as if he had been some high and mighty potentate and they his loyal subjects.

"Get out of the way there! Doctor, he be needed in the hall. Some one be hurt in there likely!" And a big Dane reached out and caught a miner, who was standing in front of the doctor, by the collar and pulled him off his feet as if he had been a dummy in a clothing store.

In this way the doctor, Stuart struggling in his wake, fought and had fought for him a way up to the hall door. Thirty years' absolute devotion to the great needs of the miners in De Mott as well as in Champion had endeared the doctor to every stolid, obstinate, dull, heavy brained, but warm hearted man out of the 5,000, but even tonight he was privileged to go where he wanted and no questions asked.

He was in the hall and Stuart behind him. It was contrary to union rules, but tonight there was no such strict enforcement of regulations. The men had reached or were nearing a desperate resolve and did not care much who knew it.

So the doctor, still silent, as he had been from the time he started to make his way into the hall, went on through the dense crowd that blocked the aisles, and Stuart still crowded after him, his mind in a dream, his amazement at the doctor's action not yet relieved by a real inkling of his purpose.

They were on the platform, and the speaker had stopped to shake hands with the doctor, and then the doctor had asked in a low voice if he might say a word to the men.

The chairman of the union happened to be one of the Champion men. It was only two weeks before that Dr. Saxon had gone out into one of the fiercest storms of the winter, waded through drifts over his head, where Ajax had refused to go, and at a critical time in the illness of this man's baby had dragged it, as if by sheer force of defiance against death, out of the very shadow of the valley back into the warmth of life. The chairman was a hard faced, hard fisted, but big hearted Cornishman, who loved his babies as much as any man on earth, and if Dr. Saxon had asked for his last crust of bread or a share of his pasty he would have said, "Take it all."

"Boys, doctor, he be wanting to say a word or two. It don't belong to be by the rules, but I say let doctor say his say!"

He whispered to Rhena, who stood at the side of the cutter.

"Aye, aye! Let's hear doctor!" shouted a hundred voices, and the man who had been speaking at once sat down.

The doctor turned around and faced the men. Stuart never forgot the scene. It flashed into him like light that the doctor was taking all this upon himself to save him, Stuart, from danger of collision with the men. He almost forgot Rhena in his love for his old friend tonight.

And it was a scene for painters, only painters never could catch the full meaning of it all. The doctor looked into the faces of men by whose side he had stood in the little cabins where life was going out or at the bottom of the mines after some horrible accident, and he was always the same in his unflinching devotion to duty and his unspoken love for the suffering and his great skill to beat death back and look hell in the face without a tremor of a nerve or the quiver of an eyelid.

"Now, then," began the doctor in his usual abrupt manner, "there isn't a man here ever heard me try to make a speech in public, is there?"

It was very quiet in the hall, so quiet that the noise of the crowd outdoors could plainly be heard. No one replied to the doctor's question. The men were all waiting to hear the next word. They were not easily surprised, but the sight of the doctor up there and the sound of his voice in this new revelation of him were almost like seeing or hearing a man who had been dead for 30 years come suddenly to life.

"And I'm not going to try it now. But I want to tell you that if you do what you are threatening to do tonight you'll be bigger fools than I've been calling you for 30 years or more. Why, you must be insane idiots, every mother's son of you, to think you can gain anything by pulling up pumps! Who'll suffer? The mine owners? What if they do lose a little property up here? Haven't you got sense enough to know that it is only one item out of thousands for them? But it's the whole thing for you, and if you weren't a lot of blockheaded dummies you would know that the result of pulling up the pumps will be simply to give me more work to do in mending your cracked skulls and sewing up a lot of gunshot wounds in your useless bodies, and I tell you I've got my hands full now without having a lot of extra work piled on me just because you want to have a little picnic with those pumps. And after you've pulled 'em up and about a hundred of you are killed or get what few brains you have left knocked out what will you gain besides that? How much chance will there be for mining in the spring with all the shafts flooded? Do you want to kill me with all this preparation for bloodshed? Tell you what I'll do. Any man here that wants me to amputate an arm or leg or fix his brains back into his empty head after he's gone and got himself mixed up in a fight with the militia can just take my word for it here and now that I will turn him over to the job work of these stranger doctors that have been practicing on you since the fever struck in this winter. Hear that? I simply won't do a thing for you!

"I'm as mad as you are at the mine owners. I think that, with the exception of Mr. Duncan here, they will have a heavy account to settle at the day of judgment. But, sure as death, you won't gain anything by trying to improve God's punishment for 'em. You know what'll happen if the mines close down for good in the spring. The owners will have to open if you let the pumps alone, and you can go back at a rise over old wages. The pressure for ore will force the companies to resume. But once you ruin the mines, and what will you do? The babies cry for food in the cabins now, you say, but it will be worse than that if"— The doctor softened his voice for a minute. The effect of it was magical. Stuart could not believe and will not as long as he lives that Dr. Saxon was talking for the next few sentences. He has never heard him with that voice since. "The babies that lie out there on the great slope will never hunger again. I have watched hundreds of them leave this unsatisfactory world this winter and not one of them that did not pull my heartstrings with his little fingers as death won him from me. But God is merciful. There is no doubt of his justice. There isn't a man here who doesn't know I love him and would never counsel an act that I was not sure would be for your good and the good of the wives and children in the long run. Why, every one of you knows"—here the doctor resumed his voice that the miners knew so well, and every one started and came back again, staring at the great rough coated figure—"that even Ajax has more sense than to go and kick over the measure that contains his oats. But that's what you plan to do. I always said that the stupidest numskulls that ever lived could be found in De Mott, where I've looked into more cracked craniums than anything else, and I've made up my mind that after this when I've broken heads to fix up I'll use cotton or wool or something like that to stuff the vacant places I find"—

Just then there was a disturbance down by the door, and the next moment a voice broke the silence of the crowd: "Is the doctor here? He's wanted at once outside. Been a row, and Pat Penyek has got a broken head. Tell the doctor to come right out."

"Hear that!" roared the doctor. "If you pull up pumps, I'll go right up and get killed with the rest of you when the militia fires, and after I've gone who'll come and pump life into you when death has you by the throat? And if I don't get shot I'll leave you and go down to Phile., where I won't have to furnish the brains for the whole community!"

Without another word the doctor jumped down off the platform and worked his way outside, where he cared for the wounded man as skillfully and tenderly as if his patient had been the president of the republic.

At first Stuart had started to go out with the doctor. Then he suddenly changed his mind and decided to remain. The doctor had made a decided impression on the men. They were used to his rough, uncomplimentary invective, and they loved him as perhaps they never loved any one else, and he had put the matter so plainly, even if it had been flung at them so roughly, that they were compelled to think.

The next half hour in that old hall that night witnessed the closing chapter in the great strike. Man after man rose and declared that it would be madness to pull up the pumps. The doctor's words had struck into the heart of things, and men who had sworn when they entered the hall to destroy every cent's worth of mine owners' property they could lay hands on now [illegible] caution and waiting. There [illegible] however, one element they had [illegible] reckoned on.

The union had been for several weeks in a condition bordering on dissolution. Eric had found that out some time before he was confronted with the fact of his own loss of power. He knew that the end was very near. The entire effect of the evening's event so far tended to break down what remained of the union. Stuart could see the end coming. He sat back against the wall, forgotten by the leaders and their men as the talk went on. There were several fiery appeals for carrying out the original plans of destroying the mines. The crowd swayed all over the room as one and another from the floor as well as from the platform spoke. Finally the end came in a rush. A great, shambling figure, no less than our old friend Sanders, who had been charged by the doctor with getting cod liver oil from the dispensary wherewith to grease his boots, rose and in a voice that in spite of its being perforated with spasmodic coughs was easily heard made a motion that the strike be declared off.

A pandemonium started in with the debate on this motion. The crowd outside caught the news, and it maddened the mob. There was a great rush for the hall entrance. The chairman finally put the motion as yells of "Question!" "Question!" rose on every side, and it carried by a two-thirds vote.

Instantly the men in the hall started to rush into the street and were met at the hall entrance by the yelling crowd trying to get in. For several minutes there was a tremendous struggle, but gradually the crowd outside, as it learned of the action of the union leaders, gave way, and when one of the most prominent men in the De Mott range put the question, standing on the steps of the courthouse at the corner, the majority of the voices yelled "Aye!" to the question declaring the strike off. There was no accounting for this to Stuart's mind except by the fact that all along the men had grown more and more tired of the strike and had really been waiting for some one to make the break. Then they followed like sheep, and in less than ten minutes the union was past history.

A few of the disaffected men that night, inflamed with drink and mad at the close of the strike, went up to the Queen mine, determined to pull up the pumps and destroy as much as possible, but the troops had already anticipated such an attempt and in a skirmish with the miners drove them back, no one, however, being killed and only a few heads broken with clubs and ore missiles. Stuart did not know of this until the next day, and the doctor helped mend the broken heads, grumbling as he did so and declaring with each new case that it was positively the very last he would attend.
